PREFACE.

MY attention was firſt drawn to the hiſtory of my own family at an interview with the Rev. Edward Hawkins, D.D., the Venerable Provoſt of Oriel College in Oxford, on 28th February, 1863. He aſked me on that occaſion what relationſhip I bore to Thomas Mayo, M.D., who, like his father, John Mayo, M.D., had been a Fellow of that Houſe. I was unable at the time to give more than the vague reply that a relationſhip exiſted, though I could not ſtate the preciſe degree, but I then reſolved to put myſelf in a poſition to anſwer in time to come any queſtions of a ſimilar character which might ariſe. I found ready to my hand a quantity of valuable material for a genealogy, which had been collected ſome years before by my mother, whoſe thoughts had been turned in that direction by inquiries from perſons of the family name in the United States. Into her labours I then entered, and by ſlow degrees, and by employing intervals of leiſure which from time to time occurred, I have collected the further material, of which, together with that previouſly at my command, the preſent memoirs are compoſed.

The Occaſion of the writing of this Book,

The plan I have here adopted has been to point out in an introductory chapter thoſe families of the name of Mayo which I have met with in my inquiries, as a guide to others who may follow me in the ſame field of genealogical reſearch, prefaced by ſome remarks upon the name and arms, and then to give an account of the Elton family of Hazle in the pariſh of Ledbury, Herefordſhire, from which four branches of my own family are deſcended, and thus claim kindred with John Elton alias Baker, Canon of Sarum, the founder of the Elton Fellowſhip at Braſenoſe College in Oxford. In the ſucceeding chapters I have given, in the form of a narrative, the hiſtory of my own family, concluding with ſhort notices of ſome other families allied to it by marriage, the pedigrees of which, for the moſt part, have not been publiſhed hitherto. The folding pedigree exhibits the Elton and Mayo families in a convenient form for reference, and traces a deſcent from Charles the Great. Anderſon's "Royal Genealogies," Dugdale's "Baronage," Harl. MSS. 1396 and 1982 ("Viſitation of Shropſhire"), Vincent MSS., Royal College of Arms, Meyrick's "Heraldic Viſita-

and the Aſſiſtance received in compoſing it.

I have to expreſs my thanks to all the members of the Mayo family, who have ſo readily given me all the information at their command, and alſo to many other perſons who have courteouſly aſſiſted me in various ways, and allowed me to take extracts from regiſters, MSS., and documents of various kinds in their cuſtody or poſſeſſion, among whom I may particularly mention the authorities of Braſenoſe College, Oxford, of Belmont Priory, Herefordſhire, Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter King of Arms, Colonel Cheſter, Rev. C. J. Robinſon, W. H. Cooke, Eſq., Q.C., G. H. Sawtell, Eſq., and Dr. Robert Druitt.

The particular ſources of information conſulted, beyond thoſe already mentioned, need not be enumerated here, as they will be named in their proper places in the text of the volume. In concluſion, I beg the kind indulgence of the reader for any defects in the preſent work which may preſent themſelves to the eye of the practiſed genealogiſt. My only deſire is that what is here recorded may be of uſe and intereſt to generations yet unborn, which might otherwiſe be unmindful of the ſtock from whence they ſprang.

A GENEALOGICAL ACCOUNT OF THE MAYO AND ELTON FAMILIES.

CHAPTER I.

The Origin and Local Distribution of the Name of Mayo, with some General Notes on Persons and Families that have borne it.

The name of Mayo

THE name of Mayo is found occurring in various parts of the world, and under widely different circumſtances. It has been appropriated to an Iriſh town and county, to an iſland of the Cape de Verde group, to an anæſthetic compound of hemp in uſe among the Chineſe, to a game at which Lord Strafford played "excellently well," to a dandy frequenting the bull-fights, and to the Grand Vizier of the King of Dahomey. Regarded, however, as an Engliſh family name, it is moſt frequently met with in the ſouth and weſt of this iſland, and few pariſh regiſters in the counties of Hereford, Glouceſter, Wilts, and Dorſet, can be opened without preſenting us with examples. It is ſpelt in many ways, varying from the extended form of Mayhowe to that of Mao, and often, as it will preſently appear, clipped down and reduced to May by the loſs of its concluding ſyllable. One leſſon, however, is taught by this variety and diverſity, viz., the identity of Mayhew and Mayo,[1] and from this conſideration a ray of light is thrown upon the derivation of the name.

is identical with Mayhew,

The common ſuppoſition that the name takes its origin from the Iriſh town muſt at once be laid aſide. And, indeed, the name appears to be as rare in Ireland as it is common in England, for, to take a ſingle illuſtration, while thirty-four[2] perſons of the name of Mayo, and eight or more of Mayow, graduated at Oxford between 1659 and 1868, no perſon ſo called is to be found among the graduates of Dublin from 1591 to the preſent day.

[1] Compare the name Walthew and its variant Waltho. ("Herald and Genealogiſt," 1864, page 312.)

[2] Of theſe thirty-four Oxford graduates, twenty-five are accounted for in the ſucceeding chapters as deſcendants of John Mayo, of Devizes, Wilts.

John D'Alton, at page 159 of his "Illuſtrations Hiſtoric and Genealogical of King James II.'s Army Liſt," commenting on the name of George Mayo, a Lieutenant in Sarsfield's Regiment of Horſe, ſtates that "this ſurname does not occur again in the Liſt, nor does it appear in the roll of outlawries either of 1641 or 1671. Some 'Meaghs' and 'Moyaghs' do appear therein. The name of Mayowe is in the Chancery Rolls as in Kerry in the fourteenth century; that of Mayhew alſo occurs in Iriſh Records of about the ſame period; and in a Roll of aſſeſſment of fines laid upon Sheriffs, Mayors, Seneſchalls, &c., of record in the Chief Remembrancer's Office here (Dublin), is one of Geoffrey Mayhoo in 1428."

But to return to England, an early occurrence of the name, and in its extended form, is found in Glover's Roll of Arms, ſuppoſed by Sir Harris Nicolas to date from between 1245 and 1250. Herbert le Fitz Mayhewe (No. 78) is there mentioned as bearing "pty dazur & de goulz oue trois leonſeaux rampants d'or;" and Woodward in his "Hiſtory of Wales," page 415, narrates that according to the old copy of S. David's annals the Welſh ſlew Sir Herbert Fitz-Mahu, apparently in 1246, near the caſtle of Morgan Cam. The ſame Roll of Arms gives the clue to the origin of the name. On three occaſions Mahewe is uſed as a Chriſtian name; in the caſe of Mahewe de Lovayne (No. 116), Maheu de Columbers (No. 191), and Maheu de Redmain (No. 218). There can be little doubt that it is here a ſoftened form of Matthew. Bardſley, in his "Engliſh Surnames," mentions two other inſtances,—Adam fil. Maheu from the Hundred Rolls, and Mayeu de Baſingbourne from the Parliamentary Writs,—and takes the ſame view of its origin. Lower, in his "Patronymica Britannica," page 219, under the name MATTHEW ſtates that "This baptiſmal name introduced here at the Conqueſt has not only become a ſurname but the parent of many others; to wit, Mathew, Matthews, Matthewſon, Mathie, Mathieſon, Matſon, Mayhew, Mayo, Matts, Matty, Maddy, Madiſon." Under MAYOW, MAYHEW, page 221, he ſays again, "Probably one of the many modifications of Matthew." [1]

which occurs as a Chriſtian name, equivalent to Matthew.

It has already been ſtated that the name has ſuffered a ſtill further reduction by the loſs of its final ſyllable, and inſtances may be given where an uncertainty has appeared to exiſt as to the form of ſpelling to be adopted. For example: Walter Mayo vel Meye admiſſus in artibus 26 January, 1511 (Gough MS. 7. Bod: Lib:);

It is further reduced to "May."

King Lear, Act iii., Scene 4.

the will of Robert Mayo of Broughton Gifford, gent., 16 November, 1572, in the Prerogative Court, though his family name was uſually written May, as in the Wiltſhire Viſitations; the will of Henry Mayo alias May of Kellways, Wilts, 1661, proved in the Court of the Archdeacon of Wilts; and the will of Maria Florentia Mayo, proved P. C. C. 12 April, 1677, where the name occurs ſometimes as May, and at other times as Mayo. Here too the teſtimony of armorial bearings can be adduced, for while "Sable a chevron between three roſes argent a chief or" is aſcribed to Mayo, the ſame bearings with variations in tincture only are aſcribed to May of Charterhouſe, Somerſet (from Wiltſhire), May of Exeter and others. Curiouſly enough a family in North Carolina has changed its name back from May to Mayo within the laſt ſixty years.[1]

If it be granted that the geneſis of the name has here been correctly given, and that it belongs to that wide claſs of names derived from Chriſtian names, it will readily be underſtood that many families of the ſame name may be looked for, which are quite diſtinct from each other in their origin, and that a common appellation is here no indication of a common anceſtry; and the reader will ſee that this fact, combined with the great diverſity of ſpelling, varying from Mayhew to May, has rendered the tracing of an early pedigree no eaſy matter, and he is requeſted to pardon any ſhortcomings on this ſcore.

Families have borne it, ſeated in Cornwall,

It may be well to point out the habitat of ſome few Mayo families. To begin with Cornwall. Pedigrees of Mayhowe of Loſtwithiel, and of Mayow of Looe, Bray, and Morval, are given in the Viſitations; from the latter deſcends in the female line the preſent family of Wynell-Mayow. Here alſo belonged John Mayow, Fellow of All Souls College, the diſtinguiſhed Oxford philoſopher of the ſeventeenth century, and that Mayow of Clevyan in S. Columb Major, who was hanged on a tavern ſignpoſt as a rebel againſt the injunctions of Edward VI. concerning religion. Mayow's wife delayed aſking for his releaſe till too late, by reaſon of her adorning herſelf with a French Hood! (Gilbert's "Hiſt. of Cornwall," vol. ii., page 198).

Dorſet,

Dorset contains many perſons of the name, and a ſhort pedigree is given in one of the Viſitations, but here it is now chiefly confined to the yeomanry of the county. A few of its poſſeſſors have entered holy orders.

Glouceſterſhire,

The name is common in Gloucestershire, as at Kempley in the north, at Tetbury and at Charfield in the ſouth of the county. From Francis Mayo of Charfield ſprang the family ſeated at Bayford, Herts, which gave a High Sheriff to that county in 1668.

Hereforddſhire,

Herefordshire, again, is well ſupplied with this family name. To take a ſingle inſtance, the regiſters of Much Marcle are embarraſſingly full of it. Hence was derived James Mayo of Tottenham, whoſe pedigree is in the Middleſex Viſitation of 1663.

Northampton-ſhire,

From Holmden, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, came Henry Maio alias Nichols, of Southam, Warwickſhire, whoſe pedigree is in the Viſitation of the latter county in 1619.

Middleſex,

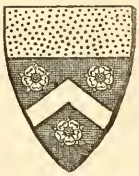
Another family of Mayo was formerly ſettled at Hadley, MIDDLESEX.

Norfolk and Suffolk,

The NORFOLK and SUFFOLK Viſitations give pedigrees of Mayhew, the former at Clippeſby and Billockby, the latter at Clopton, Helmingſton, and Bedingfield.

and Wiltſhire.

This ſlight ſketch may be ſufficient to indicate ſome of the localities where families of Mayo are now or were formerly to be found. WILTSHIRE ſtill remains, reſerved to the laſt as particularly intereſting to thoſe who are concerned with the contents of this volume. More than one family of the name are here found. Mayow of Dinton figures in the Viſitations of 1565 and 1623, and from this ſource probably ſprang Thomas Mayhew who emigrated to Boſton from Saliſbury between 1630-40, and whoſe deſcendants are numerous in New England. Berwick S. John had alſo for ſome generations a family of the ſame name. Poulſhot was the home of another family which alſo has given its offspring to the New World, and from William Mayo who emigrated about 1720 has ariſen one of the moſt influential families of Virginia. It may be remarked that in the Poulſhot Regiſter the name is written as May previous to 1635, as May and Mayo indiſcriminately between 1635 and 1640, and as Mayo after the year laſt named. At Chippenham reſided Jenkin Maye, who married a daughter of Sir Hugh Spencer, and was the anceſtor of May of Charterhouſe, Somerſet, bearing "Sable, a chevron or between three roſes argent, a chief of the ſecond." At Devizes was married, in 1671, John Mayo, from whom are deduced the numerous offspring whoſe generations are chronicled in the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th chapters of this volume. His deſcendants in their various branches have borne for arms, Sable, a chevron between three roſes argent, a chief or;—a dove with olive branch in its mouth proper, for creſt; and the motto, "Nuncia Pacis Oliva."



MAYO.

Coats of arms connected with this name.

It may here be noted that there are certain diſtinct types of arms borne by families of this name.

1. Where the ſhield bears three ducal or creſt coronets, as in the arms of Mayo of Cornwall, of Dorſet, of Bayford from Glouceſterſhire, of Virginia from Poulſhot, and Mayhew of Suffolk and Norfolk.

2. Where we have a chevron charged with five lozenges between three birds,—which is attributed to Mayo of Dinton only.

3. Where the charge is a woodman or wildman, with a club over his ſhoulder, borne by Sir Peter Mayo (according to Guillim), and depicted on the monument of William Mayo at Brington, Northamptonſhire; and alſo borne by a family of Mayer.

4. Where roſes are the principal bearing, as in the caſe of Richard Mayo, Biſhop of Hereford, Mayo of Much Marcle, Tottenham and Devizes, and families of the name of May.

This introductory chapter may be brought to a concluſion with a reference to a few remarkable perſons who have borne this family name, but who are not introduced in the ſucceeding pages.

Richard Mayo, Bishop of Hereford.

Richard Mayo, otherwiſe Mayeo, Maiewe, Mayhowe, Mayhue, &c., was born near Hungerford, educated at Wincheſter, became Fellow of New College 1459, Proctor, firſt Preſident of Magdalen College, King's Chaplain circa 1491, Archdeacon of Oxford, 29th January, 1496, King's Almoner, was admitted "ad eundem" at Cambridge 1500, Archdeacon of the Eaſt Riding 1501, Prebendary of Ramſbury (Sarum), was ſent to Spain in 1501 to bring the Lady Katharine to be married to Prince Arthur, and was made Chancellor of Oxford 1503, and Biſhop of Hereford 1ſt November, 1504. He died 18th April, 1516, and his will, dated 24th March, 1515, was proved 10th May, 1516, P.C.C., Holder 18. Arms: Argent, on a feſs ſable between three roſes gules a lily of the firſt, ſtalked and leaved vert.

John Mayo, "the Bearded."

John Mayo was a celebrated painter in Germany, nicknamed "John the Bearded." He wore his beard faſtened to his girdle, and though he was a very tall man it hung upon the ground when he ſtood upright. John would ſometimes untie it in the preſence of the Emperor Charles V., who took great pleaſure in ſeeing the wind make it fly againſt the faces of the lords of the court. See Encycl. Brit., Article "Beard," vol. iv., page 528. He was born in 1500 and died in 1559.

Col. Chriſtopher Mayo.

Colonel Christopher Mayo had warrant 14th July, 1652, to raiſe 3,000 foot in Ireland, out of ſuch natives as had been in active arms againſt the Parliament, and tranſmit them for ſervice of the King of Spain to Bilboa and St. Sebaſtian and other parts of Spain equally diſtant from England. The "Howard Papers," at page 80, relate a deſperate encounter he had in London with the Portugueſe, 21ſt November, 1653, when he received ſeven dangerous wounds, and had twelve men on him at once, and yet drew his ſword and fought with them as long as he was able to hold ſword in hand.

John Mayo, a royal favourite.

John Mayo, Esq., died 28th January, 1735, aged 78, "a great favourite with King James II., who ſettled on him for life £800 per annum, with leave to jointure a wife in £300, and he beſtowed that favour on a maiden gentlewoman a few days before he died."—Gentleman's Magazine, vol. v., page 50.

CHAPTER II.

Elton of Hazle in the Parish of Ledbury in the County of Hereford, with Descendants in the Hall, Watts, and Prichard Families, and an Account of the Elton Foundation at Brasenose College, Oxford.

The Manor of Hazle, Ledbury,

THE family of Elton, of which an account is given in the following pages, was long ſettled in the county of Hereford, and was ſeated at Hazle in the pariſh of Ledbury, in the latter part of the ſixteenth century. The Manor of Hazle had previouſly been held of the church of Hereford by the Walwyns for nearly 200 years. Thomas Walwyn held it at his death in 1531, and probably his ſon Sir Richard Walwyn, who died in 1578, was alſo owner of the leaſe. The Manor of Ledbury paſſed into the hands of the Crown in 1559, and Anthony Elton was apparently the firſt of his family to become poſſeſſed of the eſtate. His deſcendants continued to hold it for a conſiderable period, until it was alienated in 1720 to Jacob Tonſon, the noted London publiſher. The Manor Houſe ſtill exiſts, and though much altered, and converted into a farm reſidence, retains the oak wainſcoting in the principal room, with the Elton arms and creſt above the fireplace, and a ſtaircaſe of oak with carved wicket-gate and baluſtrade.

previouſly held by the Walwyns,

But the earlier home of the family was at Elton in the county of Cheſter, a ſcion of which houſe entered Herefordſhire, probably under the auſpices of Biſhop Booth.

derived from Cheſhire.

In Ormerod's Hiſtory of that county, vol. ii., page 22, it is ſtated that Thomas de Helton was witneſs to a grant of land in Hapsford along with Peter le Roter, Lord of Thornton, Ranulph Rector of Thornton, and others, about the year 1268. His ſon Thomas flouriſhed in the reign of Edward II., whoſe ſon, another Thomas de Helton, died before his father, leaving a daughter, Felicia, coheireſs to her grandfather, and married to William de Frodſham, (Inq: 35 Edw. III.). This family bore Paly of ſix argent and gules, on a bend ſable three mullets of the firſt.

But it is with the branch of the family ſettled in Herefordſhire that we are now concerned, and the narrative which follows is baſed upon the Heralds' Viſitations of the latter county, continued and greatly extended by extracts from pariſh regiſters and other ſources of information; and much help has been derived from the Phillipps MSS. preſerved at Belmont Priory, near Hereford.

ELTON.

William Elton ſettles at Ledbury,

The pedigree begins with William Elton of Ledbury, "deſcended of Elton of Elton of Cheſhire." The arms aſſigned to his family are, "Paly of ſix or and gules, on a bend ſable three mullets of the firſt." Creſt, "a dexter arm embowed in armour argent tied round the arm with a ſcarf vert, the gauntlet holding a ſcimitar proper, pommel and hilt or."

marries Sybil Wilſe,

William Elton married Sybil, daughter of Roger Wilſe of Pithouſe, in the pariſh of Dymock, Glouceſterſhire, and had iſſue two ſons, William and John, whoſe names have come down to us. Alluſion may be made to another ſon, in "Letters and Papers Foreign and Domeſtic of the reign of Henry VIII.," vol. i., page 845, where mention is made of a pardon for Edward Elton alias Baker, late of Ledbury, Herefordſhire, alias of Hynxſey Hall in the Univerſity of Oxford, ſcholar alias clerk, 15th July, 1514 (Pat: 6 Hen. VIII. p. 2. m. 7.).

However this may be, one of the ſons of William and Sybil Elton was:

and has iſſue John Elton alias Baker, Canon of Sarum,

John Elton alias Baker, LL.D. This eccleſiaſtic was preſented in 1510 to the Rectory of Marlborough S. Peter, Wilts, by Edmund Audeley, Biſhop of Sarum, and in the next year, by the ſame prelate, to the Vicarage of Sherſton, in the ſame county. On 18th June, 1511, he was "licentiatus ad incipiendum" at Oxford, and 5th April, 1512, collated to the Prebend of South Grantham in Saliſbury Cathedral. The next year he exchanged Marlborough S. Peter for the Wardenſhip of S. Katherine's Hoſpital, Ledbury, and on 24th October, 1514, was made Prebendary of North Grantham in Saliſbury Cathedral, of which he was a Canon Reſidentiary. The year 1514 ſaw him further preferred to the church of Myldenhall, Wilts, by Walter Hungerford, Knight.

In 1515 he reſigned the Vicarage of Sherſton, and on 9th May was made Prebendary of Withington Parva in Hereford Cathedral. In 1517 he was alſo made Rector of the portion of Netherhall in the Church of Ledbury. "30 Mart. 1517. Mr. Johes Elton alias Baker collatus ad Rectoriam ſeu Porcionem de Netherhall in Eccl: Ledbury, per reſig: Mri. Henric' Horneby S.T.P. Penſio annua x librar. ſolut. reſignanti jam ſeni." (Regiſter Booth.)

In 1526 he was preſented to the Vicarage of Cryckelade, Wilts, by the Dean and Chapter of Sarum, and a note in the Biſhop's regiſter ſtates, "Hic notatur de unione Ecclæ de Myldenhall cum Eccl. Weleford." In 1529 he was made Rector of Childrey, Berks, and in 1534 was preſented to the Vicarage of Yetminſter, Dorſet.

On 13th Auguſt, 1539, he was collated to the Chancellorſhip of Hereford Cathedral, and on the 22nd of the ſame month to the Prebend of Grimſtone in Saliſ-bury Cathedral, having resigned the Prebend of North Grantham. According to the Phillipps MSS. he was collated to the Archdeaconry of Hereford, 13th August, 1543, but this statement appears to be erroneous. It would also seem that he was sometime Rector of Welford, Berks, and perhaps Vicar of Bishops Norton, Lincoln. He died in 1547, and the Prebend of Grimstone, vacant by his death, was filled up on the 24th of August of that year.

and Founder of a Fellowship at B. N. C. Oxford.

The best known act of his life was the foundation of a Fellowship at Brasenose College, in the University of Oxford. By deed, dated 20th May, 1529, he gave lands in Stanlake and Duglington, Oxfordshire, and in Kemmerton, Gloucestershire, to the Principal and Scholars of Brasenose College for the maintenance of one scholar of his kin from the Diocese of Hereford or Worcester, and he directed in default of such a person being found, the said scholar to be a native of the Diocese of Sarum, or in default again to be chosen from among the most fitting persons in the University.

The following is a copy of the entry in the Composition Book of Brasenose College, in the possession of the Principal, by whose permission this transcript has been made:—

William, another ſon of William Elton,

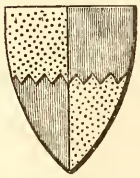
The other ſon of William Elton and Sybil (née Wilſe) was William Elton, who was buried at Ledbury, 19 Auguſt, 1558, having ſurvived his brother, to whoſe will he was one of the executors. He is ſtated to have held lands of the Chantry of our Lady in the Church of Ledbury, temp. Edward VI. He twice married; firſt, Margery, daughter of John Carew, by whom he had iſſue two daughters—1. Anne, buried at Madley 22 June, 1591, having been wife of Richard Willaſſon of Sugwas in Eaton Biſhop, leſſee of the Upper Hall in Ledbury, and one of the executors to Canon Elton's will, who died 23 February, 1574, and was buried on the 1ſt of March following, at Madley, leaving an only daughter and heireſs, Anne, who was married to Alexander Denton, of Hilleſdon, Bucks, and died, 29 October, 1566, aged 18; 2. Elizabeth, married to Richard Seaborne, of Sutton, Hereford-ſhire, and buried at Pentridge, 6 May, 1605.

marries (1) Margery Carew,

Recumbent figures of Richard and Anne Willaſſon are preſerved in Madley Church, and others of Alexander and Anne Denton in the ſouth tranſept of Hereford Cathedral. The latter monument has the inſcription:—

"Heare lierhe Alexander Denton of Hilleſdon in ye Counte of Buckinghm̃ and Anne his wyffe, dowghter and heyre of Richard Wyllyſon of Suggewas in ye Counte of Herefford: w' Anne deceaſſed the xxix^th of October Ann. Dn̄i [1566, the xviii] the yeare of her age, the [xxiii of] his age."

A deed indented, by which Richard Wyllyſon, of Sugwas, Eſq., and John Seborne, of Sutton, gent., grant to Thomas Wilton, of Ledbury, gent., a parcel of land called Le Croſte, and another called Typplynge pocke, together with a meſſuage or tenement, all ſituate in Ledbury, dated 8 December, 17 Elizabeth, is now in the poſſeſſion of the writer.



LEIGHTON.

and (2) Margery Leighton,

William Elton married, ſecondly, Margery, daughter of William Leighton, of Plaſh, in Cardington, Shropſhire, by Dorothy his wife, daughter of Sir Thomas Lacon, Knt., a lady deſcended from the royal blood.

It may be noted that this Dorothy Lacon was afterwards married to Sir Richard Walwyn, of Hellens, Knt., from whom defcends the Shepheard family, of which an account is given in the laft chapter of this book.

The iffue of William Elton by his marriage with Margery Leighton were Anthony, Roland, buried at Ledbury, 3rd June, 1576, f.p., Edward, buried 17th March, 1565-6, Sybil, who may be the "Sibill Elton gent." married to Anthony Nafhe, 17th July, 1578, Anne, and Peter, buried 23rd April, 1594, the hufband of Ann Norris, whofe defcendants are recorded towards the end of the prefent chapter. Ann outlived her hufband, and was fubfequently married, 16th February, 1595, to John Hope, gent.

SCUDAMORE.

Anthony, his fon, marries Alice Scudamore,

Anthony, the eldeft fon, who appears to have been the firft poffeffor of the Manor of Hazle, was buried at Ledbury, 13th September, 1587, having married Alice, daughter of John Scudamore, of Kentchurch. He had a numerous family.

and has iſſue, William Elton, his heir, who dies young,

I. William, the eldeſt ſon, who died without iſſue, and was buried 26th April, 1593. An "inquiſitio poſt mortem" was taken at Hereford, 27th October, 35 Elizabeth, before Robert Woodroff, gent., Eſcheator, by which it was found that William Elton, late of Ledbury, gent., deceaſed, on the day on which he died was ſeiſed in fee tail, as to himſelf and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten, of the Manor of Haſill in the ſaid county, and in one tenement called Halhouſe in the ſaid pariſh, and three parcels of meadow lying in Longmeadow, Chabuorſhorne, and Peſebridgefield, in the Pariſh of Ledbury. That he died 25th April, 35 Elizabeth, at Ledbury, and that Ambroſe Elton, gent., is brother and next heir of William Elton, and is of the age of twenty-one years on the firſt day of March, before the taking of this inquiſition, and before the death of the ſaid William. That Alice Elton, widow, mother of the ſaid William Elton and late wife of Anthony Elton, gent., father of the ſaid William Elton, is now ſurviving at Ledbury, and has dower of the third part of the premiſes. That the Manor of Haſill is held of the Queen as of her Manor of Ledbury, by knight ſervice, by the fourth part of a knight's fee, and is worth per annum in all outgoings beyond repriſes, eight pounds.

The ſecond ſon of Anthony Elton was—

II. Ambroſe, mentioned in the foregoing Inquiſition, of whom an account will preſently be given; and next to him came—

Thomas Elton, M.A., D.M., Fellow of B. N. C.,

III. Thomas, a doctor of medicine, baptised at Ledbury, 19th April, 1573, matriculated at Oxford, 14th November, 1589, aged 15 years, from Braſenoſe College, Fellow on the Elton Foundation, 6th July, 1594, and Maſter of Arts in 1597. He married Jane, daughter of Sir Edward Aſton, Knt., of Tixall, Staffordſhire, and was buried 11th Auguſt, 1618, in the Abbey Church of Bath. His will was proved in the Prerogative Court, 9th December, 1618, by Jane his relict.

(Meade 125.) Thomas Elton of the City of Bathe, Somerſet, Doctor of Phiſick, the laſt day of July 1618. To be buried near my children where they now lye in the abbye Church of Bathe. I bequeath after the deceaſe of my wife all thoſe moneys now remayninge in the hands of Sir Walter Aſhton unto my children equally. My wife whole executrix. Sir Walter Aſhton, my Ladie Culpepper, Sir George Ivie, my brother Ambroſe Elton, and my brother Thomas Aſhton to be Overſeers of this my will. Signed and ſealed, Thomas Elton; in the preſence of Edward Stirridge, Margaret Edwards her marke.

"ffor the better explanation of the guifte and bequeſt of the ſome of eight hundred and fiftie poundes, covenanted by me ſhould be preſerved and diſpoſed amongſt my children, after the deceaſe of Jane my wife as appeth by an annuety granted by Sir Walter Aſhton to us both during our lives, I therefore ſay and do give unto Walter Elton my ſonne, after the deceaſe of Jane my wife, the ſome of one hundred and fiftie pounds. Unto my ſonne Richard one hundred pounds. To my daughter Jane Elton one hundred pounds. To my daughter Anne Elton one hundred pounds. To my daughter Bridget Elton one hundred pounds. To my daughter Marie Elton one hundred pounds. To my daughter Magdalene Elton one hundred pounds. And to the child now remayninge in the womb of the ſaid Jane nowe my wife the ſome of one hundred pounds alſo, if it live; if not, that hundred pound to be divided amongſt the reſt equally. Item I give and bequeath unto the Poore of the Piſh twentie ſhillings."

This child was baptiſed in Bath Abbey, under the name of Thomas, 3rd September, 1618.

Other children of Anthony Elton were—

IV. Anne, baptiſed 15th Auguſt, 1574, and married 3rd November, 1600, to James Jauncey, of Weſthide, who was buried 16th December, 1619 (Ledbury Regiſter). and, amongſt others,

V. Margery, baptiſed 29th January, 1575-6, and married to Hugh Scrivener, M.D.[1]

VI. Edward, baptiſed 26th February, 1576-7.

An outbreak of the plague at this time viſited the town of Sherborne. In the months of June, July, and Auguſt, 1611, ſo many as 230 perſons were buried. During the ſame months in the previous year the burials had been only 24 in number.

B. N. C., his ſucceſſor, on the death of his brother William, from whoſe "poſt mortem" inquiſition it appears that he was born 1ſt March, 1571-2. He matriculated at Oxford, 22nd November, 1588, aged fifteen, from Braſenoſe College, where he was Fellow on the Elton foundation from 14th December, 1588 to 1594. He afterwards reſided at Hazle, was a Juſtice of the Peace, and ſerved in the office of High Sheriff in 1618. He married Anne, daughter of Sir Edward Aſton, Knt., of Tixall, and ſiſter of Walter, firſt Lord Aſton, of Forfar, in the Peerage of Scotland. A monument in the ſouth aiſle of Ledbury Church bears the following inſcription :—

Suſanna, d. of Ambroſe Elton and Anne, née Aſton, is married (1) to Richard Hall, (2) to Sir Richard Cocks, Bart. Her monument at Dumbleton.

It is now neceſſary to turn back to Suſanna, fifth daughter of Ambroſe Elton, and Anne (née Aſton). She was baptiſed at Ledbury, 2nd March, 1605, and died 10th March, 1689, aged eighty-four, having been twice married, firſt to Richard Hall, of Ledbury, 30th October, 1622, who was buried there 3rd November, 1631, and ſecondly to Sir Richard Cocks, of Dumbleton, Glouceſterſhire, who was created a Baronet, 7th April, 1661, and ſerved as High Sheriff of his County, 1665. A long but intereſting inſcription exiſts in the church at Dumbleton.

"In Memory of Sir Richard Cocks, Baronet, and of Dame Suſannah his wife. He was the 2nd ſon of Richard Cocks of Caſtleditch in the County of Hereford Eſqr., and of Judith his wife, daughter and coheir of John Elliot Eſq. She was the daughter of Ambroſe Elton of the Haſle in the County of Hereford Eſqre, and of Ann his wife daughter of Sir Edward Aſton of Tixall in the County of Stafford. He in his younger days accompanied his uncle Chriſtopher Cocks, (who was honored by King James I with a public character,) unto Muſcovy, and after his return he retired into the Country, and was concerned with no publick matters more than the offices of Juſtice of Peace and High Sheriff. She was a lady diſtinguiſhed by very great ornaments of mind and body, the viſible remains of which continued with her to her laſt Hour. They kept good hoſpitality, loved their tenants and neighbours and on all occaſions did them all the ſervice they could. He lived peaceably with them and kept them in peace one with another. She healed their diſeaſes and cured their ſores. He was a great ſufferer for his love to the Royal Family and for his zeal for the laws and Eſtabliſhed Religion of his Country. They were indulgent parents, good to their ſervants, and charitable to the poor. They gave their children good fortunes and liberal education. They had three ſons, Richard, Charles, and John; and two daughters Judith and Elizabeth;—but John (the younger), and Elizth., the relict of Sir John Fust of Hill in this County Baronet, only survived them. She out of a just remembrance and gratitude to so good parents, and believing the memory of them would be grateful to their neighbours, ordered her brother John Cocks to erect this monument for them. He died Sept. 16. A.D. 1684, aged 82. She died March 10. A.D. 1689, aged 84."

Arms of Cocks impaling Elton.

Richard Cocks, mentioned in this monument as having died before his father, married Mary, daughter of Sir Robert Cooke, of Highnam, and had a second son named Robert, a doctor of divinity, who held the Elton fellowship 1679-1696, and succeeded as third baronet in 1726.

The family of Hall.

The family of Hall, to which Susanna Elton's former husband belonged, had for some time been settled at Ledbury. In the early portion of the register occur—

HALL.

Francis, son of Walter Hall, baptised 24th June, 1571.

Rychard, son of Francis Hall, baptised 25th July, 1571.

William, son of Francis Hall, baptised 6th September, 1573.

According to the Visitation of Herefordshire in 1683, Walter Hall, a younger brother of the Halls of Grantham, Lincolnshire, had issue Richard and Francis, the first settlers at Ledbury.

The will of Richard Hall.

The will of Richard Hall was proved in the Prerogative Court, 10th May, 1632, by Susanna, his relict. (Audelay, 56.)

Richard Hall of Ledbury in the County of Hereford, Gent., 24 Oct. 1631. Whereas I doe stand charged by Covenante unto Ambrose Elton Esquire, my Father-in-law, to secure and settle the benefitt of one hundred pounds to the use of Susan my loving wief during her lief for the increase of her joynture,—I will that she shall hold and enjoy all my copie hould lande called Jugge, being pcell of the mannor of Ledbury forren during her life, and bequeath her the two tenements in the Burrough of Bromyard which I purchased of my brother ffrauncis Hall, together with all pfitt and advantage that shall arise or accrue out of or for my pte or interest of the said mannor or Lopp of Ledbury forren. To my daughter Susan £200 to be paid her at the age of eighteene years. To my daughters Anne and Dorothy £200 a peece, to be paid them at eighteene. To my son Richard the sum of £50 to be paid him after the death of Ursula Baggeshewe my mother-in-law. To my nephews Richard, William, ffrauncis, and Edward Hill, and my nieces Millberowe and Elizabeth Hill, my sister Elizabeth Hill's children, 40 shillings a peece. "I have received into my hande the sum of two hundred pounds which was settled in the hands of John Webley gent. for the paymt of one annuitye or yearly rent-charge of twenty pound unto Ursula Baggeshawe my mother-in-lawe, during her natural life, and afterwards to be equally divided betweene my sister Hill, myselfe, my brother ffrauncis, and my brother John Hall, to every of them fiftie pounds a peece according to the laſt will and teſtament of my father." My wife executrix. My brothers ffrauncis Hall and John Hall Overſeers. Signed in the preſence of John Webley, ffrauncis Hall, and John Hall.

e. Anne, baptiſed 5th December, 1661.

f. Margaret, baptiſed 2nd February, 1664-5.

g. Mary, baptiſed 10th December, and buried 13th December, 1666.

h. Sarah, baptiſed 4th November, 1669.

i. Mary, baptiſed 7th July, 1672.

Suſanna, the eldeſt daughter of Richard Hall and Suſanna (née Elton), was Suſanna, his daughter, is married to Canon Watts. buried at Ledbury, 6th Auguſt, 1696. She was married 5th October, 1644, (but apparently not at Ledbury,) to William Watts, M.A., Clerk in Holy Orders, Vicar of Much Marcle, 21ſt November, 1636, on the preſentation of the King; Prebendary of Bartonſham in Hereford Cathedral, 7th Auguſt, 1660, and Canon Reſidentiary; and Vicar of Upton Biſhop, 1671. An entry in the regiſter of Much Marcle ſtates that "William Watts M^r of Arts of Trinity Coll. in Cambridge and Balioll in Oxford was inducted into the Parochiall Church of Much Marckle by Mr Phillip Tinker on the 23rd. of November 1636, and read his articles on the 27th of the ſame."

William Watts died in 1679, and adminiſtration was granted to his widow, 20th Auguſt, 1680, by the Hereford Conſiſtory Court.

The letter of Canon Watts to Abp. Sheldon.

A letter written by him to Archbiſhop Sheldon is preſerved among the Tanner MSS.—xiii. 108—in the Bodleian Library:—

" May it pleaſe your Grace to accept, By the hands of our moſt honoured Chancellour Sir Timothy Baldwin, thankful acknowledgments of yor devoted Servant for yor great and comfortable favors, which yor Grace did unto me in my eldeſt ſon, whom I had devoted unto God in the miniſtry before he was born, that in order there unto you were pleaſed to caſt an auſpicious ey upon him, and to command him to ſignify unto me that you wd take him unto yor care to provide ſome preferment for him, that (under God) in the ground of my hopes that he who is the ſtaff of my hope being helpt up by yor ſtrong hand may helpe to ſupport the great burden of a wife and 10 children that lie upon my aged and infirm body, the frail thread of whoſe life being cut aſunder they muſt all immediately be driven forth into the world, the more diſtreſſed condition than ordinary and common beggars becauſe of their better breeding, which yet capacitates them to anything but want, from which Good Lord deliver them by the intailed favour of yor Grace upon the heyre of my hopes and their ſubſtance, and that upon the moſt humble and earneſt requeſt of, moſt reverend father in God, of yor Grace his moſt anciently devoted ſervant,

" Hereford, 25 June, 1674. " WILLIAM WATTS."

He matriculated at Oxford, 10th April, 1742, aged 21, from Brasenose College, and graduated as of Magdalen College, B.A. 26th October, 1745, M.A. 8th July, 1749, and was ordained Deacon 20th September, and Priest 20th December in the year 1747, at Oxford. A tablet on the wall of the north aisle of Ewelme Church has this inscription : "Sacred to the memory of the Revd. Benjamin Prichard, M.A., who died on the 8th. day of November 1777." On another tablet : "Sacred to the memory of Mrs Frances Prichard, wife of the Rev. Benjamin Prichard, M.A., who died the 9th. day of October 1776."

Administration of his estate was granted in 1777. (P.C.C.)

The register of Ewelme gives the baptism of Henry, son of Benjamin and Frances Prichard, privately baptised 23rd December, 1747, and received into the Church 20th January, 1748, and of Benjamin baptised 10th June, 1749. The former matriculated at Oxford, 10th October, 1767, aged 19, from Brasenose College, and graduated B.A. 5th February, 1772, and M.A. 16th July, 1774, and was ordained Priest at Oxford, 20th December, 1772. John-James, son of Benjamin Prichard, clerk, of Hinley, Lancashire, matriculated at Oxford, 22nd May, 1760, from Brasenose College, aged 17. He may have been another son of Benjamin and Frances Prichard.

2. William, "the ſon of Mr Benjamine Prichard and Gertrude his wife was borne upon Wedneſday the tenth day of November betwixt twelve and one o'clock at noone, and was baptized November the 18th 1680."—Much Marcle Regiſter. CHAPTER III.

Mayo of Bodenham and Hope-under-Dinmore, in the County, and of the Parish of S. Peter in the City, of Hereford.

IN the ſixteenth century, and early in the ſeventeenth, Thomas Mayo, gentleman, was living in the pariſh of Bodenham in Herefordſhire, where he died 22nd January, 1625. His monument was ſeen and the inſcription copied by Thomas Dingley in the reign of Charles II., and a ſketch of it may be found in his "Hiſtory from Marble," page 236, publiſhed for the Camden Society in 1866. Under an "I.H.S." the following words are inſcribed— Thomas Mayo, gentleman, of Bodenham,

"Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Mayo, Gent., and Catherine his wife. He deceaſed the XXII January An. D. MDCXXV."

The writer of this memoir viſited the Church of Bodenham, 28th June, 1877, and found that the monument had diſappeared. The clerk informed him that it was "done away with when the church was renovated, thirty years ago." Thomas Mayo's will was proved in the Conſiſtory Court of Hereford, and is calendared in the Index in 1625 as number 267, but has been miſlaid or deſtroyed.

He was ſucceeded at Bodenham by his ſon Thomas Mayo. Catherine his wife long ſurvived him, and was buried at Bodenham, 19th September, 1653, and adminiſtration of her eſtate was granted to Humphrey Mayo, her grandſon, 19th May, 1665, at Hereford. and Thomas Mayo, his ſon and heir.

Both Catherine Mayo and her ſon suffered during the Civil Wars for their loyalty to the royal cauſe. The intereſting particulars here given are extracted from the Royaliſt Compoſition Papers in the Record Office, Second ſeries, vol. xlv. No. 611. The Loyalty of Catherine and Thomas Mayo.

"Katharine Mayo of Bodenham in the County of Hereford widdow. Her delinquency that in December laſt ſhe was ſequeſtered for adhearing to ye forces raiſed againſt the pliament. She peticoned here ye xxith. of March 1649. She compounds upon a Particuler delivered in under her hand by wch ſhe ſubmitts to ſuch fine, etc., and by wch it appears That ſhe is ſeiſed of a frank tenement for her

In the petition of Thomas Goodier of Lentoll Starks, an infant, Thomas Mayo of Bodenham appears as his next of kin and guardian.

The Regiſter of Bodenham mentions theſe children of Thomas Mayo:—"Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Mayoe gent. and Mary his wife," was baptiſed 9th July, 1635; Mary, another daughter, 9th January, 1636-7; Thomas, their ſon, 6th September, 1638; and Humphrey, 14th Auguſt, 1640. This ſon Thomas was buried 25th January, 1640-1.

In the Bodenham pariſh account books we have Mr. Mayoe paying a rate of 11*s.* 2*d.* in 1653. In 1656, Thomas Mayoe, gent., pays 19*s.* 4*d.* In 1667, Hum. Mayo, gent., pays 11*s.* 6*d.* "Humph. Mayo's" name appears as Churchwarden in 1662. In a valuation of the pariſh about this time occurs the entry, "Mr. Mayo for the Courtte, £44 16. 0."

A fine of lands in Wellington, Hannellwood, Pencombe, Bodenham, and Wiſterton.

Among the fines, in Michaelmas Term, anno 1664. Rot 81. 60. s. Hereff.ſs. occurs the following, relating to the eſtate of Thomas Mayo:—"Inter Willielmum Jarrett et Thom' Boys quer' et Thom. Humphrey Mayo, Sheriff of co. Hereford, ſon of the aforeſaid.

Humphrey Mayo, whoſe name has already been mentioned, reſided at Hope-under-Dinmore, in a manſion called the "Bury," and ſerved as High Sheriff of his County in 1698, and was buried at Hope, 28th March, 1715.[1] His will is in the Hereford Probate Regiſtry. "Humphrey Mayo, Eſq., of Hope-under-Dinmore, 19th January, 1713. All lands, etc., to my ſon, Thomas Mayo. My coz. Elizabeth Gorge. To my ſon William £600. To my four grandchildren, two ſons and two daughters, children of William Mayo, £100 a piece. A ſum of money to be inveſted in land for an annual charity for the poor of Hope-under-Dinmore, Wellington, and Bodenham. My daughter Grenowes and her huſband. Thomas Mayo executor. To be buried in the church of Hope." Proved 6th April, 1715.

There is a board now in Bodenham Church with a record of this bequeſt, which at the time of the Parliamentary Return of Charitable Donations, 1786-1788, vol. i., page 462, brought in £2 per annum.

Humphrey Mayo married and had iſſue four children, Thomas, William, Mary, and Jane, but the exiſting regiſter at Hope does not begin until long after the period of their birth. Thomas Mayo, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded his father at Hope, and like him, filled the office of High Sheriff in 1716. He was buried 24th Auguſt, 1719, and his will is at Hereford. "Thomas Mayo of Hope-under-Dinmore, gent., 14th Auguſt, 1719. All lands to my brother William Mayo. My ſiſter Mary Greenhouſe. My coz. Tamberlain Gwillim. My coz. Jane Hunt. My god-daughter Mary Mayo, and her ſiſter, and her two brothers. My coz. Elizabeth Gorges." Proved 26th Auguſt, 1719.

Thomas Mayo, Sheriff of co. Hereford,

He never married. His ſiſter Mary was married 4th June, 1713, at Hope, to "Mr. Greenouſe;" and ſhe was buried there as "Mrs. Mary Greenhouſe of Shropſhire," 12th June, 1728. From the Chancery proceedings hereafter to be mentioned, it appears that Mr. Greenhouſe was of Detton Hall in the pariſh of Neen Savage, Shropſhire, and that his wife made a will, 4th June, 1728.

Jane, the other ſiſter, was married to Tamberlain Gwillim, and had iſſue Tamberlain Gwillim, ſon and heir, baptiſed at Wellington, Herefordſhire, 21ſt April, 1696.

and William Mayo, M.P., his brother, ſons of Humphrey Mayo.

William Mayo, the ſecond ſon of Humphrey Mayo, of S. Peter's in Hereford, and of Hope-under-Dinmore, was admitted a freeman of Hereford, 13th October, 1691, and then deſcribed as gentleman, and was elected Member of Parliament for the City of Hereford in 1722, and died while in office, and was buried at Hope, 29th March, 1723, on the ſame day as Ann his daughter. His will was proved in the Prerogative Court, 24th April, 1723 (Richmond 80). "William Mayo of the pariſh of Hope-under-Dinmore, Eſq., 13th December, 1721. All meſſuages, lands, tenements, hereditaments, and premiſes whatſoever, both freehold and leaſehold eſtates, tythes, etc., to my ſon Thomas Mayo. My daughters Ann and Mary. To my wife Anna all houſehold goods, plate, jewells, with my coach and four mares and harneſs. My nephew Tamberlain Gwillim. My niece Jane wife of Creſwell Hunt. Thomas Mayo my ſon, ſole executor." On 20th December, 1736, commiſſion iſſued to James Hughes, of S. Clement Danes, to adminiſter the eſtate of the ſaid William Mayo, left unadminiſtered by Thomas Mayo, ſon of the ſaid deceaſed, alſo deceaſed, to the effect only to attend, ſupply, ſubſtantiate, and confirm the proceedings which had been already or might thereafter be had and made in certain cauſes or ſuits depending in the High Court of Chancery between Tamberlain Gwillim, plaintiff, and Rogers Holland, Eſq., Defendant, etc., concerning certain legacies given to Anne Mayo, ſpinſter, and Mary Holland, formerly Mayo, late wife of the ſaid Rogers Holland, reſpectively deceaſed, etc.

William Mayo married Anne or Anna ——, who was buried at Hope, 3rd July, 1733. They had iſſue the following children, regiſtered, ſo far as the firſt ſeven are concerned, at S. Peter's, Hereford.

Mary, baptiſed 26th July, 1692, and buried 23rd July, 1699.

Humphrey, baptiſed 18th September, 1694.

Auguſtine, buried 24th February, 1700-1.

Elizabeth, buried 23rd October, 1701.

Lewis, buried 8th July, 1702.

Thomas, buried 2nd August, 1702.

Gerrald or Gerrard, baptiſed 20th April, 1703.

Ann, buried at Hope, 29th March, 1723, unmarried (Adminiſtration P.C.C.).[1]

Mary, married at Hope, 1ſt March, 1730-1, to Rogers Holland, of Chippenham and of the Temple, London, M.P. for Chippenham, 1727-37, and ſubſequently a Welſh Judge. She died 28th March, 1736, having had one child who died in infancy.

Thomas, born in 1705, and matriculated at Oxford, 26th June, 1721, aged 16, from Trinity College, as ſon of William Mayo, "armiger," of Hope-under-Dinmore. He died young, and was buried at Hope, 13th July, 1730, though his burial is alſo entered at the ſame date in the regiſter of S. Peter's, Hereford. His will was proved in the Prerogative Court, 24th September, 1730 (Auber 262). Thomas, ſon of William Mayo, M.P.

"Thomas Mayo of Hope-under-Dinmore, Gentleman, 21ſt May, 1730. To my ſiſter all real and perſonal eſtate whatever. My mother. My aunt Wellington. My aunt Elizabeth Smith. My uncle Challis. My uncle Smith. My couſin Tamberlain Gwillim. To Herbert, third ſon of Mr Edmund Thomas, all my law books. My ſiſter executrix." Mary Mayo made oath that ſhe was the only ſiſter of the ſaid Thomas Mayo.

On 4th November, 1736, power was granted to Rogers Holland, Eſq., huſband of the above Mary Mayo, to adminiſter the eſtate of the late Thomas Mayo, left unadminiſtered by Mary Holland, alſo deceaſed.

With the death of Thomas Mayo this branch of the family became extinct, whereupon Tamberlain Gwillim, one of the clerks in the office of Arthur Trevor, Eſq., one of the Examiners of the Court of Chancery, filed a brief in Chancery The Mayo eſtate thrown into Chancery.

CHAPTER IV.

John Mayo, of Devizes, in the County of Wilts, and the Descendants of his Eldest Son, John Mayo, Vicar of Avebury.

WITH the prefent chapter commences an account of the defcendants of John Mayo, who was living in the parifh of S. John Baptift, in Devizes, Wilts, in the reigns of Charles II., James II., and William III., being the firft of his family to fettle in that town.

John Mayo, refiding at Devizes, Wilts,

He married, 25th April, 1671, at S. Mary's, Devizes, Joane, fecond daughter of William Hayes the elder, gentleman, of that parifh, and Katherine his wife, one of the Chief Burgeffes of Devizes in 1654. The entry in the regifter runs, "John Maio & Joan Hayes were married the 25th day of Aprill 1671." William Hayes was buried there 8th February, 1683-4, and Katherine Hayes, 29th January, 1685-6, but their daughter Joane was buried at S. John's, 27th December, 1719, where fhe had received baptifm 12th March 1646-7, having for many years furvived her hufband, who was buried at the latter church 4th September, 1692. It is probable that John Mayo was a fcion of the family of which an account has been given in the preceding chapter. His fon Charles went to Hereford at an early age, and fettled in the parifh in which refided William Mayo, a few years later Member of Parliament for that city, and at the age of twenty-four married the daughter of one of the principal citizens; and it may be noted that John Mayo calls his third fon Humphrey, a name which has already been feen to have been in favour with the Herefordfhire family. A tradition of kinfhip with Richard Mayo, Bifhop of Hereford, has prevailed among the defcendants of John Mayo.

marries Joane Hayes,

Ten children were the iffue of the marriage of John Mayo with Joane Hayes.

and has ten children.

I. John, baptifed 30th Auguft, 1673.

II. William, baptifed 5th January, 1674-5. He married Frances . . . . ., by whom he had feven children, as appears from the regifter of S. John's, Devizes; viz., Richard, baptifed 1ft November, 1700, and buried 23rd April, 1701; Jeane, baptiſed 6th November, 1702; Frances-Anderſon, baptiſed 27th December, 1703; Robert, baptiſed 25th September, 1705, and buried 11th January, 1707-8; Sarah, baptiſed 18th March, 1706-7, and buried 18th May, 1708; Robert, baptiſed 29th July, 1708, and buried 1ſt Auguſt, 1708; and Mary, buried 12th Auguſt, 1710.

III. Humphrey, baptiſed 3rd January, 1676-7.

IV. Jane, baptiſed 3rd December, 1678. She died 4th November, 1751, having been married to Jacob Maynard at S. Mary's, Devizes, 19th December, 1703, by whom ſhe was the mother of three children, Jane, baptiſed 18th October, 1705; James, baptiſed 20th October, 1707, and died 4th November, 1786, aged ſeventy-nine; and Mayo, baptiſed 2nd Auguſt, 1710, and buried 6th January, 1711-12. Jacob Maynard had previouſly married at S. John's Church, 10th April, 1702, Mary Hillier, who was buried there 21ſt July, 1703. He was himſelf buried 28th July, 1719.

In the churchyard of S. John's Church, a little to the north of the weſt door, is a flat ſtone with the inſcription, "Jane Maynard, daughter of John Mayo and Joan his wife, died 4th of November 1751, aged 73 years." Some older monuments bearing the name of Mayo are ſpoken of, but they cannot now be diſcovered.

V. Henry, baptiſed 10th October, 1680, and buried 20th July, 1683.

VI. Charles, baptiſed 18th November, 1682, and buried 28th February, 1682-3.

VII. Henry, baptiſed 15th April, 1684, and buried 15th February, 1684-5.

VIII. Charles, baptiſed 21ſt March, 1685-6.

IX. Henry, baptiſed 2nd October, 1688.

X. James, baptiſed 17th Auguſt, 1691. In this caſe the entry runs, "James, ſon of Jo. May [ſic] and Joane his wife."

To this point, unleſs where otherwiſe ſtated, the dates of baptiſm, marriage, and burial are taken from the regiſter of S. John Baptiſt, Devizes.

Attention will henceforth be directed to the deſcendants of two of theſe ten children of John Mayo and Joane (née Hayes), viz., to John (I.) and Charles (VIII.).

John Mayo, his eldeſt ſon, educated at Oxford,

John Mayo, their eldeſt ſon, baptiſed, as we have ſeen, 30th Auguſt, 1673, matriculated at Oxford, 16th October, 1695, from Hart Hall, but by an error in the regiſter he is then ſtated to be 18 years of age. Some interval elapſed between his leaving the Univerſity and receiving holy orders, as he was not ordained until the year 1704, when on the 24th of September he was admitted to the Diaconate in Saliſbury Cathedral by Biſhop Burnet, and licenſed to the curacy of All Cannings. In the regiſter of ordinations, he is deſcribed as "Civiliſta," that is, Civilian, or Student of Civil Law. He was ordained Prieſt 3rd June, 1705, by the ſame prelate, and licenſed to Calne.

becomes Vicar of Avebury.

On 12th November, 1712, he was inſtituted to the Vicarage of Avebury, Wilts (S. James), on the preſentation of the Queen, void by the death of John White, the laſt incumbent, which living he held until 1746, when he reſigned, and his ſecond ſon was appointed his ſucceſſor. In a copy of the poll for electing a Knight of the Shire for the County, taken at Wilton, 8th September, 1713, his name occurs as a freeholder under the qualification of Avebury (Gough's Collections for Wilts, Bodleian Library).

During his incumbency was caſt the tenor bell now in Avebury Church, which bears the inſcription, "John Roſe, James Pope, churchwardens. Richard Phelps, London, Nat : Par : Hujus fecit 1719. The Reverend Mr. John Mayo, Vicar."

Two letters only from the pen of John Mayo are known to be in exiſtence. They are in the poſſeſſion of Mr. Thomas Kemm, the Manor Houſe, Avebury, and

Letter of John Mayo, clerk, to Lady Holford.

MADAM,

I receiv'd the Honr. of your Ladyps of the 21ſt Inſtant for wch I humbly thank you. Tho' I troubled yor. Ladyp. ſo very lately yet I preſume this will not be unwellcome to you becauſe of the Good News it brings after the very melancholy Tydings of my former. I heartily thank Or. Heavenly Father that he has heard or. Prayers; for the Burials at Avebury are ceas'd, there having been no Funeral for a Week paſt, & nobody at p'ſent is dangerouſly ill. I am ſorry to alloy this good Advice with bad for this day ſev'night in the night was a very violent Shower of rain mixt with Lightening, the former cauſd a great Flood wch. ſpoild the Crop in the water meadows, & the later fired a Carpenters Houſe at Broad Hinton. I am very glad yor. laſt did not mention anything of yor. Ladyps Illneſs & I am very willing to hope 'twas becauſe there was no occaſion for it; no grounds for ſuch unwelcome news. The late Sickneſs did not reach Bechampton. I thank God I & all my Family continue pretty well. We beg yor. Ladyp. to accept of or. moſt humble Duty & Mr Holford of or. moſt humble Service. I cannot forget yor. Charity to the Poor wch. I hope will come up as a Memorial before God to yor. Eternal Advantage wch. will infinitely exceed the Profitts of the South Sea, neither can I be unmindfull of kindneſſes to, my very good Lady,

Yor Ladyps moſt obedient

THE AUTOGRAPH OF JOHN MAYO, VICAR OF AVEBURY.

It may be noted that the pariſh regiſter ſhows that nine deaths occurred in May, 1720, and the number of burials in that year was much above the average. Both theſe letters are ſealed with a coat of arms, "Argent, on a chevron ſable between three roſes a lily," the coat that is aſſigned to Richard Mayo, Biſhop of Hereford.

He marries Mary Hayward.

John Mayo married Mary, daughter of — Hayward, a medical man at Calne, who ſurvived him and was buried there 13th Auguſt, 1755. He himſelf had been buried at Avebury 15th December, 1752, where his monument ſtill remains, partly covering a large family vault in the churchyard below the eaſt window of the church.

It is thus inſcribed:—

His monument,

"M: S: JOHANNIS MAYO Deviſis in hoc Com: nat: in Aula: Cervin: Oxon: erud: et per annos XXXIII hujus Eccl: Vicar: ob: 10 D. Decrs A. 1752 bonorum Operum et Dierum plenus. Et: 80. Johan: et Jacob: Filii P: P:"

Subjoined is a ſhort abſtract of his will, proved in the Court of the Treaſurer of Sarum. John Mayo of Calne, Wilts, clerk, 13th February, 1750. My only daughter Elizabeth Tucker. To my eldeſt ſon, John Mayo, my three eſtates at Colſtone in the county aforeſaid, after the deceaſe of my wife, viz. thoſe called Grays, Hiſcocks, and Gouwins,—for the lives they ſhall be held by at my deceaſe. To my ſon James Mayo, my executor, my houſe, garden, &c. at Calne. Sworn at Devizes, 14th September, 1753. (Seal, a double-headed eagle diſplayed.) and Will.

John Mayo and Mary (née Hayward) had four children, Elizabeth, John, James, and Benjamin.

Eliſabeth, their only daughter, was born at Calne, 1ſt May, 1711, according to an entry in the regiſter there, and was married to Thomas Tucker, a medical man reſiding in that town, where ſhe lived for many years and was buried 28th April, 1797, having long ſurvived her huſband. Under the date 1ſt December, 1758, the Calne regiſter records that "Mr. Thomas Tucker, Doctor of Phyſick, was buried." His daughter, Elizabeth.

John Mayo, the eldeſt ſon, was born 30th September and baptiſed 2nd October, 1713, at Calne, according to the Avebury regiſter, that of Calne recording his birth only. He matriculated at Oxford 14th October, 1730, from Queen's College, aged 17. A bible dated 1634, now in the poſſeſſion of Mrs. Thirmuthis Baker, contains the entry, "This Bible was given me by my Grandmother Hayward, when I went to Oxford in the year 1730. J. M." He graduated as B.C.L. 10th June, 1737, having on the 30th of June in the preceding year been ordained Deacon in the chapel of the palace, Saliſbury, by Biſhop Sherlock, and licenſed to the curacy of Calne. On 8th November, 1737, he was inſtituted to the Rectory of Beechingſtoke (S. Stephen), upon the preſentation of John Mayo, ſenior, clerk, of Calne, void by the death of John Chapman; and on 26th April, 1762, to the Vicarage of Wilcot (H. Croſs) in the patronage of George Wroughton, on the reſignation of Robert Smith. His eldeſt ſon, John Mayo, B.C.L., Rector of Beechingſtoke, and V. of Wilcot.

"My father bought the next preſentation of M^r. Walker; the incumbent then was one M^r. Chapman of Bath, who was then ſo healthy and ſtrong a man that my father's beſt friends told him that Mr Chapman's life was as good as mine; but in leſs than two years after the purchaſe, viz. May 1737, Mr Chapman died. I was then in my 24th year. In the month of Novr. that year I was inſtituted and inducted." "In the year 1743 I began building the Parſonage houſe, and finiſhed it entirely at my own expenſe without demanding or receiving anything from Mr Chapman's executors for dilapidations. In the year 1744 I came to reſide with my family in my new houſe." "At Mich: 1753 I entered upon my Parſonage and commenced Farmer, and had the firſt year about 50 qrs. of wheat upon the glebe lands Notes from the Beechingſtoke Regiſter.

and tythes. I went to Devizes Market and ſold the corn myſelf, and conſtantly attended the tything of hay and corn." "In the year 1755 I was nominated a Commiſſioner of the Land Tax, and in the year 1757 I acted with Mr Poore of Ruſhall, Mr Shergold Rector of Little Cheverell, and Squire W . . . of Conock." "In the year 1756 I ſerved in perſon as Surveyor of the Highways, and cauſed a coach-quarter to be cut from Limber Stone to Catnam Coppice." "At Mich : 1757, upon an accurate ſurvey of my receipts, I found that in the four years I had had it in hand the Parſonage had brought me in 370 pounds and upwards more than the rent."

In a copy of a "Poll for the County of Wilts, 1772" (Bodl: Lib: B. F. 11. 384), John Mayo is recorded as voting for Ambroſe Goddard, his qualification being Bitchamſtoke (i.e. Beechingſtoke), but his reſidence Woodborough, the next pariſh. By his will, dated 14th July, 1778, and proved in the Prerogative Court, 13th February, 1779 (Warburton, 63), he appointed as his truſtees William Barwis, M.D., and William Clare, ſurgeon, both of Devizes, Wilts. He married Barbara, by whom he had five children, John-Hayward, John, Lucy, James, and Charles. Theſe inſcriptions are in the chancel of Beechingſtoke Church. On the north wall, "To the memory of the Rev. John Mayo, 40 years Rector of this Pariſh and 17 years Vicar of Wilcot, who died Jan. 25th, 1779, aged 65 years." On the ſouth wall, "Sacred to the memory of Mrs. Barbara Mayo, widow of the Rev. John Mayo, late Rector of this Pariſh and Vicar of Wilcot, who died Feb. 11th, 1796, aged 77 years. Alſo of Mrs. Lucy Mayo, their daughter, who died Feb. 4th, 1812, aged 67 years."

To paſs on to their five children :—

1. John-Hayward, born 8th Auguſt, 1741 (Beechingſtoke regiſter). The regiſter of Calne under 8th Auguſt, 1741, records the baptiſm of "John-Hayward ſon of Mr John Mayo, Rectr. of Beeching-Stoke," and his burial on the 21ſt of the ſame month.

2. John, born 16th June, 1742 (Beechingſtoke regiſter). He lived at S. Mary's, Devizes, and married at S. John's Church there, 24th April, 1781, by licence, Elizabeth Hillier, of the latter pariſh. They died without iſſue.

3. Lucy, born 13th Auguſt, and baptiſed 17th September, 1744 (Beechingſtoke regiſter). She lived at her birthplace with her brother Charles, and died there 4th February, 1812, aged 67. Her will is in the Prerogative Court (Oxford, 184).

4. James, born 19th January, and baptiſed 17th February, 1746 (Beechingſtoke regiſter). He died 15th November, 1802, and adminiſtration to his eſtate was granted in the following month, P.C.C. He married Mary, daughter of Samuel Saunders of Ilminſter.[1] Her will is dated 6th May, 1826, and was proved in John Mayo late Rector of this Pariſh and Vicar of Wilcot, who died Nov. 15th, 1802, aged 55 years. Alſo of Mary his widow who died Aug. 24th 1830, aged 80 years."

5. Charles Mayo, fifth child of John and Barbara Mayo, was born 7th December, and baptiſed 15th February, 1750, at Beechingſtoke. He matriculated at Oxford 29th April, 1767, aged 16, from Queen's College, and proceeded to the degrees of B.A. 8th February, 1771, M.A. 7th July, 1774, and B.C.L. 1ſt February, 1779. On the 1ſt of May, 1775, he was inſtituted to the Rectory of Huiſh (S. Nicholas) on the preſentation of the Truſtees of Froxfield Hoſpital, of which he was chaplain, and to Beechingſtoke, 8th February, 1779, on the preſentation of John Walker Heneage, and held both livings until his death. He was a man of great ſimplicity of character, and was thought to bear a conſiderable reſemblance in perſon to Dr. Syntax. As an inſtance of his abſence of mind the ſtory is told that a friend met him one day, deep in thought, walking from Devizes to Beechingſtoke with his horſe's bridle hung over his arm, from which the beaſt had ſlipped its head, without the owner, who had been leading it, becoming aware of its eſcape, until arouſed from his reverie. His leiſure was principally devoted to literary purſuits, and he was the author of four works, of which the titles are given below.

Charles Mayo, M.A., B.C.L., his youngeſt ſon, Rector of Huiſh and Beechingſtoke,

"A Chronological Hiſtory of the European States, with their Diſcoveries and Settlements, from the Treaty of Nimeguen in 1678 to the cloſe of the year 1792, etc. Alſo Biographical Sketches of the Sovereigns who have reigned during that period, and of thoſe perſons who have been principally intereſted as Stateſmen, Warriors, Patriots, etc. Bath: Printed by S. founds two exhibitions for ſons of Wiltſhire clergy.

By an indenture dated 23rd February, 1829, made between himſelf and the Truſtees of the Somerſet Hoſpital at Froxfield, after reciting that he had placed the ſum of £2,500 in their hands, and ſtating that he was deſirous to teſtify his attachment to the Church, and to check the progreſs of Infidelity on the one hand and of Fanaticiſm and Calviniſm on the other, Charles Mayo directed that the aforeſaid ſum ſhould accumulate for 21 years after his death, and that the intereſt ſhould then be applied, to the amount of £70 per annum, as an exhibition to be held at any College in Oxford, for a period not exceeding ſeven years, by the ſon of a clergyman reſident for 15 years in the County of Wilts. By 7th Auguſt, 1833, the truſt-fund had reached the ſum of £3,177 13*s.* 10*d.*, and the Truſtees have ſince been able to provide exhibitions for two ſcholars. Memoir of Charles Mayo in "Gent. Magazine."

Charles Mayo's will was dated 4th November, 1829, and proved in the Prerogative Court, (Beard 268,) and on the 27th of the ſame month he died, and was buried at Beechingſtoke. A ſhort memoir in the "Gentleman's Magazine," vol. xcix., narrates that "He has given by his will £100 ſtock to the fund for the relief of the widows and orphans of the clergy in the Dioceſe of Saliſbury, and a ſmall annual ſum to the future Rectors of his late pariſhes for the ſupply of books to the young and for the occaſional relief of the aged and infirm. His remains were attended to the grave by his brother, his executors, two of his neareſt relatives, and by the Rev. Archdeacon Macdonald, and by all the clergy of the immediate neighbourhood, with whom, as with their predeceſſors during that long period, he lived on the terms of the greateſt cordiality and friendſhip."

CHARLES MAYO, M.A., B.C.L., 1750-1829.

He rebuilt the chancel of Beechingſtoke in 1791 and the Rectory Houſe of Huiſh at his own expenſe. In the former is this inſcription on the north wall :—

"Alſo to the memory of the Rev. Charles Mayo, 54 years Rector of Huiſh, and 50 years Rector of this Pariſh, who died 27th Nov. 1829, aged 78 years."

THE AUTOGRAPH OF CHARLES MAYO, M.A., B.C.L.

VERSES ADDRESSED TO CHARLES MAYO, AUTHOR UNKNOWN.

Verſes addreſſed to Charles Mayo.

Charles, e'er his five-and-twentieth year,
Two Livings had, three hundred clear ;
His Parſonage was a ſnug retreat,
A d—d convenient houſe and neat ;

For fuel there's ſufficient wood,
And, God be thanked, the cellar's good.
But not the joys that quiet yields,
Nor garden, houſe, nor fruitful fields,
Could Charles content, he loathed his home,
He loved to ramble, loved to roam.
He flies through England, Scotland, Wales,
Acroſs the Dover Streights he ſails,
Of travelled youths becomes the flow'r,
And with Squire Awdry makes the tour,
Till tired at laſt he home returns,
His coach he ſells, his journal burns.
Now fix'd, content, he taps his barrel,
Exhorts his neighbours not to quarrel ;
With tythes his barns replete he ſees,
And chuckles o'er his ſurplice fees ;
Studies to find out latent dues,
And regulates the ſtate of pews,
Rides a dun mare with purple houſing
To ſhare the monthly club's carouſing ;
Sends preſents of his choiceſt fruit,
And prunes himſelf each ſapleſs ſhoot ;
Plants colliflow'rs, and boaſts to rear
The earlieſt melons of the year ;
Builds in his copſe a fav'rite bench,
And ſtores his pond with carp and tench.
  But what are all the joys of life
Without the firſt,—a loving wife ?
Or what's a table richly spread
Without a woman at its head ?
Charles then muſt wed, ere 'tis too late ;
He looks around to find a mate ;
And (his diſcernment all muſt own)
Picks out a couſin of his own,
Not over weighty in the purſe
(But many doctors have done worſe),
And, though ſhe boaſt no charms divine,
Yet ſhe can carve, and make birch wine.
How happy now the hours glide
Round loveſick Charles's fire-ſide !
He muſt, 'tis true, remain at home,
But from her could he wiſh to roam ?
  Alas ! too ſoon his thoughtleſs breaſt
By cares domeſtic is oppreſt ;
And a third butcher's bill and brewing
Threaten inevitable ruin ;
For children freſh expenſes get,
And Charley now for ſchool is fit.

"Why did I ſell my quiet life,"
He cries, "for family and wife?
Return, ye days, when endleſs pleaſure
I found in reading or in leiſure!
No cares were then for forward peas
A yearly-longing wife to pleaſe;
My thoughts no Chriſt'ning dinner croſt,
No children cried for butter'd toaſt,
And every night I went to bed
No care nor ſorrow in my head."

Charles Mayo was at this time engaged to his couſin Mercy-Beata Mayo, but he never married. (See chapter vii.)

One of his letters to this lady, addreſſed, "Miſs M. B. Mayo, Mrs. Mayo's, St. Owen's Street, Hereford," is intereſting on account of the perſonal alluſions which it contains.

Stoke, Tueſday,
3d June, 1787.

My dear Merbe,—

"I moſt heartily rejoice with you & Mrs Mayo upon your Brother's ſucceſs at the Foundling Hoſpital. Such a Teſtimony of his merit from ſo numerous & reſpectable a Body will certainly place him in the moſt advantageous light, & be of very eſſential ſervice to him in his Entrance upon Practice. We are much pleaſed with my little Worthy's Attention to poor Lucy. I hope you will ever find her deſerving of it, and that this kindneſs will lead to a Friendſhip that will contribute much to the Happineſs of both, and conſequently to that of your humble ſervant. I have been full of engagemts ſince my Return. Amongſt the reſt, tell Lucy, Mr Coham[1] dined here upon his parochial viſitation. Dr. Gibbes[2] met him, and Mr Heneage took me on his way from Earl Stoke, where he had been to make a kind of complimentary viſit upon the approaching Marriage of Miſs Smith to Ld. Compton, ſon of Ld. Northampton. Your Uncle and Joe[3] likewiſe were here. All in good Humour; and we ſpent a pleaſant Day, of courſe. Joe is wonderfully improved by the Univerſity. Has now all the appearance of being a worthy young man. We are going together to day to meet the Gibbes's at Mr Hazeland's. The other day we eſcorted my mother to Woodborough, and we are ſoon to have a grand Gala at Wootton.[4] I am much flattered by the Honour confer'd on me at Mrs Bethel's, and hope to hear it is often repeated. Benjamin Mayo, B.A., third ſon of John Mayo and Mary née Hayward.

The narrative now returns to Benjamin, third ſon of John Mayo and Mary (née Hayward), omitting for the preſent his elder brother, James. Benjamin was born 2nd July and baptiſed, 30th July, 1720, at Calne, (Calne and Avebury regiſters,) and matriculated at Oxford from Queen's College, 28th April, 1737, aged 17, and graduated B.A., 6th February, 1740. He then ſettled at his birthplace, where he practiſed the art of medicine until his death on 17th November, 1750. He was buried there on the 23rd of the ſame month. This epitaph has been preſerved among the family papers, but cannot now be diſcovered in the church.

"Memoriæ ſacrum Benjamini Mayo, Collegii Reginenſis Oxoniâ Commenſalis et Artium Baccalaurei, poſtea de hoc oppido Pharmacopolæ. Obiit xv Kalendis Novembris, anno Salutis milleſimo Septingenteſimo quinquageſimo."

The following is an abſtract of his Will, proved in the Court of the Treaſurer of Sarum. Benjamin Mayo of Calne, Wilts, apothecary, 16 November, 1750. My brother John Mayo. My brother James Mayo; to him all money due from the eſtate of George Stretch of Bewchampton deceaſed. Money upon truſt to Rev. Dr Edmund Aubery and Rev. Mr Atkinſon of Langley Burrell, to apply the intereſt to the uſe of my honoured father and mother, and, after their deceaſe, to the ſole and ſeparate uſe of my ſiſter, Elizabeth Tucker, my executrix. Sworn at Calne, 27 June, 1751.

James Mayo, B.A., ſecond ſon of John Mayo and Mary, née Hayward,

James Mayo, ſecond ſon of John Mayo and Mary (née Hayward), was born at Calne at 9 o'clock in the morning of Trinity Sunday, 27 May, and baptiſed 3rd June, 1716, according to the Avebury register; and the Calne regiſter, in the liſt of births, has the entry, "James ſon of Mr. John Mayo of Abury, 27th May, 1716." He matriculated at Oxford, 15th May, 1734, from Queen's College, aged 18, and took his degree of B.A., 18th May, 1738. He was ordained Deacon, 17th June, 1739, by Thomas, Biſhop of Oxford, in Chriſt Church Cathedral, and Prieſt in the chapel of the Palace, Saliſbury, 5th September, 1743, and was then licenſed to the Curacy of Avebury. On 4th February, 1746, he was inſtituted to

becomes Vicar of Avebury,

that Vicarage, being preſented by the Crown on his father's reſignation, and this living he held, with that of Winterborne Moncton, alſo in the gift of the Crown, and which was united to Avebury in the following year. In 1757 he became ſecond maſter of the Calne Grammar School, and the next year, on 11th October, 1758, was promoted to the Head Maſterſhip. At a meeting of the Truſtees of this ſchool, on 25th June, 1757, it was ordered, "That the Rev. James Mayo, of Avebury, be and is hereby appointed Uſher of the ſaid ſchool from henceforth under Mr. Rogers the preſent maſter during the pleaſure of the Truſtees of the ſaid School, to teach the boys of the town and pariſh of Calne under the ſame orders and directions as were made on 27th of September 1734 by the seven truſtees then being in the ſaid truſt, with this difference only that nine boys ſhall be educated in the Latin tongue, inſtead of ſeven, the preſent number of the truſtees being nine." Carliſle's "Grammar Schools," vol. ii., page 742.

Maſter of Calne Grammar School,

On 23rd March, 1767, he was inſtituted to the Rectory of Ditteridge, vacant by the death of Mark Hall, on the preſentation of William Northy, of Ivy Houſe, Chippenham, and was re-inſtituted to Avebury on the ſecond day of the following July. At the poll for the county election in 1772, before mentioned, James Mayo voted for Ambroſe Goddard, his place of reſidence then being at Calne, but his qualification at Avebury. James Mayo died 1ſt September, and was buried 8th September, 1788, at Avebury, aged 72. His will is in the Records of the Court of the Treaſurer of Sarum. James Mayo, the elder, of Calne, clerk, 17 July, 1788. To my loving friends Charles Mayo of Beechingſtoke, clerk, and John Flower, of Calne, Schoolmaſter, my freehold meſſuage or tenement at Quemerford, with all the cloſes thereto belonging, which I purchaſed of ——— Street;—in truſt to ſell them and to apply the proceeds to the uſe of my wife and family. Sworn 27th Auguſt, 1789.

and Rector of Ditteridge.

His Will.

James Mayo twice married; on the firſt occaſion Mary Blanchard, who died 29th October, and was buried at Calne, 2nd November, 1767, aged 39; and ſecondly, in 1769, Ann Roſe, who died 15th July, at Sarum, and was buried 20th July, 1814, at Avebury, aged 71.

He twice marries, and has iſſue 22 children.

By his firſt wife he had iſſue—

His will was proved in the Prerogative Court (Herſhell 537).

James Mayo and Jane (née Barfoot) had iſſue ten children. He has ten children.

I. James, born 9th September and admitted 1ſt November, 1784 (Wimborne regiſter). He matriculated at Oxford 14th January, 1802, aged 17, from Queen's College, and graduated, as of Pembroke College, B.A. 14th November, 1805, M.A. 15th January, 1810. He became ſecond maſter of Wimborne Grammar School in 1802, and ſucceeded his father in the head maſterſhip in 1822. He was Vicar of Guſſage All Saints, 1817-1833, and Vicar of S. Peter's, Shafteſbury, 1819-1823, and on his father's death was inſtituted to Avebury cum Winterborne Monc- 1. James Mayo, M.A., Head Maſter of Wimborne Grammar School, ton at the date laſt named. He married, 17th November, 1829, Jane, daughter of Joſeph Willis, of Norden in Purbeck, but had no children. Their monument may be ſeen in Wimborne Churchyard, weſt of the church.

"The Rev. James Mayo, A.M., Vicar of Avebury, Wilts, and many years Maſter of the Free Grammar School in this town, died Augt. 18th, 1851, aged 66. Jane, the wife of the Rev. James Mayo, A.M., died July 29th, 1846, aged 43."

2. John Mayo of Stoke next Guildford.

II. John, born 15th February, and admitted 17th October, 1786 (Wimborne regiſter), was in the Eaſt India Houſe, and reſided in Connaught Terrace, London, and afterwards at Stoke-next-Guildford. He married, 24th December, 1831, at S. Mary Magdalene, Paddington, Matilda (born 2nd July, 1798), daughter of Major Robert Horſley, 11th Light Dragoons. He died in London, and was buried at Avebury, 9th March, 1866, where his monument bears the inſcription:—

"Sacred to the Memory of John Mayo of Stoke-next-Guildford, Surrey.
Born 15 Feb. 1786. Died 2 Mar. 1866.
Second ſon of the Rev. James Mayo
Vicar of this pariſh, 1789-1822.
By grace ye are ſaved. Ephes. ii. 5."

He had four children, all baptiſed at S. M. Magdalene, Paddington.

1. Matilda-Jane, born 18th January, 1833, and married 24th March, 1860, at Stoke-next-Guildford to her couſin James Druitt, of Chriſtchurch, Hants (Chapter IX.).

2. Mary, born 22nd May, 1834.

3. Iſabella-Horſley, born 2nd June, 1836.

4. John-Horſley, born 26th November, 1838, of the India Office.

3. Mary Mayo.

III. Mary, born 23rd September, 1787, and admitted 5th February, 1789 (Wimborne regiſter). She died 28th October, 1844, and was buried at Tarrant Keynſton.

4. Charles Mayo, F.R.C.S., of Winchester.

IV. Charles, born 29th December, 1788, and admitted 5th February, 1789 (Wimborne regiſter). He was educated in his father's houſe at Wimborne Grammar School, and after paſſing through the courſe of inſtruction at S. Bartholomew's Hoſpital, became, on the 5th April, 1811, a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, and very ſoon afterwards, hearing that the Governors of the County Hoſpital at Winchester deſired to increaſe their ſtaff, came down and was elected ſurgeon to that Hoſpital.

It is added in a memoir in the "Medical Times and Gazette," December, 1876, that "of courſe this could not be expected to be altogether pleaſing to the exiſting functionaries, who for a time gave him, as he thought, no cordial co-operation. The following letter from Mr. Abernethy, dated Aug. 1812, at the time when Charles Mayo was preparing for his firſt operation of lithotomy, will tell its own tale as to the ſtate of feeling at the time. It will alſo ſhow how thoroughly Abernethy was prepared to back his old pupil."

Letter from Abernethy.

"My dear Sir,—If the governors of any hoſpital entruſted me with the care of patients, I would take care to do my duty to the beſt of my ability. I would not bleed and purge a patient repeatedly, prior to an operation for lithotomy to the extent you deſcribe, at the ſuggeſtion of any man, if it did not appear to me proper. There is but one general rule for a man's conduct: Do as you would be done unto. I would not defer the operation beyond that time when it ſeemed moſt conducive to the patient's welfare to perform it. You know I uſe a gorget, which cuts as well as any knife I ever tried, and has the advantage of being a conductor for the forceps. If I uſe a knife it ſhould be ſuch a one as Mr. Cooper uſes. I know not what to adviſe you to do. You repreſent your patient as much reduced, and if the ſubject were unfavourable for an operation, I would rather ſend him to a London Hoſpital than run the riſk of his dying after an operation, however well you might perform it. This is the beginning of my lectures. I have ſcarcely time to write. Had it happened at any other ſeaſon I would have gone to Wincheſter.

"Yours moſt ſincerely,

"J. Abernethy."

Charles Mayo's ſkill as a lithotomiſt,

"The operation was performed and the patient recovered. From this time forward, up to the year 1870, Charles Mayo's life was one of the buſieſt profeſſional work. He gained conſiderable reputation as a lithotomiſt, which was brought to a climax by his ſucceſsful extraction of one of the largeſt ſtones on record, weighing more than fourteen ounces, in December, 1818. As a lithotomiſt his manner of proceeding and inſtruments were bold and ſimple, in imitation of Cheſelden. He performed ſeveral operations for axillary and other aneuriſms, ſome of which were made known through the "Medical and Chirurgical Tranſactions," a caſe of complete tranſpoſition of the viſcera, caſes of deep encyſted tumours in the neck ("Lancet"), and caſes of epiſpadias. Hernia, in all its varieties, came under his notice, and the laſt entry in his caſe-book is one of obdurated hernia, entered in 1873, at the age 84. His experience, too, in the obſtetric department was very large. He was a thorough lover of profeſſional work, allowed nothing to interfere with the diſcharge of his duties, and ſhowed a genuine kindneſs to all who were in real diſtreſs or trouble. He was a man of exuberant health and activity, up early and late, and never ſeeming to feel hunger or fatigue,—ſo, at leaſt, ſome of his pupils uſed to think when he ſummoned them to make poſt-mortem examinations, dreſs compound fractures, and do other unſavoury work at the hoſpital before breakfaſt. He had many pupils,—in fact, for many years Wincheſter was quite equal to one of the ſmaller London hoſpitals in the extent of its practice and means of profeſſional education. His old pupils became lifelong and devotion to his profeſſion.

friends, and ſoon forgot the cauſtic epithets with which their maſter irritated their ſelf-eſteem, eſpecially when they thought they had done ſomething clever. They forgot the rough ſurface, and valued the ſterling metal underneath. The practice of the hoſpital in Charles Mayo's hands was homely, but effective. It would be difficult anywhere, with any apparatus, to turn out better ſet fractures than Mayo turned out with ſimple wooden ſplints."

Is thrice Mayor of Wincheſter.

On 11th December, 1843, he was made Honorary Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons. He was on three occaſions Mayor of Wincheſter, in 1840, 1845, and 1852. In 1851 the citizens gave him a grand entertainment in honour of the fortieth anniverſary of his hoſpital appointment. He could never believe that he was growing old, and diſliked the honour done him by removing him from the active to the conſulting ſtaff of the hoſpital in 1870, when in his 83rd year. In 1874 he became blind, but found occupation and ſolace in daily attendance at the cathedral ſervice. He died 27th November, 1876, having nearly completed his 88th year, and was buried on the 1ſt of December. The former part of the funeral ſervice was chorally rendered in the cathedral, and the body ſubſequently interred in the cemetery. He married 11th February, 1836, at S. Thomas, Wincheſter, Jane, daughter of Thomas Dennis, of Hazlemere, Surrey, and Overton, Hants, Clerk in Holy Orders.[1]

He marries Jane Dennis.

Her monument in Wincheſter Cathedral.

In the ſouth aiſle of the cathedral is a monument with this inſcription:—" M.S. She was buried in S. Thomas's churchyard.

The children of Charles Mayo and Jane (née Dennis) were four in number, and were baptiſed at S. Thomas's, Wincheſter.

[1] Thomas Dennis was born at Bramſhot, and matriculated at Oxford 31ſt May, 1783, aged 18, from Magdalen Hall. He did not graduate. He publiſhed "A New Verſion of the Pſalms in Blank Verſe, with a Latin Verſion of the Eighth Pſalm in Alcaic Verſe. By the Rev. Thomas Dennis, Curate of Haſlemere, Surrey. London; Printed for J. White, Horace's Head, Fleet-Street, 1808." pp. iv. and 272. He had a brother, Whitehead Dennis, alſo in Holy Orders, born at Bramſhot, and matriculated at Oxford 26th February, 1778, aged 16, from Queen's College, B.A. 17th December, 1781, M.A. 19th March, 1785. Their father was Jonathan Dennis (ſon of Nathaniel Dennis), born in Cauldbeck, Cumberland, matriculated at Oxford 9th July, 1728, aged 17, from Queen's College, B.A. 6th April, 1733, M.A. 8th July, 1737. dation of Winchester College, from August, 1848, and thence elected to New College, where he was subsequently Fellow. He matriculated at Oxford, 3rd July, 1856, aged 19, and having obtained a third class in Classical Moderations, graduated B.A. 8th December, 1859, and M.A. 16th October, 1863. His taste for archæology is seen in his first literary effort, "A History of Wimborne Minster, the Collegiate Church of Saint Cuthberga, and King's Free Chapel at Wimborne. London, Bell and Daldy, 1860," pp. vi. and 136. It is illustrated with anastatic plates and wood engravings, and was published anonymously.

Fellow of New College,

"The book," to quote an obituary notice in the "Medical Times and Gazette," October, 1877, "is one which from the fulness of detail, from the skill and perspicuity with which the successive stages in the construction of an ancient church are described, would have done credit to any antiquary or architect. Another example of his scientific tastes may be seen in an invention which he made a few years later for propelling ships, of which he had models made, and for which he took out a patent dated 30th July, 1867. He entered warmly upon his professional pursuits, becoming M.R.C.S. in 1861, and going to Vienna for some months study. He proceeded also to Prague, where he studied the laryngoscope under Czermak and Türck, and before his return to England visited all the chief hospitals in Germany, and made himself complete master of the theory and practice of hospital construction. On his return he served a short time as House Surgeon to the Radcliffe Infirmary at Oxford."

"But now the Civil War was raging in America, and thither he bent his steps in October, 1862, where his credentials procured him a hearty reception. Of his life and adventures at this period, he has given a full account in a paper contributed to 'Vacation Tourists and Notes of Travel in 1862-3. Edited by Francis Galton. 1864. Macmillan. 8vo.' It is called 'The Medical Service of the Federal Army,' pp. 372-417. He underwent a week's examination by the Surgeon-General's Department, which was essential for taking a staff appointment, and then was fortunate enough to obtain one of the best appointments in the service, that of taking charge of sick and wounded volunteer officers in Washington itself. During an interval when work was lighter than usual he had the opportunity of visiting the army of the Potomac, under General Hooker, opposite Fredericksburg; and soon after his return to Washington he obtained the position of Staff Surgeon-Major and Medical Inspector of the 13th Army Corps, and was ordered to Vicksburg to join Grant's army besieging that place. Diarrhœa and malaria, which ravaged the armies on both sides, did not spare the doctors, and Mayo was obliged to resign in order to save his life. After a narrow escape of being blown up with a steamer in which he was to have travelled, and a visit to Saratoga Springs, he returned to England in a very dilapidated condition in October, 1863. The next few years were spent partly in Oxford in his congenial pursuits, where he took his B.M. degree, 18th December, 1865, and was Coroner to the Univerſity, 1865-1869, and held the office of Dean of his college,—and partly in London, where he became phyſician of the General Diſpenſary in Bartholomew Cloſe.[1] He alſo ſtudied midwifery for ſome time in Dublin, where he took a Doctor's degree. He became M.R.C.P., London, in 1869, and D.M., Oxford, in 1871." In 1869 he edited the 13th edition of the 'Seamen's Medical Guide.'

He acts as Director of the Alice Hoſpital, in the Franco-Pruſſian War,

"On the breaking out of the Franco-Pruſſian war he was not ſlow in obtaining employment on the German ſide. He had the good fortune to be ſent to Darmſtadt, where he came under the notice of the Princeſs Alice and her ſiſter the Crown Princeſs of Pruſſia, whoſe practical good ſenſe and active kindneſs were always mentioned by him with admiration and gratitude. Here he had ample ſcope for his ingenuity and ſkill in conſtruction. He ſuperintended the building of a hoſpital which he was proud to be permitted to call the 'Alice Hoſpital,' and piqued himſelf on the abundance of good ventilation. He alſo invented ſome ſick-tranſport carts. With theſe he was ſent, through the influence of the Crown Princeſs, to Lagny, near Paris, in January, 1871. From this place he went with his letter to the Crown Prince at Verſailles; and there he had the honour of receiving hoſpitality from the men upon whom the eyes of all Europe were fixed. In a letter of January 13th, 1871, he ſays,—'10.30 p.m. I have come back from dining with the Crown Prince. There were about eighteen or twenty to dinner,' including the Crown Prince, between Biſmarck and Moltke, beſides many generals and colonels, and Generalarzt Wagner. 'During dinner we could hear the great guns firing away. . . . . A telegram was brought in ſaying that Chanzy's army was defeated, with the loſs of 18,000 priſoners and twelve guns. This was treated as improbable. Biſmarck ſaid jocoſely, 'probably the correſpondent has made a miſtake,—he meant to ſay 18,000 guns and twelve priſoners!' But about an hour afterwards a French telegram was produced, in which preciſely the ſame numbers were given, with the addition that Le Mans was occupied by Prince Frederick Charles, and that the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg was in purſuit. I explained my photographs of carts to the Crown Prince. Moltke afterwards took them up and examined them, and I tried to engage him in converſation, but failed. He ſeems to ſay little to anybody. The Prince came and talked to me for a quarter of an hour about various things, including the Alice Hoſpital."

The Alice Hoſpital was in exiſtence for nine months, and about 700 German and 250 French ſick and wounded ſoldiers were treated in it. The number of deaths was 51.

and is decorated.

Charles Mayo remained in the German ſervice till the ſubſidiary military eſtabliſhment was broken up after the peace. He brought back with him the decorations of Knight of the firſt claſs of the Order of Philip the Generous, Heſſe, 8th April, 1871;

the third claſs of the Order of the Pruſſian Crown; the Imperial German War Medal for Non-combatants; the Bavarian Croſs of Merit; and the Heſſian Croſs for Medical Service (Sanitätz-Kreuz). A tranſlation is here given of a communication from the Grand-Ducal Miniſtry of War, dated Darmſtadt, 5th May, 1871 (No. 4724), addreſſed to "The directing Phyſician of the above hoſpital, Staff Surgeon-Major Dr. Charles Mayo."

Letter from Grand Ducal Miniſtry of War.

"In conſequence of the notification made to His Royal Highneſs the Grand-Duke that you, together with Staff Surgeons Galton and Rundle and the two Aſſiſtant Surgeons, wiſh to conclude your duties at the Hoſpital with the 15th of this month, H.R.H. has been pleaſed to permit you to be relieved from your preſent poſts on that day. In having the honour of making this known to you, the Miniſtry of War, with the full ſanction of H.R.H., expreſſes to you its moſt thankful acknowledgments for the prudence and untiring energy with which you have built, fitted out, and conducted up to the preſent time the Alice Hoſpital. The conſcioufneſs of having done a great work, and lightened the ſuffering attached to very many of the ſacrifices of war, will accompany you as an enduring reward. The Miniſtry of War begs you to undertake the expreſſion of its acknowledgments to your colleagues.

CHARLES MAYO, M.A., D.M., 1837-77. (From a Photograph.)

He next ſerves in the Atchin War,

Charles Mayo on his return from Germany meditated for a while ſettling in practice in England, but ſoon (1873) embraced the opportunity of entering the Dutch Medical Service, and joined their army in the ſwamps of Atchin. He wrote the account of this war which appeared in the "Times" newſpaper, 19th October, 1874, reprinted in a pamphlet of thirty-one pages entitled "The Dutch War in Sumatra." In July, 1874, he returned to England with the Dutch Medal for Service in this war ("Atjeh 1873 en 1874"), and reſided chiefly in Oxford, where he publiſhed a pamphlet entitled "The Organ in New College Chapel," pp. 19, privately printed, February, 1875. He was well acquainted with this muſical inſtrument, and was the author of ſeveral inventions for coupling ſtops and otherwiſe improving the mechaniſm of organs, and had collected a large number of organ-pipes from various ſources, which he intended to put together ſome day when he ſhould have leiſure to conſtruct a perfect inſtrument. It may here be noticed that he was Surgeon to the Inns of Court Volunteers, and to the National Rifle Aſſociation, in which capacity he attended the annual rifle matches at Wimbledon. He was occaſionally conſulted on ſanitary queſtions, and ſometimes contributed articles to the medical preſs, e.g. an analyſis of Cohn's book on Emboliſm ("Medical Times and Gazette," vol. i. 1862).

and ſubſequently as Medical Officer in Fiji.

Being ſtill indiſpoſed to ſettle down in England, he ſailed for Fiji, as one of the Government Medical Officers, in the ſuite of Sir A. Gordon, on March 25th, 1875. Here he was ſtationed at Kandavu, and after ſuffering much diſcomfort and great proſtration of ſtrength and energy, he was at laſt attacked by acute dyſentery. He was moved to the hoſpital at Levuka, where he was put on board the S.S. Lyee Moon, for Sydney, in the hope that his life would be ſaved by a ſea voyage. But he died on the afternoon of the 15th July, 1877, after being on board thirty-three hours, and was buried at ſea, 200 miles ſouth-weſt of Kandavu.

His death.

Memorial window in Wincheſter Cathedral,

A memorial window to him and his father has been placed (1879) in the north aiſle of the nave of Wincheſter Cathedral, exactly oppoſite the font. It contains figures of S. Swithin, S. James Major, William of Wykeham, SS. Cuthberga, Luke, and Cecilia. Under the figures are the Mayo arms, with the mottoes, "Nuncia pacis Oliva" and "Vehit ad ſidera virtus." There are two legends: "In Memoriam Caroli Mayo, Chirurgi, patris venerabilis. Obiit 27 Novembris 1876 ætatis ſuæ 87." "In Memoriam Caroli Mayo M.D. Collegii Beatæ Virginis Mariæ in Oxon. THE AUTOGRAPH OF CHARLES MAYO, M.A., D.M.

This extract from the Battalion Orders of the Inns of Court Rifle Volunteers, dated 27th October, 1877, will be read with intereſt :— Extract from Bat. Orders of Inns of Court R. Volunteers.

"The commanding officer has heard with the deepeſt ſorrow of the death of Dr. Charles Mayo, who for nine years performed the duties of Aſſiſtant Surgeon to the Regiment. The commanding officer is aſſured that every member of the corps will join with him in deploring this great loſs, not only on account of Dr. Mayo's conſpicuous ability in his profeſſion, but for the never-failing zeal and kindlineſs with which he diſcharged his duties to the corps; and amongſt thoſe who had the privilege of his friendſhip and greater opportunities of appreciating his manly and unſelfiſh nature, his name will ever be held in affectionate remembrance.

" By order,

" CARY BORRER, Captain and Adjutant.

" For Lt.-Col. BULWER, V.C., M.P., Commanding
Inns of Court Rifle Volunteers."

His elder ſiſter, who was in Rome in the ſpring of 1880, had the privilege of a private interview on 23rd April with H.I.H. the Crown Princeſs of Germany at the German Embaſſy. The Crown Princeſs ſpoke of Charles Mayo with the warmeſt ſympathy and ſorrow for his ſiſter's loſs, aſſociated as his memory was to herſelf with that of the Princeſs Alice. She ſaid that his goodneſs and kindneſs would not be forgotten, and requeſted that the aſſurance of her ſympathy might be given to all his family. Interview with Crown Princeſs of Germany.

CHAPTER V.

Charles Mayo of S. Peter's in Hereford, with the Descendants of his Son, Charles Mayo, M.A.

Charles Mayo, born at Devizes,

IT will now be neceſſary to refer back to the early part of the preceding chapter, and to reſume the thread of the narrative with Charles, the eighth child of John Mayo and Joane (née Hayes).

ſettles in Hereford,

Charles Mayo was baptiſed at S. John Baptiſt's, Devizes, 21ſt March, 1685-6, and early in life ſettled in the pariſh of S. Peter in Hereford,[1] where he lived and died. As has already been ſhown in a previous chapter, William Mayo, who repreſented the city of Hereford in Parliament in 1722, lived in this pariſh, and many of his children were baptiſed there. Young Charles Mayo loſt little time in entering the eſtate of matrimony.

and marries 1. Anne, d. of Thomas Alderne, J.P.,

On 7th May, 1710, he married at his pariſh church, Anne, daughter of Thomas Alderne, J.P., and Cuſtos of S. Giles' Hoſpital, by his third wife Mary, daughter of — Auſtin, and widow of Henry Dryden, of London, a brother of the poet. Thomas Alderne had previouſly married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Honywood, Bart., of Evington, in Kent, and, after her deceaſe, Eleanor, daughter of John Guiſe, of Abbotſcourt, in Glouceſterſhire. His daughter Anne was baptiſed at S. Peter's, Hereford, 24th November, 1687, and was buried there 10th October, 1713. A more detailed account of her family will be found in the ninth chapter of this book.

ALDERNE.

and 2. Anne, d. of Benjamin Prichard, M.A.

The next year ſees Charles Mayo again a married man. On 24th April, 1714, he married, at Ledbury, Anne, daughter of Benjamin Prichard, M.A., Prebendary of Hereford, and Vicar and Portioniſt of Ledbury. Her anceſtry has already been given in the preceding pages. She was buried at S. Peter's, Hereford, 13th May, 1754, having ſurvived her huſband. Charles Mayo was admitted a freeman of Hereford, [1] John, ſon of William Mayo, of the city of Hereford, matriculated at Oxford from S. Edmund Hall, 14th July, 1626, aged 19.

16th March, 1709, and filled the office of Mayor in 1730, and was buried at S. Peter's, 13th November, 1741. Portraits of Charles Mayo and Anne Prichard, his wife, are now in the poſſeſſion of their deſcendant, Charles-Theodore Mayo, Vicar of S. Andrew's, Hillingdon.

An abſtract of the will of Charles Mayo, proved in the Prerogative Court, 22nd December, 1741 (Spurway, 354), is here given :—

His will.

"In the name of God, Amen. To James Brome of Withington Co. Hereford gent., and to my ſon Charles Mayo, clerk, all and ſingular my free and leaſehold meſſuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments in the City of Hereford, and alſo my perſonal eſtate, in truſt. My wife Anne to enjoy during her life the meſſuage or tenement in the pariſh of S. Peter, where I now dwell. To my daughters Gertrude, Suſanna, Ann, and Catherine, each £200. To my ſons, Thomas, William, John, and Joſeph, each £100. The guardianſhip of my younger ſons and daughters to my wife and truſtees. My ſons Alderne, Henry, Charles, and Herbert. If my wife ſhall make no deed of appointment of the remainder of my eſtate, it ſhall be divided equally among my four younger ſons and four younger daughters. James Brome and Charles Mayo, executors. Dated 19 September 1741."

The above-named James Brome was High Sheriff of Herefordſhire in 1759.

Alderne Mayo, his eldeſt ſon.

Charles Mayo had iſſue by his firſt marriage one only ſon, Alderne, baptiſed 27th May, 1711, at S. Peter's. He died unmarried at no great interval from his father's death, as appears by his will, proved in the Prerogative Court, 18th September, 1742 (Trenley, 278), by the executor named therein.

The will of Alderne Mayo.

"I Alderne Mayo, Surgeon of the Roehampton ſhip, Capt: Robt: Turpin Commander, bound for Nevis, and being in bodily health, etc., give, bequeath, and diſpoſe unto my dear friend Mr. William Martin of the pariſh of S. Paul Shadwell, in the county of Middleſex, ſurgeon, all ſuch wages, ſum or ſums of money, lands, tenements, goods, chattels and eſtate whatſoever, as ſhall be anyways due owing or belonging unto me at the time of my deceaſe, and I do hereby nominate and appoint my ſaid ffriend William Martin executor of this my laſt will and teſtament, hereby revoking all former and other wills, teſtaments, and deeds of gift by me at any time heretofore made, and I do ordaine and ratify theſe preſents to ſtand and be for and as my only laſt will and teſtament; in witneſs whereof to this my ſaid will I have ſet my hand and ſeal the fourteenth day of September, Anno Dni 1741. Alderne Mayo."

XV. James, baptiſed 12th April, and buried 25th May, 1731.
XVI. Elizabeth, baptiſed 15th July, and buried 28th July, 1732.

Of theſe children it will be neceſſary to ſpeak hereafter concerning Charles, Suſanna, Herbert, Thomas, William, and Joſeph.

Charles Mayo, M.A., eldeſt ſon by the 2nd wife,

Charles, ſon of Charles Mayo and Anne (née Prichard), was baptiſed at S. Peter's, Hereford, 19th May, 1715. He matriculated at Oxford, 3rd March, 1728-9, at the early age of 13 years, as "generoſi filius," from Braſenoſe College, and graduated B.A. 11th October, 1732, but did not take his Maſter's degree till 7th July, 1744. In 1739 his pedigree was atteſted by a certificate from the R. College of Arms, of which a copy is here given:—

regiſters his pedigree at the Heralds' College,

"To all to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, Greeting. We the King's Heralds and Purſuivants of Arms within that part of Great Britain called England, being deſired by Charles Mayo Batchelor of Arts, now of Brazen-noſe College in Oxford, to certify his kindred or relation in Blood to Anthony Elton heretofore of Ledbury in the County of Hereford, do therefore teſtify that that part of this Pedigree from William Elton who married Margery Leighton to Suſanna one of the daughters of Ambroſe above-named is copied truly from Viſitation Book of Hereford C. 25 fo. 61; that the next part from the ſaid Suſanna to Gertrude the wife of Benjamin Prichard clerk is alſo truly copied from the Viſitation Book marked 1ſt L. 2 folio 144; and we do further certify that the remaining part of the above-written pedigree is atteſted by the depoſitions of Lucy wife of John Minors and of the Revd. John Prichard clerk Rector of Chriſtchurch Middleſex, given on oath and entered in the Books of our College. In teſtimony whereof we have hereunto ſet the ſeal of our Corporation the 15th. day of January 1739-40, and the thirteenth year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord King George the Second, etc. L. S."

and becomes Rector of Caſtle Frome.

Charles Mayo entered Holy Orders, and after having ſerved the cure of S. Mary Matfelon (Whitechapel), became Rector of Corringham, Eſſex, 1ſt September, 1743, on the preſentation of Robert Biddulph, which he held for about ten years, and Rector of Caſtle Frome, in Herefordſhire, 15th May, 1753, on the preſentation of Robert Unett, where he was buried 14th April, 1760, having died on the ninth of the ſame month. He was admitted a freeman of the city of Hereford in 1755. He married 1ſt December, 1748, at Clapham, Surrey, by licence, Ann Taylor, of S. Paul's, Covent Garden, daughter of Richard Taylor, M.D., of Newport, Iſle of Wight, and Grace his wife. His marriage is regiſtered in the R. College of Arms. She died 20th July, 1758, at Hedington, in Oxfordſhire.

Charles Mayo's will is here given as it is regiſtered in the Prerogative Court (Lynch, 294):—

His will.

"Hereford Jany 17. 1759. Dr. Brother, Being at length reſtored to the uſe of pen ink and paper, I have laid hold of the opportunity of writing to you, to tell you in the firſt place I have made my will in manner and form following. I give and bequeath unto my beloved brothers Herbert Mayo and Wm. Mayo all my real and perſonal eſtate whatſoever and wereſoever, upon this truſt and confidence that they the ſaid H. Mayo and W. Mayo ſhall apply all my effects ſhare and ſhare alike to the uſe and behoof of my beloved ſon and dr. Charles and Anne Mayo in the manner as to them the ſaid Truſtees to this my laſt Will and Teſtament ſhall ſeem moſt fit and expedient for their future intereſt and welfare; and in caſe either of my aforementioned children ſhould die before they come to the age of 21 years, I will and appoint the ſurvivor of them to inherit the ſhare of the deceaſed, and in caſe the ſurvivor ſhould die before he or ſhe arrives at the age of 21 years, I give and bequeath unto my beloved brothers Herbert Mayo and Willm. Mayo all my real and perſonal eſtate whatſoever and wereſoever in manner and form following, unto Herbert Mayo for his infinitely greater trouble which he hath taken in the management of my concerns I give and bequeath two-thirds of my real and perſonal eſtate whatſoever and wereſoever, and unto William Mayo one-third. This is the laſt Will and Teſtament of me ſign'd ſeal'd and deliver'd as my act and deed. Charles Mayo. Witneſs my hand Jany 15. 1759, in the preſence of Thos. James. Richard Langford."

On 10th July, 1760, adminiſtration of the eſtate of Charles Mayo, late of Caſtle Frome, Herefordſhire, but in the pariſh of S. Peter, in the city of Hereford, widower, deceaſed, was granted to Herbert Mayo, clerk.

The children of Charles Mayo were two only in number:—

Ann, baptiſed 26th September, 1749, at S. Mary Matfelon, and

Charles Mayo, ſon of Charles Mayo, M.A.,

Charles, baptiſed 24th July, 1754, in the ſame pariſh. The latter practiſed for many years as a ſolicitor in London, and lived ſucceſſively in Hammet Street, Minories (S. Botolph, Aldgate), in S. Nicholas Lane, and in Cloak Lane in the City, and in Great Ormonde Street, Bloomſbury, and died in Milman Street, Bedford Row, 7th Auguſt, 1814, and was buried at S. Andrew's, Holborn. He had been admitted a freeman of Hereford, 30th September, 1776. In the will of his uncle Joſeph Mayo he is ſtyled "of New Inn," and at the time of his marriage reſided in the pariſh of S. Helen's, Biſhopſgate. His own will is regiſtered in the Prerogative Court (Bridport, 327), and his portrait is in the poſſeſſion of Charles-Theodore Mayo. He married 14th June, 1791,

The children of Charles Mayo and Elizabeth (née Knowlys) were ſix in number, and were all born in London. and has iſſue,

I. Charles, their eldeſt ſon, was born at No. 1, Hammet Street, Minories, on the 9th of June, 1792, and was baptiſed at S. Botolph's, Aldgate, on the 9th of July in that year. He began his education at the Grammar School at Henley on Thames, and ſubſequently entered at Merchant Taylors School, whence he was elected to a Scholarſhip at S. John's College, Oxford, in 1810, and matriculated on the 25th of June, as "generoſi filius." He became a Laudian Fellow of his College on the 26th of April, 1813, was placed in the ſecond claſs in Claſſics in Eaſter Term, 1814, and graduated as B.C.L. 23rd January, 1817, and as D.C.L. 11th October, 1822. He was originally intended for the bar, but having become ſubject to deafneſs he found that he could not ſufficiently hear the proceedings of the courts of law, and remained at Oxford taking pupils till the year 1817, when on the 30th of May, upon the recommendation of the Dean of Chriſt Church he was elected Head Maſter of the Grammar School of Bridgnorth, in the county of Salop. He entered on his duties in the following Auguſt and remained at Bridgnorth two years, during which he was ordained Deacon 21ſt December, 1817, and Prieſt 6th June, 1819, in Chriſt Church Cathedral, by the Biſhop of Oxford. Having heard through Mr. Synge, of Glanmore Caſtle, County Wicklow, of Peſtalozzi's principles of education, he obtained leave of his college to travel, 7th April, 1819, and having reſigned his ſchool at Bridgnorth in July of that year, he joined Peſtalozzi's eſtabliſhment at Yverdun in Switzerland as Engliſh Chaplain, having brought with him ſome Engliſh pupils, who were under his immediate care, and received their Engliſh and Claſſical education from him. In this he was aſſiſted by the Rev. William Browne, M.A., Fellow of Worceſter College, Oxford, who returned to England with him, and afterwards eſtabliſhed a ſchool of his own at Cheam (ſee Chapter VIII.). For nearly three years, till April, 1822, he remained at Yverdun, maſtering the principles of Peſtalozzianiſm, and then returned to England, having determined to devote his life to their introduction into this country. He at once (Auguſt, 1822) eſtabliſhed a ſchool at Epſom for the purpoſe of ſhowing their application to the education of the upper claſſes, and on the number of the boys outgrowing the accommodation of the houſe there, he removed to Cheam after the Midſummer holidays in 1826, where he continued to carry on his ſchool until his death. The popularity and ſucceſs of the undertaking may be underſtood from the fact that boys' names were entered ſeveral years before their ſchool age, and on ſome occaſions immediately upon their births.[1] Dr. Mayo for ſome years would only admit boys while between the ages of ſeven and nine, and ſuch was the anxiety of ſome parents to obtain admiſſion for their ſons, that in one caſe they have been known to make falſe ſtatements as to age, and to inſtruct the boy to keep up the deception for years. With great earneſtneſs of purpoſe in Dr. Mayo's character was combined a ſincere and all-abſorbing yet ſomewhat ſimple piety, which was tinged with the principles of the Evangelical revival of the early part of the nineteenth century, while at the ſame time he was a conſiſtent and loyal ſon of the Church of England. By way of contraſt to this ſerious ſide of his character, he was poſſeſſed of a moſt lively diſpoſition, with a ſtrong appreciation of fun and humour. The union of theſe qualities gave him immenſe perſonal influence with his pupils, many of whom to this day bear witneſs to their obligations to it. An anecdote

Anecdote of him

[1] Many of his pupils were afterwards highly diſtinguiſhed at the Univerſities and in public life. Among theſe may be named Henry Shepheard, 1ſt claſs Lit. Hum., 1835, Fellow of Oriel, V. of Thornton Steward, and ſubſequently Maſter of Cheam School and Inc. of Caſterton. Hon. Samuel Waldegrave, double firſt, Oxford, 1839, Fellow of All Souls, and Biſhop of Carliſle. Henry Luard, D.D., Fellow and Tutor of Trinity, and Regiſtrary of the Univerſity of Cambridge. The three ſons of the preſent Lord Cotteſloe, Thomas-Francis Fremantle, Scholar of Balliol, Hertford Scholar, 1849, 1ſt claſs Lit. Hum., 1852, M.P. for Bucks; William-Henry Fremantle, 1ſt claſs Lit. Hum., 1853, related by one of his pupils at Bridgnorth will ſhow at once his appreciation of a joke and his tact in dealing with boys. "On the 29th of May," writes the Rev. Edward Hardwicke, "then called Oak-Ball day, the boys, thinking they had a ſufficient plea for a holiday, waited upon him by deputation to beg it. This was peremptorily refuſed. They were not however to be ſo put off. Under cover of loyalty they got together ſome ſtout oak boughs and ſtuffed his deſk, which was in the ſhape of a large pulpit, with them, and awaited not without ſome miſgiving his coming. In he came, and for a moment ſtood puzzled by the ſpectacle before him; but only for a moment; for wriggling his ſlight frame in among the boughs, he ſtood up and ſaid, 'I ſuppoſe you mean me to be Charles in the oak,' and adding, 'you muſt have the holiday,' not a little increaſed his popularity with the boys." while at Bridgnorth.

During the time he was at Cheam, Dr. Mayo took great intereſt in the foundation and management of the Home and Colonial Training College in Gray's Inn Road, which was for many years conducted by his friend, Mr. Reynolds, and his ſiſter, Miſs Mayo, and was intended to ſhow the application of Peſtalozzianiſm to elementary education. He alſo took every opportunity of making known the advantages of the ſyſtem throughout the country, and among other efforts for that purpoſe he delivered a lecture on the life of Peſtalozzi at the Royal Inſtitution, May, 1826. He there deſcribes the leading principles of his method to be that education ſhould be eſſentially religious and moral, and that it ſhould be organic, i.e., not merely a mechanical inculcation of knowledge, but an organic development of the human faculties, moral, intellectual, and phyſical. He alſo ſhows that that development ſhould be foſtered by the active exerciſe of the faculties and diſpoſitions which have been implanted in the human mind, and by liberty controlled by parental influence, and that care ſhould be taken that the advance ſhould be harmonious and progreſſive. "In the ordinary methods of teaching the courſe of inſtruction is founded on abſtract ſcientific conſiderations of the knowledge to be conveyed. In the Peſtalozzian method the courſe is arranged on pſychological principles derived from the conſideration of the nature and poſition of the beings to be inſtructed. It will be ſeen that, while the name of Peſtalozzi has nearly been forgotten, many if not moſt of his principles have inſenſibly been adopted and aſſimilated in the modern ſyſtem of education.

Failing health and death.

In the year 1845 Dr. Mayo's health, which for ſome time had been failing, now became ſo weak that he was obliged to obtain the aſſiſtance of his brother-in-law, the Rev. Henry Shepheard, late Fellow of Oriel College, who came to Cheam at Chriſtmas, and immediately took the management of the School, and eventually ſucceeded to it. Dr. Mayo died on the 23rd of February, 1846, and was buried in Cheam Churchyard. [C. T. M.]

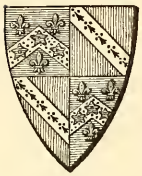
He marries Mary Shepheard,



SHEPHEARD.

Dr. Mayo married 30th June, 1831, at S. Mary Abbots, Kenſington, Mary, daughter of Edward-Walwyn Shepheard, of Great Ruſſell Street, London, for an account of whoſe family the reader is referred to the concluding chapter of this work. She was born 2nd July, 1799, and baptiſed at S. Pancras, and died 10th May, 1877, and was buried at Cheam. They had iſſue—

and has iſſue Charles-Theodore Mayo, M.A.,

i. Charles-Theodore, born 12th April, 1832, baptiſed at Cheam, and educated at Cheam, Harrow, and Oxford, at which Univerſity he matriculated, 2nd April, 1851, aged 18 years, from Balliol College. He obtained a ſecond claſs at Moderations in both the Claſſical and Mathematical Examinations, and a ſecond claſs in the Mathematical, and a third claſs in the Claſſical Final School. He graduated B.A. 14th June, 1855, M.A. 18th June, 1857, was ordained Deacon 20th December, 1857, and Prieſt 19th December, 1858, at Farnham, by Charles-Richard, Biſhop of Wincheſter, and was admitted Incumbent of S. Andrew's, Hillingdon, Middleſex, 10th May, 1865. He married 23rd June, 1859, at Redhill, Surrey, Mary-Anne, daughter of Edward Collins. She was born 8th February, 1833, and died 24th November, 1874, aged 41, and was buried at Cheam. The arms of Collins are Or a griffin ſegreant ſable. He has iſſue—

Vicar of S. Andrew's, Hillingdon;

3. Gertrude-Elizabeth, born 22nd Auguſt, 1863.

4. Charles-Richard, born 2nd October, and baptiſed 27th December, 1864, at Hillingdon.

Mary Mayo; and Theodore Mayo, M.A.

ii. Mary, born 23rd September, and baptiſed 26th October, 1834, at Cheam.

iii. Theodore, born 25th March, and baptiſed 22nd April, 1839, at Cheam, and educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge. He obtained the place of a Senior Optime in the Mathematical Tripos, and a third claſs in the Claſſical Tripos, 1862, and graduated B.A. 1862, and M.A. 1865. He was ordained Deacon 16th June, 1867, and Prieſt 7th June, 1868, at Wells, and is Chaplain to the Marqueſs of Ormonde. He is the editor of "The Book of the Litany, according to the Uſe of the Church of England, with various muſical notations, and ſuch Prayers, Collects, and Thankſgivings, as may be ſaid with the Litany, and Part of the Commination Service. Froome-Selwood: W. C. & J. Penny. MDCCCLXXIII." Quarto.

He has alſo edited Spenſer Nottingham's Reſponſes of the Litany noted to the Third Tone. Froome-Selwood, 1874. 8vo., and "The Order for the Celebration of the Holy Communion, with muſical notes chiefly taken from Merbecke's Book of Common Prayer, for the uſe of Choirs."

II. Elizabeth Mayo was born 18th June, 1793, in Hammet Street, and baptiſed at S. Botolph's, Aldgate. On the return of her brother, Dr. Mayo, from Switzerland, in 1822, ſhe joined him at Epſom, and removed with him to Cheam in 1826, where ſhe remained till 1834, helping him in the inſtruction of his boys, and in applying the principles of Peſtalozzi to Engliſh education. During this time ſhe wrote the work by which her name is beſt known, "Leſſons on Objects," which was followed by "Leſſons on Shells." In 1834 ſhe removed with her mother to Belſize Lane, Hampſtead, and thence to Oakhill Park, in the ſame pariſh, in 1853.

2. Elizabeth Mayo, devoted to the cauſe of education.

From 1843 and onwards her efforts were concentrated upon the work of the Home and Colonial School Society. For two years, in 1848 and 1849, ſhe edited a quarterly magazine publiſhed by that Society, until failing health compelled her to relinquiſh it. The following notes are communicated by Mr. E. Coglan, one of the Maſters of Method at the Home and Colonial College, who had the advantage of perſonal communication with Miſs Mayo for many years:—

Notes on her work at the Home and Colonial School Society.

"Dr. and Miſs Mayo were devoted to the Principles of Education advocated by Peſtalozzi, but they did not always agree with the methods and plans adopted by him and his immediate aſſociates in teaching different ſubjects. They ſought to give more definiteneſs to his religious views, and to bring them more into harmony with ſound Chriſtian principles. They knew that Peſtalozzi himſelf was not a good teacher, and where they departed from him in any of his methods and plans of teaching they ſought others more in harmony with his principles. When Dr. Mayo began his work at Cheam, Peſtalozzianiſm was generally looked upon as ridiculous and contemptible, ſynonymous with all that is impracticable and fantaſtic. Now the principles of Peſtalozzi are recognized and advocated by every educated ſchoolmaſter in the country, and the ſpirit of his methods pervades many ſchools whoſe teachers never heard of his name, and this general recognition is in no ſmall degree due to the work of Dr. Mayo at Cheam and of Miſs Mayo at the Home and Colonial.

"It is rather difficult to ſay exactly what the work of Miſs Mayo was at this inſtitution between the years 1843, and, ſay, 1855, for ſhe exerciſed a general ſuperviſion over everything that was taught, wrote model ſketches and leſſons on many of the ſubjects, and ſometimes in the earlier of theſe years gave leſſons to ſhow how certain ſubjects ought to be handled in claſs teaching.

"Her work after I came to the inſtitution in 1845 may be ſummed up thus,—

"1. She reviewed and reviſed the programme of work in each of the ſchools, and was always conſulted by the teachers when they wiſhed to make any change.

"2. She either initiated or ſuperviſed the courſes of leſſons given in the ſchools on Objects, Scripture, Geography, Natural Hiſtory, &c., and her ſketches and leſſons on theſe ſubjects ſtill continue in uſe both in the ſchools and in the training of the teachers.

"3. Within the years above mentioned, and perhaps for ſome time afterwards, all new officers wrote and ſent to her every week ſketches of the leſſons on Objects, Scripture, etc., they were to give the following week. Theſe were returned with her remarks, which were always valuable becauſe pointing out where ſome plan was unſuitable or ſome principle violated.

"4. Reports of leſſons given in the ſchools were ſeen by her in the ſtudents' journals and criticized. If anything in theſe reports ſeemed to require more than a marginal note, the teacher was ſent for or viſited, and the matter ſet right.

"5. Some of the journals kept by the ſtudents in training were ſent to her every week. Theſe ſhe read through with great care, pointing out any violations of educational principles or approved methods of teaching. This work ſhe conſidered of ſo much importance that ſhe hardly ever allowed anything to interfere with it, and ſhe continued to do it whilſt her health enabled her to do ſo. I may add that her criticiſms were very direct, often ſharp, always clear, going to the root of the matter, always genial becauſe never ill-natured or ſarcaſtic. She was ever open to the officers' viſits, and ſeemed never happier than whilſt ſharing with them the treaſures of her knowledge and experience."

It may be noted as an intereſting fact that the late Miſs Cheſſar, the well-known member of the London School Board, who died 3rd September, 1880, learnt her principles of teaching from Miſs Mayo, whoſe frequent gueſt ſhe was at Hampſtead.

Her death,

Miſs Mayo died at Malvern, 1ſt September, 1865, aged 72 years, and on the 8th of the ſame month was buried in Kenſal Green Cemetery, in her mother's grave.

and tablet to her memory.

A tablet to her memory has been erected in a ſchool-room in the Home and Colonial Society's buildings, Gray's Inn Road, and is thus inſcribed :—

"The Committee of the Home & Colonial School Society erect this tablet to commemorate the ineſtimable ſervices of Miſs Elizabeth Mayo, in having adapted to the Engliſh mind & character the principles of Peſtalozzi leavened with evangelical truth. She devoted herſelf to the direction of the ſchools & the training of the ſtudents of this inſtitution, & endeared herſelf to all by her hearty ſympathy, wiſe counſel, & friendly aid. Miſs Mayo's intereſt in this ſociety continued during 30 years, until her death in 1865, at the age of 72. Her laſt labour of love was the preparation of an edition of "Religious Inſtruction for the Young," & her bequeſt of £500 has led to the erection for the education of the Middle Claſſes of this ſtructure, to be called The Mayo School-room."

Miſs Mayo was the author of the following publications :—

3. Newman-Knowlys Mayo,

III. Newman-Knowlys, the ſecond ſon of Charles Mayo and Elizabeth (née Knowlys), was born 28th March, 1796, in S. Nicholas Lane, London, and reſided at 20, Hamilton Terrace, S. John's Wood. He died 4th December, and was buried at Kenſal Green Cemetery, 11th December, 1860 (grave numbered 7,570). He married 6th Auguſt, 1823, at S. Mary Abbots, Kenſington, Frances Wroughton, who died 22nd July, and was buried in her huſband's grave 28th July, 1871. Their children were—

i. Frances-Beckwith, born 24th June, and died in the following December, 1824.

ii. Emily, born 7th January, 1826, died at Ramſgate 16th July, 1875, aged 49, and buried in the cemetery at Reading, Berks. She was married 28th September, 1859, at Trinity Chapel, Edgware Road, to Edward Merriman, who died 12th January, 1869, and was buried in Reading Cemetery. They had iſſue five children, Lewis-Edward, born 25th July, 1860, Emily-Sophia, born 25th July, 1861, and died 4th February, 1862, Newman-Frederic, born 17th Auguſt, 1862, Herbert-Mayo, born 20th June, 1866, and died 25th March, 1869, and Julia-Frances, born 19th February, 1868.

iii. Julia, born 16th April, 1827, at Peckham.

iv. Jemima-Sophia, born 3rd July, 1829, at Peckham, died 24th June, 1851, aged 21, at Kilburn, and buried at Kenſal Green Cemetery, in the grave numbered 7,570.

4. Herbert Mayo,

IV. Herbert, the third ſon of Charles Mayo and Elizabeth (née Knowlys), was born 21ſt Auguſt, 1798, in S. Nicholas Lane, London, and as a young man was placed in the office of Mr. John Knowlys, his mother's brother, of Woodsfarm, Surrey, and of 17, Mincing Lane, a wealthy Eaſt India broker. Soon after the return of his brother, Dr. Charles Mayo, from Switzerland, and through his influence, he entered with earneſtneſs into the religious movements of the day, and thenceforward devoted all his leiſure moments to work among the poor in ſchools and workhouſes, and elſewhere. It was to him that David Naſmyth, the founder of the devoted to works of charity and philanthropy.

"London City Miſſion," firſt confided his plan for the formation of that ſociety, which was eſtabliſhed in 1835. Herbert Mayo was on the managing committee of that inſtitution, as well as on that of the Home and Colonial School Society, and worked inceſſantly for both objects from their commencement. He reſided at Hampſtead from 1848 until his death, and took an active part in promoting the religious welfare of the Sailors' Orphan and Soldiers' Orphan Inſtitution, and the Government Reformatory for Girls, all of which are eſtabliſhed in that neighbourhood—teaching himſelf in each every week. He was a conſtant viſitor at the Hampſtead Workhouſe, in which Union he was a Guardian of the Poor, and was greatly beloved by the inmates. The North London Conſumptive Hoſpital at Mount Vernon was ſituated near his houſe in Oakhill Park, and at the requeſt of the clerical chaplain he acted practically as his ſubſtitute in the ſpiritual care of the patients in the inſtitution. The laſt work to which he devoted himſelf was the founding a branch of the Young Men's Chriſtian Aſſociation at Hampſtead, a fact recorded by an inſcription placed in their principal room by the young men of that ſociety. Beſides theſe engagements at home, he beſtowed much thought upon the Proteſtant congregations of Italy, and after the winter of 1856-7, which he ſpent at Nice, made ſeveral journeys to that country with the purpoſe of viſiting the paſtors and encouraging them in their work.

His death, burial,

Herbert Mayo died at Broadſtairs 14th September, 1874, and was buried on the 21ſt of the ſame month in the Kenſal Green Cemetery, in the preſence of a large aſſembly of all claſſes, and at his grave his two favourite hymns were ſung, the one by a body of City Miſſionaries, the other by thirty ſoldiers' daughters from the Home. The Rev. J. Kirkman, Vicar of S. Stephen's, Hampſtead, writing in his pariſh magazine of October, 1874, in giving ſome account of his character and labours, ſtates that he was foremoſt in all good works connected with that pariſh, ſo that his name was a ſanction, and its abſence a ſuſpicion on any ſcheme, and adds that through a ſphere far beyond theſe inſtitutions he was viſible with the light of humility, loving gentleneſs of diſpoſition, genuine active friendſhip, and largeneſs of heart.

His marriage,

Herbert Mayo married 3rd November, 1834, at the pariſh church, Stoke Newington, Mary-Anne-Grace, daughter of Thomas Quin, Surgeon R.N. She died 12th February, and was buried at Kenſal Green, 17th February, 1872, in the grave numbered 6,655, where her huſband was ſubſequently interred, having had iſſue five children.

i. Herbert-Samuel, born 16th July, 1836, died 16th February, 1847, in Brompton Creſcent, aged 10 years, and buried at Kenſal Green (grave numbered 6,655).

ii. Mary-Eliſabeth, born 13th September, 1838, and baptiſed 10th April, 1839, at S. James, Holloway, chapel-of-eaſe.

iii. Agnes-Matilda, born 9th February, and baptiſed 16th June, 1840, at S. James, Holloway.

iv. Martha-Conſtance, born 12th November, 1841, and baptiſed 30th March, 1842, at S. James, Holloway, and married 30th May, 1877, at S. Mark's, Hamilton Terrace, to Erneſt-Frederick-Joſeph, ſecond ſon of Baron Porcelli of Palermo.

v. Anne-Katharine, born 25th May, and baptiſed 17th October, 1844, at S. John's, Upper Holloway, and married 15th June, 1869, at S. John's, Hampſtead, to Peter Bayne, M.A., LL.D., as his ſecond wife. Mr. Bayne is author of "Life and Letters of Hugh Miller, 1871," "The Days of Jezebel, an Hiſtorical Drama, 1872," "The Chief Actors in the Puritan Revolution, 1878," "Leſſons from my Maſters, Carlyle, Tennyſon, and Ruſkin, 1879," and other works.

V. Richard, fourth ſon of Charles Mayo and Elizabeth (née Knowlys), was born 7th September, 1799, in Cloak Lane, London, and baptiſed 3rd October following in the church of S. Thomas the Apoſtle. He entered Merchant Taylors School July, 1807, and matriculated at Oxford 19th June, 1818, aged 18, from S. John's College, as "generoſi filius." He obtained a ſecond claſs in Literis Humanioribus, and graduated B.A. 25th May, 1822, and M.A. 1ſt June, 1826, and was ordained Deacon 13th June, and Prieſt 19th December, 1824, by William, Biſhop of London, at the requeſt of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury. He was licenſed to the curacy of Wrotham, Kent, 1ſt December, 1824, and became Perpetual Curate of Plaxtol, in the ſame county, 29th September, 1841, and died 30th April, 1864, unmarried. He was author of "Cottage Readings, or Inſtructions and Prayers for the Unlearned. S.P.C.K. 1837," pp. 36, and of a ſecond ſeries of the ſame, pp. 52, publiſhed in 1839.

The narrative here for a moment reverts to Suſanna, daughter of Charles Mayo and Anne (née Prichard), who was baptiſed at S. Peter's in Hereford, 29th September, 1719, and was married (S. Owen's regiſter), 26th May, 1755, to Samuel Bethell, B.A., Rector of S. Nicholas, Hereford, and Rector of Stretton near Sugwas. He was buried in S. Owen's burial-ground, Hereford, 26th May, 1777, leaving iſſue two ſons and one daughter. Some account of his family is given in the ninth chapter of this work.

CHAPTER VI.

Herbert Mayo, D.D., son of Charles Mayo of S. Peter's in Hereford, with his issue to the present day.

Herbert Mayo, D.D., born at Hereford,

HERBERT MAYO, the ſon of Charles Mayo and Anne (née Prichard), was baptiſed in the pariſh of S. Peter in Hereford 15th December, 1720. He matriculated at Oxford 9th April, 1739, from Braſenoſe College, as "generoſi filius," aged 18, and on the 20th of May, 1740, was elected to the fellowſhip founded by his anceſtor Canon Elton, which he held until the year 1765. He graduated B.A. 15th October, 1742, M.A. 13th June, 1745, B.D. 3rd April, 1762, and D.D. 28th June, 1763, and was ordained Prieſt 23rd December, 1744, by Thomas, Biſhop of Oxford, in Chriſt Church Cathedral.

becomes Fellow of B. N. C.,

In the earlier part of his life he held ſucceſſively the curacies of Stratford-le-Bow, Whitechapel, and Spitalfields. "During this period," ſo ſays the memoir of him in the "Gentleman's Magazine," volume 72, part i., pp. 88 and 682, "when college offices occaſionally required his attendance, he proved his zeal for the welfare of the ſociety to which he belonged by a liberal enforcement of diſcipline and a judicious arrangement of the complicated and at that time confuſed ſtate of the accounts." In 1764 he was preſented by the College to the Rectory of Middleton Cheney in Northamptonſhire, and was inſtituted on the 7th of May in that year, but upon the living of S. George's-in-the-Eaſt becoming vacant ſhortly after, he reſigned the former and more eligible preferment on the 31ſt of the following July, in order to labour near the ſphere of his former work, and was appointed by the College to this living. In 1799 he was preſented to the Vicarage of Tolleſbury, Eſſex, by William Beaumaris Ruſh, the patron, and was inſtituted on the 31ſt of May, but he conſtantly reſided in S. George's pariſh during his incumbency.

Rector of Middleton Cheney, and then of S. George's in the East.

The "Gentleman's Magazine,"

To quote again from the "Gentleman's Magazine," "Under the deſcriptions of a citizen, a Chriſtian, and a clergyman, in all the domeſtic and ſocial relations, his character was ſtrictly irreproachable and highly meritorious. His rectitude, ſteadineſs, and liberality of principle, his perfect command of temper and ſelf-government, the firmneſs of his attachments and openneſs of his manners, and above all the extenſiveneſs of his impartiality and economy of his benevolence are qualities which, it is hoped, have not vainly ſhed their luſtre through a licentious age."

THE AUTOGRAPH OF HERBERT MAYO, D.D.

Another intereſting memoir of Dr. Mayo was ſent by "A London Curate," 11th January, 1802, to "The Orthodox Churchman's Magazine," volume ii., pages 30-32. He writes, "Gentlemen, The venerable Herbert Mayo, D.D., Rector of St. George's, Middleſex, died on the 5th inſtant, aged 82 years. Will you permit one, who loved him while living, to embalm his memory in your pages now that he is dead. Dr. Mayo was a native of Hereforddſhire, and was educated at Braſenoſe College, Oxford, which preſented him to the living of St. George's. Dr. Mayo was a divine of that claſs which, though it enjoy not all the ſplendid celebrity that adorns ſome others, perhaps excels all in real utility; that is to ſay, he was a good pariſh prieſt. He was a man of great experience in that particular branch of his profeſſion, having been for ſome time Curate of Bow le Stratford, then ten years Curate of Whitechapel, then ten years Curate at Spitalfields, before he entered upon the living of St. George in the Eaſt, where I think he reſided thirty-eight years. There is no church in London where divine ſervice is performed with more rubrical correctneſs than in St. George's. The aſſiduity of a paſtor, attentive to all the minutiæ of propriety in the uſe of the Liturgy, produced a correſpondent regularity in his congregation. Everything at St. George's is done εὐσχημόνως καὶ κατὰ τάξιν. Dr. Mayo had a peculiar but by no means unimpreſſive mode of preaching in his earlier years, but his labours were not confined to the pulpit merely. He was the inſtructor of the young in the catechetical way, the reclaimer of the diſſolute, the grave rebuker of the blaſphemer, the admoniſher of thoſe who had reached the gradation of unthinking levity in the ſcale of offence, and were tottering on the brink of vice. He was the comforter of the ſick and cheriſher of thoſe who languiſhed under the depreſſion of poverty. He adminiſtered the aids of religion to thoſe who were paſſing from time to eternity, and often, by the ſide of the grave, exerted a vigour beyond the routine of duty, whilſt he taught thoſe who attended on the interment of their friends to prepare for their latter end. He was particularly fond of negroes and uninſtructed men of colour, who, employed generally on board of ſhip, occaſionally reſided in his pariſh, which is full of ſeafaring people. I ſuppoſe and "The Orthodox Churchman's Magazine," deſcribe him as a good pariſh prieſt,

and dilate on his rubrical exactneſs,

and paſtoral aſſiduity,

his fondneſs of negroes,

no clergyman in England ever baptiſed ſo many black men and mulattoes; nor did he at any time baptiſe them without much previous preparation that the inward and ſpiritual grace might accompany the outward and viſible form of baptiſm. The attachment of theſe poor people to him was very great. Several of them never came into the port of London, without waiting upon him, by way of teſtifying the reſpect in which they held him. Dr. Mayo was a magiſtrate of the county of Middleſex, and performed the functions of that office, in his parochial relations, with great attention. The zealous care with which he watched over the charity ſchools in his pariſh was very becoming. One of them is a ſchool of high character,—Raine's Hoſpital I mean,—into which young girls are tranſplanted out of the ordinary parochial ſchool, and are taught all ſorts of uſeful houſehold work, and then, after having lived five years in ſervice, and bringing teſtimonials of their good behaviour, they are entitled to draw lots for a marriage portion of one hundred pounds, and are married to ſome induſtrious mechanic, a member of the Church of England. Dr. Mayo was treaſurer of this excellent foundation. I ſaw him laſt May day, in the preſence of a numerous aſſemblage of the truſtees and others, among whom were both the members of Parliament, deliver a purſe of £100 to one of the young women who had been married by him that morning. The good old man gave the new-married pair a ſuitable charge in a moſt affectionate way. His infirmities, 'tis true, impeded his ſpeech not a little, he ſeemed to feel it was the laſt he ſhould make on ſuch an occaſion, but I aſſure you, gentlemen, that there was an eloquence in his very pauſes, and ſomething ſo touching in the tears that trickled down his cheeks, that they muſt have had hearts of ſtone who could hear him unmoved. . . . I hope I ſhall not hurt the feelings of his family (a wife, two ſons both married, and two daughters), who ſurvive him, when I ſay that never man was happier in all his domeſtic relations. . . . Dr. Mayo was a man of true frugality. He was a contributor to moſt public charities, from Chriſt's Hoſpital downwards. He has walked, leaning on my arm, in the ſtreets of London, to ſave the expenſe of a coach, and given the half-crown to the orphan ſon of a clergyman, when he got home. He had the management of the property of many perſons. A ſmile he had of peculiar benignity. He was a man of great good humour, and often indulged in a ſpecies of chaſtened pleaſantry, and Dr. South himſelf was not fonder of a pun. He was bleſſed with a long ſeries of years of uninterrupted health. Rain never ſtopped him. Dr. Mayo was a Tory in politics. His religious principles were truly orthodox."

his zeal as a magiſtrate for Middleſex,

his care of the ſchools in his pariſh,

his frugality and generoſity.

Dr. Mayo died 5th January, and was buried at S. George's, 13th January, 1802. His will, which is very brief, is dated 16th February, 1797, and was proved in the Prerogative Court, 6th February, 1802 (Kenyon, 126), and in it he leaves all his eſtate at the diſpoſal of his wife and names her ſole executrix. His portrait was painted by L. F. Abbott, and engraved by Charles Picart, and publiſhed by the latter at No. 26, Caſtle St. Eaſt, Oxford St., 2nd May, 1803. He married Mary, daughter and heireſs of George Coldham, ſurgeon, of S. Paul's, Covent Garden, and Rebecca his wife, daughter of Sir John Shaw, Baronet, of Eltham and Cheſhunt, by his ſecond wife Sarah, daughter and coheireſs of William Paggen of London.[1] The arms of Coldham are Azure, a mullet argent voided gules. A memorandum, communicated by Charles-Erſkine Mayo, ſtates that "The Revd. Herbert Mayo, D.D., Rector of St. George Middx, Br., an Inhabitant of St. Clement Danes, and Mary Coldham of St. Paul's Covent Garden, Spr., were married by Licence in the pariſh Church of St. Clement Danes on the 15th of January 1765." His marriage is alſo regiſtered in the College of Arms, and a pedigree of his deſcendants, ſhowing their connection with the Shaw family, is contained in Berry's "Pedigrees of Hertfordſhire Families," page 48. Mary Mayo outlived her huſband for many years, and died 9th February, 1824, aged 91.

following, aged 26 days, but under the name of Rebecca only, and died 16th June, 1855, aged 86, and unmarried.

IV. Jane-Gertrude, who "was born on Monday the 4th of December, 1774, between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning; Mrs. Denifon, wife of Dr. Denifon, Principal of Magdalen Hall, Oxford, and Mrs. Jane Pearley of Iflington, her mother's coufins, being God-mothers, and the Revd. John Prichard, Rector of Chriftchurch, Middx, God-father, who is her Father's Uncle. N.B. Baptized at Church." She was baptifed at S. George's on the 30th of the fame month, aged 27 days, and died unmarried, 14th May, 1848.

Charles Mayo, B.D., F.R.S., his 2nd fon,

II. Charles Mayo, the fecond fon of Herbert Mayo and Mary (née Coldham), was born 24th March and baptifed at S. George's, 16th April, 1767, aged 24 days. He was admitted to Merchant Taylors School in 1776, and from thence elected Scholar or Probationary Fellow of S. John's College, Oxford, in June, 1785. His contemporaries at that election were Dr. Bufh, afterwards Dean of Battle, and William Benjamin Portal, of whom a memoir may be read in the "Gentleman's Magazine," vol. 82, part ii., page 85. Charles Mayo matriculated 28th June the fame year, aged 18, became Fellow in 1788, and graduated B.A. 22nd April, 1789, M.A. 14th January, 1793, and B. D.

21ft June, 1796. In 1795 he was elected by the Univerfity Profeffor of Anglo-Saxon on the foundation of Dr. Rawlinfon, being the firft to hold that office, which he occupied for the allotted fpace of five years. His inaugural lecture was announced for 10th November, 1796, at noon. Mr. Daniel Prince's letter, 18th March, 1795, quoted in Nichols' "Literary Anecdotes of the Eighteenth Century," vol. iii., page 708, ftates, "The candidates for the Saxon Profefforfhip are Dr. Finch and (Chas.) Mayo, both fellows of St. Johns." Dr. Samuel Parr is quoted at page 85 of Wordfworth's "Social Life at the Englifh Univerfities in the 18th Century," as defcribing the lectures of profeffors at Oxford, and as ftating that "The lectures of the Saxon Profeffor [Charles Mayo] were much applauded." Charles Mayo entered Holy Orders, being ordained Deacon 30th May, 1790, and Prieft 19th June, 1791, by Edward, Bifhop of Oxford, in Chrift Church Cathedral, and was for fome time Curate at Handborough in Oxfordfhire, during the incumbency of Dr. Michael Marlow, Prefident of S. John's College. He was King's Preacher at Whitehall from the Univerfity of Oxford, 4th Auguft, 1799, and 3rd Auguft, 1800. He was afterwards Morning Lecturer at the old chapel of S. Michael, Highgate, which pofition he held for thirty years, until the chapel was taken down in 1833. The prefent and Profeffor of Anglo-Saxon, Oxford,

Whitehall Preacher,

and Lecturer at Highgate,

Vicar of S. Michael's writes under date 15th November, 1880: "He was a man of mark, who rendered excellent ſervice to this pariſh out of pure love, I believe, for he was not incumbent of the old chapel, nor the officially appointed preacher, as I underſtand, but a voluntary curate."

He did not however reſide in Highgate, and in the regiſter his name only occurs in reference to a baptiſm on 9th June, 1816, and a burial on 31ſt July in the ſame year. The church of S. Michael was built in 1832, to which he gave a window repreſenting our Lord and the Apoſtles, which has ſince diſappeared. He was elected a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries, 14th December, 1820, and a Fellow of the Royal Society, 1ſt March, 1827, and was a Governor of Cholmeley School in Highgate in 1842.

Charles Mayo reſided during the greater part of his life at Cheſhunt, Herts, to an eſtate in which place, compriſing the manor of Andrewes and Le Motte, with the old manor-houſe attached called Cheſhunt Great Houſe, the property of the Shaw family, he was next in reverſion under the will of William Shaw, junior. He ſucceeded to this eſtate on the death of Anne Shaw in December, 1824, having been previouſly leſſee of the houſe and manor. Charles Mayo died without iſſue, 10th December, 1858, aged 91, and was buried at Cheſhunt, and a ſhort reference to his career occurs in the "Annual Regiſter" for that year. His will was proved in London, 13th January, 1859. He married 2nd June, 1801, at Cheſhunt, Louiſa, daughter of James Landon,[1] of Cheſhunt and London, and Anna his wife, daughter where he dies.

[1] A pedigree of the family of Landon is printed at page 46 of Berry's work already mentioned. Arms, Gyronny of eight, or and azure, an inefcutcheon argent. The Palmers have a royal defcent through Anne, daughter of Thomas Lord Wentworth, and wife of Sir John Poley of Bradley, Suffolk, Knt.

of Philip Palmer of Richmond. Louiſa Mayo was born 18th January, 1774, and died 22nd September, 1852, at Coleſgrove, in the pariſh of Cheſhunt, and was buried in the churchyard. On a raiſed tomb in Cheſhunt churchyard, between the ſouth porch and the tower of the church, are theſe inſcriptions:—

Monuments at Cheſhunt.

"Sacred to the memory of the Rev. Charles Mayo, B.D., who died Dec. 10. 1858, aged 91."

"Sacred to the memory of Mrs. Jane Gertrude Mayo, who died May 14. 1848. Alſo of Louiſa the beloved wife of the Rev. Charles Mayo, who died Sept. 22. 1852, aged 79. Alſo of Mrs. Rebecca Mary Anne Mayo, who died June 16. 1855, aged 89."

He inherits the manor of Andrewes and Le Motte,

The manor of S. Andrew or Andrewes, and Le Motte or Moteland, was granted by Henry VIII. to Cardinal Wolſey. Salmon (Hiſtory of Hertfordſhire, 1728) ſtates that the firſt of theſe is an entire manor, and the other is ſometimes called the moiety of the manor of Moteland, but where the other moiety lies is not known. On Wolſey's diſgrace the Earl of Worceſter and his counteſs received a grant of this eſtate, and afterwards Thomas Denny, whoſe ſon John ſold it to George Dacres, whoſe deſcendant Sir Thomas Dacres again ſold it to James Earl of Saliſbury. James his ſon diſpoſed of it to Sir Edward Deſbovery, whoſe executors conveyed it to Sir John Shaw, Baronet, in 1694. Sir John Shaw had iſſue by his ſecond wife, Sarah, daughter and co-heireſs of William Paggen of London, three ſons and ſix daughters, all of whom eventually died without iſſue, with the exception of (i) William Shaw, who married Elizabeth, daughter and heireſs of John Blandy, of Inglewood, Berks; and (ii) Rebecca Shaw, baptiſed 28th November, 1702, at Eltham, died 30th October, 1764, and buried at S. Paul's, Covent Garden, having been married to George Coldham, who died 29th June, 1737, and was alſo buried there, leaving iſſue two daughters, Mary, married to Herbert Mayo, D.D., and Anne, who died unmarried, 9th Auguſt, 1774, and was buried at Clifton, Somerſet.

purchaſed by Sir John Shaw, Bart., in 1694,

On the death of his father Sir John, the eſtate came to William Shaw, ſenior, before mentioned, who in Hilary Term, 1750, levied a fine or ſuffered a recovery, whereby he cut off the entail of the eſtate, and on an intended marriage of his eldeſt ſon, John Shaw, with Meliora, daughter of Thomas Huxley of Eaton Park, Bedfordſhire, conveyed it to truſtees for the uſe of John Shaw for life, remainder to the uſe of Meliora Shaw for her life, remainder to the uſe of their ſons ſucceſſively in tail male, remainder to the heirs of John Shaw for ever. John Shaw died without iſſue, 17th May, 1772, and Meliora in 1788, when the eſtate deſcended to Anne, widow of William Shaw, junior, third ſon of William Shaw the elder. All the children of William Shaw the elder having eventually died without iſſue, the manor and eſtate, in December, 1824, on the death of Anne Shaw, came, under the will of William Shaw, junior, her late huſband (heir expectant on the death of Meliora, widow of his brother John), to Charles Mayo, B.D., grandſon of Rebecca, daughter of Sir John Shaw and Sarah with the ancient manor-houſe, called Cheſhunt Great Houſe, "Cheſhunt Great Houſe, as the old manor-houſe is now generally called, ſtands on the north ſide of Goff's Lane, about half a mile north-weſt of the church. It is ſaid to have been built during the reign of Henry VIII., and to have been the occaſional reſidence of Cardinal Wolſey. It was originally quadrangular, encloſing a courtyard, and in 1750 was modernized and encaſed with brick by Mr. John Shaw. In 1801 the Rev. Charles Mayo, who was next in reverſion to the eſtate, pulled down a conſiderable portion of the manſion that had fallen into decay, and left it as it now exiſts. In the hall are preſerved ſome excellent examples of old armour, and ſeveral intereſting portraits. Among others, which are ſaid to be original, are paintings of Cardinal Wolſey, Queen Elizabeth, Sir Hugh Middleton, Charles I. by Vandyke, Charles II., Archbiſhops Juxon and Laud, Richard Cromwell, who lived in retirement at Pengelly Houſe in this pariſh for ſome years, Lords Fairfax, Orrery, and Radnor, James II., William III., and Queen Anne, together with numbers of portraits of the Shaw family. In the room, which is pointed out as Wolſey's bed-chamber, is a rocking-horſe, which is ſaid to have belonged to Charles I., when as a child he lived at Theobalds, and alſo his arm-chair." Some years ago two ſkeletons, with a pitcher and a lantern, were diſcovered encloſed in a cavity in the wall, in a corner of the crypt or vault below the houſe.

containing a large collection of portraits.

Paggen-William Mayo, M.A., D.M., F.R.C.P., elder ſon of Herbert Mayo, D.D.,

I. Paggen-William Mayo, the elder ſon of Dr. Herbert Mayo, was born in London, 11th January, and baptiſed at S. George's, 7th February, 1766, aged 28 days. The memorandum before quoted ſtates that in "1766, Paggen-William was born on Saturday the 11th of Jany. abt. 11 o'clock in the forenoon; Paggen Shaw, Eſqre., a Turkey merchant, being one Godfather, his father's bror. the Revd. Wm. Mayo the other, and his mother's aunt, Mrs. Mary Shaw, Godmother. N.B. Baptized in Church." He was admitted at Merchant Taylors School in 1775, and from thence elected Scholar of S. Shortly after taking his firſt degree in medicine he ſettled in London, and in 1793 was, together with Dr. George Morris and Dr.

Matthew, appointed phyſician to the Forces under the Earl of Moira ("Gentleman's Magazine," vol. 63, p. 1158). The poſt of phyſician to the Middleſex Hoſpital becoming vacant in the ſummer of the ſame year, he applied for the appointment, and was elected, 23rd Auguſt, having received 115 votes. Dr. Scot, the other candidate, ſecured 81. (Hiſtory of the Middleſex Hoſpital, by Eraſmus Wilſon, 1845, page 199.) He was admitted a Candidate of the Royal College of Phyſicians, 30th September, 1795, and a Fellow, 30th September, 1796. He was Cenſor in 1797, Gulſtonian Lecturer in 1798, and Harveian Orator in 1807. While he lived in London he reſided in Conduit Street, Hanover Square. Subſequently he lived for many years at Doncaſter, whither he withdrew after reſigning his hoſpital appointment, 6th January, 1801, and eventually removed to Bridlington, where he died, 6th July, 1836, and was buried. His will was proved P.C.C. (Norwich, 298).

Arthur Mayo, V.C., B.A., He entered the Indian Navy at the age of ſixteen, and received his commiſſion as Midſhipman, 19th February, 1857, and was attached to the "Punjaub" ſteam-frigate. He ſerved in India in the Indian Naval Brigade during the Mutiny, and obtained the decoration of the Victoria Croſs for his gallantry during an engagement at Dacca, Bengal, on 22nd November, 1857, between No. 4, I.N. Detachment, and the mutineers of the 73rd Native Infantry and Bengal Artillery. Charles Rathbone Low, in deſcribing the engagement in his "Hiſtory of the Indian Navy, 1613—1863" (London, Bentley, 1877), vol. ii. page 442, ſtates that "After half an hour's hard fighting the buildings were carried, though not without conſiderable loſs to the ſailors, who eſpecially ſuffered when clearing the loop-holed barracks on the Embankment. As a laſt hope the Sepoys made a ſtand around the nine-pounder gun which they had ſtill at work, and the ſailors now prepared to charge down upon it from the top of the Embankment, where they remained under cover to reform after capturing the barracks. A young midſhipman, (Mr.

who ſerves in India during the Mutiny,

Arthur Mayo, a gallant and accomplifhed young officer,) who was awarded the Victoria Crofs for his gallant conduct on the occafion, placed himfelf at the head of about twenty of his men, and led them at full fpeed, and with a loud 'hurrah!' ftraight upon the gun."

Lieutenant Lewis, the commanding officer, fays in his defpatch, "I beg particularly to bring to notice the conduct of Mr. Midfhipman Mayo, who led the laft charge on their guns moft gallantly, being nearly twenty yards in front of the men." The defpatch from the Governor-General in Council, 4th December, 1857, ftates, "His Lordfhip in Council notices with approbation the conduct of Mr. Midfhipman Mayo in leading a charge againft the enemy's guns."

Arthur Mayo was alfo engaged in operations againft the Abor hillmen, where he was flightly wounded, and mentioned for bravery in the defpatches of Lieut.-Colonel S. F. Hannay, commanding the expedition. He was gazetted as a recipient of the Victoria Crofs, 25th February, 1862, and prefented at the Levée, 22nd June, 1864, to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in the abfence of the Queen, by the Secretary of State for India.

CHAPTER VII.

Thomas Mayo and William Mayo, M.A., sons of Charles Mayo of S. Peter's in Hereford, together with the offspring of Thomas Mayo.

Thomas Mayo, born at Hereford,

THE present chapter is devoted to the history of another branch of the Mayo family, and begins with the name of Thomas Mayo, fifth son of Charles Mayo and Anne (née Prichard), who was baptised in the parish of S. Peter in Hereford 29th October, 1723. He was admitted a freeman 18th June, 1747, and continued to reside in that city, where he filled the office of Mayor in 1767. He was buried at S. Peter's 8th December, 1779. His will is dated 7th February, 1775, and was proved in the Consistory Court of the Diocese 4th January, 1780, by which he leaves a portion of his property to his wife, £300 to trustees for the use of his son John at the University, and £1000 to be given to his daughter Mercy-Beata.

marries Deborah Watkins,

Thomas Mayo married 18th February, 1755, by licence (S. Owen's Register), Deborah, daughter of James and Eliza Watkins, and the marriage is registered in the Royal College of Arms. She was buried at S. Peter's 16th October, 1805, and her will proved 28th February, 1806, in the Consistory Court.

and has a daughter, Mercy-Beata Mayo,

They had issue a daughter, Mercy-Beata,[1] baptised 26th August, 1757, at S. Peter's, who died unmarried, 29th April, 1831, and was buried in S. John's Wood Cemetery, and a son, John Mayo, baptised 19th December, 1761, in the same parish.

[1] See Chapter IV., p. 51. The name Mercy-Beata appears to have been adopted from Mercy-Beata, the wife of James Brome of Withington, gent. (executor to Charles Mayo in 1741), daughter of Timothy Geers and Mercy his wife, daughter of Henry Winford of Astley, Worcestershire (second son of Sir John Winford, Knt.), and Mercy his wife, sister of Sir Thomas Cookes, Bart., founder of Worcester College, Oxford, and daughter of Sir William Cookes of Norgrove, Bart., by his second wife, Mercy, daughter of Edward Dineley of Charlton, Worcestershire.

John Mayo matriculated at Oxford, 1ſt June, 1778, aged ſixteen, as "generoſi filius," having entered at Braſenoſe College, and he graduated B.A. 14th January, 1782. He was elected Fellow of Oriel College, 16th April, 1784, and proceeded M.A. 2nd June, 1785, B.M. 31ſt January, 1787, D.M. 15th July, 1788, as a member of that Society. He was admitted a Candidate of the Royal College of Phyſicians, 30th September, 1788, and a Fellow, 30th September, 1789, and he was Cenſor in 1790, 1795, 1797, 1804, and 1808, Harveian Orator in 1795, and Elect on 10th April, 1807, which laſt office he reſigned, 6th October, 1813. He was Phyſician to the Foundling Hoſpital from July, 1787, to 1809, and to the Middleſex Hoſpital from 6th November, 1788, to the date of his reſignation, 11th January, 1803, and he was alſo Phyſician in Ordinary to the Princeſs of Wales. He is deſcribed in 1789 as of Lamb's Conduit Street, and in 1812 of Albany, in London.

and a ſon, John Mayo, M.A., D.M., F.R.C.P., Fellow of Oriel College,

Phyſician to the Foundling Hoſpital,

Eraſmus Wilſon, in his "Hiſtory of the Middleſex Hoſpital," 1845, page 197, gives an account of Dr. Mayo's appointment at that inſtitution.

"In the month of September, 1788, it was reſolved by the weekly board that by reaſon of the avocations of Dr. Smyth and Dr. Milman it is expedient to elect an additional phyſician to the hoſpital. Some preparations for this vacancy had been made on the preceding board-day, when Dr. John Mayo became a governor of the Hoſpital, and at the preſent board the Rev. Dr. Herbert Mayo paid his 'firſt annual ſubſcription.' The candidates for office were Dr. John Mayo and Dr. John Hamon. The latter gentleman, at the quarterly Court held November 6th, 1788, withdrew his pretenſions, and Dr. Mayo was unanimouſly elected." Later on in the ſame work, at page 200, we read that, "at the weekly board, December, 1802, it was 'moved by Mr. Treaſurer Collick and ſeconded by Mr. Howard, ſurgeon, which motion was carried unanimouſly, that Dr. Mayo, who has been phyſician to this hoſpital with equal advantage to the charity and honour to himſelf for fourteen years be ſolicited to attend the cancer ward as phyſician extraordinary.'" Dr. Mayo's reply was as follows :—

and Phyſician to the Middleſex Hoſpital.

4 January, 1803.

Letters written by Dr. John Mayo.

SIR,

The reſolution of the laſt board, containing a requeſt that I would attend the cancer ward as phyſician extraordinary, needs only the confirmation of a general court to have my moſt hearty acquieſcence. I ſee in the adminiſtration of that part of its eſtabliſhment the moſt important intereſts of the inſtitution involved ; and as far as in me lies I ſhall be happy to join my endeavours to thoſe of my colleagues to enſure its ſucceſs. If, in the ſituation I have now for ſome years held as one of the phyſicians of the hoſpital, I have acquired the approbation of the board, I cannot forget how much of that I owe to the kind aſſiſtance of thoſe colleagues. I have the honour to be your faithful ſervant,

JOHN MAYO.

At the next weekly board the following letter was received from Dr. John Mayo:—

Berners St.
January 11, 1803.

SIR,

It was my intention, juſt before I was afflicted with the illneſs from which I am happily now recovered, to reſign the ſituation I have for many years filled of one of the phyſicians to the Middleſex hoſpital; and I heſitated only leſt my reſignation, conſidered as the conſequence of my illneſs, might appear to the public as a relinquiſhment of all my profeſſional purſuits; at the ſame time I had the ſatisfaction of knowing that my ſhare of duty in the hoſpital was very ably executed by my colleagues. The flattering offer which has been made me by the board of the new appointment of phyſician extraordinary to the cancer ward makes me reluctant to quit the hoſpital altogether, and as the duties of the ſituation are not incompatible with my other profeſſional engagements, I have done myſelf the honour to accept the appointment, provided it meets with the concurrence of the next quarterly Court. In the meantime I muſt reſign the office I now hold; and truſt it will be to the general intereſts of the charity at large that my attention ſhould be ſolely directed to the cancer eſtabliſhment.

I have the honour to be, etc.,
JOHN MAYO.

Dr. Mayo held this new appointment until 1817. "For many years before his death," to quote Dr. Munk's Roll of the Royal College of Phyſicians, 1861, vol. ii., page 343, "it was Dr. Mayo's cuſtom to divide his time between London and Tunbridge Wells, reſiding at the latter during the ſummer months. There he enjoyed the implicit confidence of all ranks, and took the undiſputed lead in the medical buſineſs and emoluments of that town and neighbourhood."

Dr. Mayo fixed his permanent abode in Tunbridge Wells in 1817, and dying ſoon after was buried at Speldhurſt, 8th December, 1818, and his will was proved in the Prerogative Court (Creſwell 573). He was the author of a ſmall pamphlet entitled, "The information and complaint made to the Court at the Hoſpital for the Maintenance and Education of expoſed and deſerted children. London. 1790." 8vo.

He marries 1. Jane, d. of Thomas Cock, gent.;

He twice married, on the firſt occaſion, 5th February, 1789, Jane, daughter of Thomas Cock of Tottenham.[1]

[1] The will of Thomas Cock of Tottenham, gentleman, dated 30th November, 1790, was proved in the Prerogative Court 1ſt December, 1791 (Bevor 562). He mentions the marriage-ſettlement of his preſent wife, Ann Green, dated 20th Auguſt, 1760, and his three children by her, viz., John, Thomas, and Ann Cock: Jane, the only ſurviving child of his firſt wife, and then married to Dr.

Lyſons, in his "Environs of London," 1795, vol. ii., page 257, under "Edmonton," ſtates that the Manor of Deephams was aliened by Thomas Highlord Ravenſcroft, Eſq. to Thomas Cock, Eſq. of Tottenham, whoſe widow, Mrs. Anne Cock, was proprietor at the date of his work. A note in the "Gentleman's Magazine" at the end of the year 1791 records that "Lately, at his houſe at Tottenham, a martyr to the gout, died Thomas Cock, Eſq., a Hamburgh merchant."

Dr. John Mayo married ſecondly, on 12th September, 1812, Frances-Lavinia, daughter of William Fellowes of Ramſey Abbey and Nacton, Suffolk, M.P. for Sudbury and Andover, who died 4th February, 1804,—by Lavinia his wife, daughter and coheir of James Smyth of S. Audries, Somerſet. She died without iſſue in 1837.

and 2. Frances-Lavinia, d. of William Fellowes, M.P.;

A pedigree of the family of Fellowes may be ſeen in Hutchins' Hiſtory of Dorſet, third edition, vol. ii., p. 565, under "Stinsford," and in Burke's Hiſtory of the Landed Gentry, ſixth edition, 1879, page 551.

Arms of Fellowes, Azure, a feſs dancette ermine between three lions' heads Or murally crowned Argent.

Dr. John Mayo had iſſue by his firſt wife three ſons, Thomas, John, and Herbert. Thomas Mayo the eldeſt ſon was baptiſed 1ſt March, 1790, at S. Andrew's, Holborn, as ſon of "John Mayo M.D. and Jane his wife, of Lamb's Conduit Street." His education was begun under the Rev. John Smith of Eltham, with whom he remained three years, and he was then for eighteen months at Weſtminſter School. In a note to Dr. Munk, dated 28th May, 1861, Dr. Mayo writes, "I was a fellow of Oriel, to the attainment of which honour I had pledged myſelf to my father, provided he would permit me to eſcape the "foundation" of Weſtminſter and its peculiar training, which combined with a very fair proportion of Latin and Greek occaſional aeroſtation in a blanket."

and has three ſons, 1. Thomas Mayo, M.A., D.M., F.R.C.P., F.R.S.,

"He was therefore," Dr. Munk adds, "transferred to the private tuition of the Rev. George Richards, Vicar of Bampton, and formerly fellow of Oriel College, a diſtinguiſhed ſcholar, and ſtill remembered by his prize poem, 'The Aboriginal Britons.' Under Mr. Richards' guidance he made rapid progreſs and in due courſe was entered at Oriel College, Oxford, and gained a fellowſhip of that Houſe. He paſſed a moſt brilliant examination, and took a firſt claſs in Literis humanioribus." (Roll of Royal College of Phyſicians, 2nd edition, vol. iii., p. 200.) He had matriculated at Oxford, 10th June, 1807, aged 17, gained his firſt claſs in Eaſter Term, 1811, and graduated B.A. 24th October the ſame year. An who proceeds to Oxford, and paſſes a brilliant examination.

John Mayo: his brother John Cock, gentleman, of Cheſterfield co. Derby: his ſiſter Sarah Blacker: his niece Jane, daughter of his brother William Cock. In a codicil without date he mentions the intended marriage of his daughter Ann with Mr. Cooper. Robinſon, in his "Hiſtory of Tottenham," 1840, vol. i., page 136, mentions that in 1789 corn and oil mills, a houſe, and 51 acres of land attached, were ſold to the late Mr. John Cock for £3000, who in 1836 ſold the freehold of this property to the New River Company for a very conſiderable ſum of money.

interesting extract may here be given from a letter written by Dr. Copleston (Provost of Oriel, 1814, and Bishop of Llandaff) to Mr. Richards.

Letter from Dr. Copleston.

Oriel College, 15th May, 1811.

"My dear Richards,

It will give you I know unfeigned pleasure to hear that Mayo has acquitted himself nobly at his examination. It was by far the best appearance I have ever witnessed. He had Aristotle's Ethics Rhetoric and Poetics, all the Tragedians, all Homer, Demosthenes, Thucydides and Pindar, Tacitus, Livy, Virgil and Juvenal. His Greek Testament and answers in religion were all excellent as well as his logic.

I often wished you had been present to witness the firm clear and manly expression he gave to the meaning of his authors, and his wonderfully accurate account of the argumentative treatises of Aristotle. He has gained already no small reputation by the display he made in the schools, and there can be no doubt this will receive a durable stamp when the list of honours appears. He fully justified the opinion I had conceived very early and which I communicated to you of the manly tone and vigour of his intellect. He has besides great firmness of nerve and a ready command of language which all turned to a good account on this occasion."

Dr. Copleston wrote at the same time to Mayo's father, as follows, "Although I have had some experience in the matter myself, I must say without hesitation that it was the best classical examination I ever heard."

The Rev. John Davison (author of "Discourses on Prophecy") in a letter to Mr. Richard sspeaks in similar terms, and adds that Mayo received "what was a very unusual thing from that solemn bench the immediate applause of some of the examining tutors."

He is elected Fellow of Oriel College.

Thomas Mayo was elected Fellow of Oriel 23rd April, 1813, and proceeded M.A. 1st June, 1814, B.M. 4th February, 1815, and D. M. 17th June, 1818. He entered upon his profession at Tunbridge Wells, but at the date of his marriage in 1817 he is described as "of Queen Anne Street," London. On the death of his father in the following year he succeeded to his large and remunerative practice in the former town. In 1835 he settled in London, and resided at 56, Wimpole Street, and was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society on the fourth of June in the same year. On 25th March, 1841, he was elected Physician to the Marylebone Infirmary. He was also Physician in Ordinary to H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex.

He settles in London,

Again to quote the narrative of Dr. Munk. "He had been admitted an Inceptor-Candidate of the College of Physicians 25th June, 1816, a Candidate 30th September, 1818, and a Fellow, 30th September, 1819. He was Censor in 1835, 1839, and 1850. He delivered the Lumleian Lectures in 1839 and 1842, the Harveian Oration in 1841, and the Croonian Lectures in 1853. He was Con-ſiliarius in 1838, in 1842 to 1844, in 1848 to 1850, in 1852 to 1854, and laſtly in 1856, and was named an Elect 26th June, 1847. Finally, on the 5th of January, 1857, he was elected Preſident in ſucceſſion to Dr. Paris, deceaſed, and was annually re-elected until 1862, when he was ſucceeded by Sir Thomas Watſon, Bart.

and is elected Preſident of the Royal College of Phyſicians,

"Dr. Mayo preſided over the College at a moſt critical period of its hiſtory, when it was undergoing thoſe changes in its conſtitution that were rendered neceſſary by the Medical Act of 21 and 22 Victoria. In the lengthened deliberations which preceded the fundamental alterations finally agreed on, Dr. Mayo, as preſident, took an active part, and the fellows of the College acknowledged their ſenſe of his ſervices by retaining him for another year in his office as preſident, on the change in the mode of election, when the eight elects and the excluſive election of preſident from and by that order were aboliſhed and the election to the preſidency was veſted in the fellows at large. On his retiring from that poſition in 1862, it was propoſed which office he holds till 1862.

THE AUTOGRAPH OF THOMAS MAYO, M.A., D.M., F.R.S.

by Dr. Hawkins, ſeconded by Sir Charles Locock, Bart., and agreed to unanimouſly in a very large aſſembly of the fellows, 'That the ſincere and cordial thanks of the College be returned to Dr. Mayo, the late Preſident, for the indefatigable zeal and entire devotion, the never-failing courteſy and dignity, with which he has preſided over the College during upwards of five years, and eſpecially for his great and diſintereſted ſervices in promoting and carrying into effect during his period of office important changes in the ſtate and conſtitution of the College.'"

From this time Dr. Mayo withdrew from practice, and reſided firſt at Yarmouth in the Iſle of Wight, and then at Corſham, Wilts, where he died 13th January, 1871, and where he was interred. His portrait, painted by J. Lonſdale, is in the poſſeſſion of his ſon Charles-Thomas Mayo, and a crayon drawing of his likeneſs was preſented in 1880 to the College of Phyſicians by G. Richmond, R.A. The latter, with the permiſſion of the College and the artiſt, has been engraved for inſertion in this work.

Extract from the "Journal of Pſychological Medicine."

The "Journal of Pſychological Medicine," vol. x., p. 412, ſpeaks thus of Dr. Mayo in 1856. "The election of this eminent phyſician to the high and honourable office of Preſident of the Royal College of Phyſicians, conſequent on the death of Dr. Paris, is entitled to more than a paſſing notice. We have on more than one occaſion conſidered it to be our duty to oppoſe in this journal ſome of the medico-pſychological and judicial opinions propounded by Dr. Mayo; we nevertheleſs are glad to avail ourſelves of this opportunity of fully and freely acknowledging this phyſician's varied attainments, great talents, and undoubted private worth. As an accompliſhed and vigorous writer, acute and logical thinker, he occupies a high and enviable poſition among his contemporaries. Dr. Mayo's ſcholaſtic and literary attainments are of the higheſt order. We feel aſſured that he will gracefully wear the laurels that have fallen upon him, and that all the anxious and reſponſible duties of his elevated poſition will be diſcharged with honour to himſelf and with ſatisfaction to the profeſſion of which he forms ſo bright an ornament."

The recollections of Dr. Robert Druitt.

The following recollections of this phyſician have been communicated by Dr. Robert Druitt. "When I was attending the Middleſex Hoſpital in 1835 I found Dr. Thomas Mayo, whom I had ſeen in conſtant attendance on his brother's lectures on the nervous ſyſtem at King's College, equally diligent in going round with Dr., now Sir Thomas Watſon, and the other phyſicians, in their clinical viſits to the wards. His character at that time was pithily expreſſed by a ſtudent, who ſaid that he looked like a man who read Aretæus. In fact he inſpired reſpect by the depth and ſolidity of his attainments. He was affected with a ſort of nervous twitching of the eyes, which deprived him of the appearance of eaſe and fluency as a ſpeaker, yet he ſpoke readily and well, though with ſome apparent effort, and was always liſtened to with attention. He delivered a remarkable addreſs at one of the Friday evening meetings at the Royal Inſtitution in Albemarle Street, 11th May, 1860, 'On the relations of the Public to the Science and Practice of Medicine,' the Duke of Wellington being in the chair. But the boldeſt and beſt ſpeech I ever heard him make was at a meeting of the Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society in Berners Street, I think about the year 1845. The diſcuſſion was about meſmeriſm and its alleged power of producing anæſthetia or catalepſy, in ſo much that the patient might ſuffer a ſurgical operation without knowing it. At that time meſmeriſm was very unpopular; it was mixed up with a lot of incredible and diſcreditable theories and practices; nevertheleſs it is an eſtabliſhed fact that ſuch phenomena can be produced, and Dr. Mayo's calm, deep, philoſophical recognition of this was in ſtriking contraſt to the wild denunciations of thoſe who only regarded the roguery of the meſmeriſt, without conſidering the validity of the nervous phenomena which were indiſputable."

BILL.

Dr. Mayo twice married, on the first occasion, 28th November, 1817, at Alton, Staffordshire, Lydia, youngest daughter of John Bill, M.D., of Farley Hall in that county. She died 26th January, 1859, at Wimpole Street, aged 64, and was buried in Kensal Green Cemetery. An account of her family will be found in the concluding chapter.

and 2. Susan-Mary, Lady Symonds.

He married secondly, 6th November, 1861, at All Saints, Knightsbridge, Susan-Mary, widow of Rear-Admiral Sir William Symonds, and youngest daughter of John Briggs, clerk in Holy Orders, Fellow of Eton College. She died 27th May, 1869, and was buried at Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, s.p.

He has seven children.

He had issue by his first wife seven children.

I. Augustus-Frederick, born in Tunbridge Wells, who matriculated at Oxford 14th June, 1838, from Oriel College, and graduated B.A. 17th December, 1842, having obtained a third class in "Literis Humanioribus." He was called to the Bar, (Inner Temple,) in 1846, and died 20th April, 1869, aged 50 years, and was buried in the Brompton Cemetery. An article written by him, "On the compensatory relations between the faculties of Order and Memory," may be read in the "Journal of Psychological Medicine," vol. x., page 715.

II. Jane, born 31st December, 1821, at Tunbridge Wells, and died there in 1833.

III. John, born about the year 1825, and died about 1839.

IV. William-Reginald, born 18th April, 1830, at Tunbridge Wells.

V. Robert, born 29th February, 1832, at Tunbridge Wells, and matriculated at Oxford 12th June, 1851, aged 19, from Christ Church. He obtained a second class in Classical Moderations, and third classes in the Classical and Law and Modern History Schools, and graduated B.A. 7th February, 1856, and subsequently entered Holy Orders.

VI. Charles-Thomas, born 3rd January, 1834, at Tunbridge Wells, and educated for the law;—now a resident at Corsham, Wilts. He married 7th September, 1865, at Cameley, Somerset, Mary-Hayward, eldest daughter of Joseph Perrin of Templecloud, and has issue

i. Thomas, born 8th April, and died 9th April, 1866.

ii. Charles-Joseph, his twin brother.

iii. Edmund-Godfrey, born 26th April, 1867.

iv. Herbert-Edward, born 20th November, 1868.

v. Edith-Mary, born 10th April, 1870.

vi. John-Pym, born 31ſt January, 1872.

vii. Florence-Mary, born 10th October, 1873, and died 21ſt February, 1875.

All theſe were born at Corſham.

VII. Lydia, born 23rd March, 1836, in London.

The ſecond ſon of Dr. John Mayo and Jane his wife was named after his father John Mayo. He entered at Caius College, Cambridge, and graduated there B.M. in 1816. He afterwards was admitted to Holy Orders, and lived at Sutton-at-Hone, near Dartford, Kent. He died 14th July, and was buried at S. Mary's, Cheltenham, 23rd July, 1827, "aged 38 years."

John Mayo, B.M., ſecond ſon of John Mayo, D.M., enters Holy Orders,

He twice married; firſt, in 1813, Marianne-Frances Mantell, ſiſter of Very Rev. Edward-Reginald Mantell, M.A., of Horton Priory, Kent, Prebendary of Lincoln, Dean of Stamford, and Rector of Gretford cum Wilſthorpe, Lincolnſhire. She died 21ſt May, 1814, and was buried at Ware, Herts, having had one child John, who died in infancy, and was buried at Grantcheſter, Cambridgeſhire, 9th May, 1814. The arms of Mantell are Argent, a chevron engrailed between four martlets ſable.[1]

and marries 1. Marianne-Frances Mantell,

He married, ſecondly, 16th July, 1819, Mary-Hunter, ſecond daughter of John-Alexander Ogilvie[2] of Tanhurſt Park, near Dorking, and had iſſue an only child, Captain John-Pole Mayo, born 12th Auguſt, 1822, at Tanhurſt Park, baptiſed at Sutton-at-Hone, and ſubſequently an officer in the Royal Iriſh and 74th Highlanders. He married, 4th October, 1856, at S. Marylebone Church, London, Sarah, only daughter of Richard Criſpin of Sydney, New South Wales.

and 2. Mary-Hunter Ogilvie, and leaves a ſon, Capt. John-Pole Mayo.

Herbert Mayo, a noted phyſiologiſt and anatomiſt of the preſent century, was the third ſon of Dr. John Mayo and Jane his wife. He entered the Middleſex

[1] The following particulars relating to this family are taken from Baker's "Northamptonſhire," vol. i., page 183, and Halſted's "Kent," vol. iii., page 319. John Mauntell of Heyford in the former county, ſallying forth in company with his brother-in-law, Lord Dacre, and others, on a nocturnal frolic, to chaſe the deer in Sir Nicholas Pelham's park in Suſſex, encountered three men, one of whom was mortally wounded in the affray. Mauntell and his aſſociates were convicted of murder, executed 28th June, 1541, and their eſtates eſcheated to the Crown. His ſon, Walter Mauntell, who had purchaſed the ſite of Horton Priory of Sir Richard Tate, engaged in the inſurrection headed by Sir Thomas Wyatt, and being taken priſoner was ſent to the Tower, executed at Maidſtone 27th February, 1553-4, and attainted. His ſon Matthew was reſtored in blood, and the eſtate of Horton again granted to him and his heirs male, 13 Elizabeth. The Dean of Stamford is the laſt male repreſentative of this family.

[2] This lady had two brothers, Charles, R.N., killed in action off Fluſhing, and William-Henry-Middleton, of the 46th, and 4th King's Own, who died in India, and one ſiſter, who was married to her couſin Alexander Ogilvie, Lieut.-Colonel 46th regiment, of which he died in command in India. Hoſpital as ſurgical pupil 17th May, 1814, when Mr. John Joberns was ſurgeon of that inſtitution, and, as he himſelf tells us in his book on the Nervous Syſtem publiſhed in 1842, was a pupil of Sir Charles Bell during the years 1812, 1813, 1814, and 1815. He alſo ſtudied at Leyden, and was M.D. of that Univerſity. He was appointed Houſe Surgeon at the Middleſex Hoſpital 18th Auguſt, 1818, and a year after, on the 6th of Auguſt, 1819, became a Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, of which ſociety he appears as one of the Fellows in the firſt liſt, 1843. He next became Lecturer on Anatomy in the celebrated Medical School in Great Windmill Street, an eſtabliſhment which was conducted by a joint body of lecturers connected with the Middleſex and other London Hoſpitals; and on the 1ſt of January, 1827, publiſhed his firſt edition of "Outlines of Human Phyſiology," being heads of phyſiological lectures delivered in that ſchool. He was appointed Surgeon of the Middleſex Hoſpital 23rd Auguſt, 1827, which poſt he reſigned on account of long continued illneſs, 15th November, 1842. He was Profeſſor of Anatomy and Surgery to the Royal College of Surgeons, 1828 and 1829, and was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society 17th April, 1828. On the eſtabliſhment of King's College he received the appointment of Profeſſor of Anatomy, which he held from 1830 to 1836, and was Profeſſor of Phyſiology and Pathological Anatomy at that inſtitution in the laſt named year. In 1832 he was elected a Fellow of the Geological Society. The Medical School in connection with the Middleſex Hoſpital was commenced 1ſt October, 1835, and Herbert Mayo held the poſition of Lecturer on Surgery from the cloſe of the ſeſſion of 1836-7 till his reſignation in 1842-3.

Notes by Dr. R. Druitt.

The following valuable particulars relating to Herbert Mayo's career and his contributions to ſcience have been furniſhed by Dr. Robert Druitt.

Herbert Mayo's Commentaries

"In Auguſt, 1822, appeared the firſt part of the Anatomical and Phyſiological Commentaries, the ſecond and only other part in July, 1823. Theſe Commentaries are a collection of eſſays deſcribing various points of anatomy and phyſiology made out by H. Mayo's own reſearches, but there are two points which give them an enduring place in the annals of medical literature. In the firſt place they contain an elaborate, ſomewhat abridged, tranſlation of Profeſſor Reil's papers on the minute anatomy of the brain, tranſlated from the original German 'Archiven für die Phyſiologie' of Reil and Autenrieth, 1807 and 1808, quite unknown in England before Mayo's tranſlation, and illuſtrated by 14 Plates, drawn and printed by W. Sheldrick. Theſe papers of Reil's in their Engliſh dreſs form the mine to which every one had recourſe who deſired a ſound knowledge, ſo far as it goes, of the moſt difficult and intricate part of human anatomy. The brain, as is well known, conſiſts of two portions, one a grey cineritious ſubſtance, compoſed of minute cells or veſicles and ſuppoſed to be the ſeat of the real operations of the nervous ſyſtem; the other part is a white or medullary ſubſtance, compoſed of minute tubes or hollow fibrillæ forming an infinity of connections between the different parts of the brain and ſpinal cord.

are remarkable for an account of the minute anatomy of the brain,

Of ſimilar ſtructure, but firmer, are the nerves which are attached at one end to the brain or ſpinal cord, and at the other to every part of the body. The courſe of the medullary fibres of the brain may be ſhown in a rough manner by ſcraping or tearing —(the maſs is of about the conſiſtency of blancmange)—a method which was, as Mayo called it, facile and popular, and was much employed by phrenologiſts. Reil's method was much more ſevere and thorough. He immerſed the brain in alcohol till it had become ſhrunken and hard, and thus was enabled to give, not a paſſing glimpſe merely, but a poſitive demonſtration of the courſe of the fibres, or at leaſt of ſuch of them as are capable of being traced. For the next 10 or 15 years phrenology, or craniology as it better deſerves to be called, was very popular with people who would now be ſaid to be of 'advanced thought.' Mayo ridiculed and hated it, for he was diſſatisfied with their anatomical method, and affirmed that there was no connection between the ſo-called organs into which the ſurface of the head was mapped out, and the real ſubdiviſions of the brain within.

and for his claim to the diſcovery of the real function of the nerves of the face.

"The ſecond point of intereſt about the Commentaries is that No. I., Auguſt, 1822, contains Mayo's aſſertion of his diſcovery of the real function of the nerves of the face, and his account of the experiments which proved it. This was the ſtarting point of an exceedingly bitter and prolonged controverſy with Sir Charles Bell, who alſo claimed the diſcovery. In order to make this clear we muſt obſerve that there are certain points about the nerves which continued unſolved puzzles till the year 1822, when they were cleared up by the ſimultaneous but independent reſearches of Magendie, Sir C. Bell, and Herbert Mayo. It is well known that an ordinary nerve, ſuch as thoſe of the limbs, contains bound up in one ſheath and inextricably united together the nerves of ſenſation which convey impreſſions from the ſurface to the centre, and the motor nerves which ſet the muſcles in action by a force travelling from the centre to the circumference. It was long known that each nerve-trunk that ſtarts from the ſpinal cord ariſes by two ſets of roots, the anterior and the poſterior; the poſterior has on it a ſmall ganglion or knot of nervous matter; the two roots ſoon unite to form inextricably one trunk, which ſerves for ſenſation and motion. It was not known till Magendie eſtabliſhed it by experiment in 1822 that the poſterior roots of the ſpinal nerves are the real nerves of ſenſation, and the anterior the nerves of motion, which are diſtinct at their origin but ſoon become blended as we have ſaid. The nerves of the face offered a ſtill greater puzzle; there are three on each ſide, one emerging from the ſkull above the eyebrow, (ſupraorbital or frontal,) another below the eye on the cheek, (infraorbital,) and the third on the lower jaw, (inferior maxillary,) while there is another and very remarkable nerve which paſſes through the internal ear and radiates forward over the whole of the forehead, face, and noſe; this is known as the 'portio dura' of the ſeventh nerve. The three nerves firſt mentioned conſtitute the three diviſions of the fifth pair or trigeminus nerve; a nerve which, like the ſpinal nerves, ariſes by two roots; one of thefe has a ganglion and is a fenfitive nerve fupplying, as it is now well known, the fenfation of the head and face; the fifth nerve has another fmall portion which correfponds with the anterior root of the fpinal nerve and is diftributed folely to the mufcles of maftication. Now the firft clear and emphatic announcement of the function of thefe nerves of the face was made by Herbert Mayo, in No. I. of his Commentaries, dated Auguft, 1822, page 112. 'I infer,' he fays, 'from the preceding experiments, that in the afs the portio dura is a fimple nerve of voluntary motion; and that the frontal, infraorbital, and inferior maxillary are nerves of fenfation only.'

"Sir Charles Bell up to this time held that the three divifions of the fifth or trigeminus nerve, namely frontal, infraorbital, and inferior maxillary are 'mufcular nerves, ordering the voluntary movements of the frame; that they are all exquifitely fenfible and the fource of the common fenfibility of the body.' On the other hand that the portio dura with others are 'refpiratory nerves,' that is to fay, 'they connect the internal organs of refpiration with the fenfibilities of remote parts, and with the refpiratory mufcles, and are diftinguifhed from thofe of which we have been fpeaking by many circumftances.' With reference to Sir C. Bell's memoirs publifhed in the Philofophical Tranfactions for 1821 and 1822, 'his main point,' fays Dr. Whewell, 'is that certain nerves are nerves of fenfation and volition, and that certain others are refpiratory nerves. This refpiratory fyftem of nerves, faid Bell, is fuperadded to that of mere feeling and agency.'

The refulting controverfy.

"Nevertheleefs we foon find, namely in June, 1823 (fee Phil. Trans. 1821, 1822, and 1823), Bell abandoning his recently expreffed views, and claiming for himfelf the difcovery which Mayo in Auguft, 1822, afferted as his own. Great are the bitternefs and eagernefs with which rival phyfiologifts contend for the honour of priority in refearch or experiment and the tranfmiffion of their names in the annals of fcience. Bell was a man fingularly genial and popular, he had been working hard at the nerves for years, propounding various theories which time has obliterated. No doubt he came very near the truth in his experiments on the afs, and it may have been deeply mortifying to find the laft glimmer of uncertainty cleared away by a younger man who repeated Bell's experiments and deduced conclufions from them which he had been unable to fee.[1] Mayo was a man of clearer and acuter intellect than Bell, but Bell's claims were backed by a large circle of friends, amongft whom were the Edinburgh Reviewers. Dr. Whewell in his Hiftory of the Inductive Sciences, vol. iii., page 425, had coupled Mayo's name with Bell's as author of difcoveries in [1] Mayo, as has already been mentioned, was a pupil of Sir Charles Bell for four years ending in 1815. Up to this point, he fays, he was familiar with Bell's refearches. "After this he was not in any way of knowing, and did not know anything whatever of the nature of Sir Charles Bell's refearches except through his publifhed writings." ("The Nervous Syftem and its Functions," 1842, page 37.)

the nervous ſyſtem; for this he was attacked by the Edinburgh Review, which repudiated Mayo's claim, and accuſed Whewell of unfairneſs towards Bell. This attack led Whewell to ſtudy the whole ſubject 'ab initio,' and he ſummed up his judgment on the whole caſe in a remarkable letter to the Editor of the London Medical Gazette, dated Dec. 11th, 1837. In this he reaffirms the view that we have given above of Mayo's clear enunciation in Auguſt, 1822, of the purely ſenſitive action of the three nerves of the face and of the purely motor character of the portio dura. At the ſame time he beſtows a warm and deſerved eulogy on Sir Charles Bell's reſearches and ſhows that he very narrowly miſſed the entire truth. 'No injuſtice,' ſays Dr. Whewell, 'was committed by joining Mr. Mayo's name to that of Sir C. Bell as I did. I ſhould deſcribe the diſcovery as having been made by Sir Charles Bell, Mr. Mayo, and Mr. Magendie; the two latter phyſiologiſts having corrected and completed the reſearches of the former.'

ſummed up by Dr. Whewell.

"The writer of theſe pages has carefully read through Sir Charles Bell's memoir on the Nerves of the Face, publiſhed in the Philoſophical Tranſactions for 1821, and compared it with Mayo's Anatomical Commentaries, 1822, and his judgment is that Mayo was the firſt in enunciating the poſitive doctrine that the portio dura is the nerve of voluntary motion for the face, and the fifth nerve, the nerve of common ſenſation to the ſame. It is true there are certain paſſages in Sir Charles Bell's treatiſe in 1821 which make it difficult to conceive how he could have miſſed the truth, whilſt there are other paſſages which ſhow poſitively that he did miſs it. Meanwhile, Mayo's ſtatement and claim in 1822 were clear, preciſe, and unmiſtakable.

"When the Medical School was eſtabliſhed at King's College, London, Herbert Mayo was appointed its firſt Profeſſor of Anatomy and Phyſiology. While he held this office he ſeemed to have obtained a ſolid poſition which brought all the higher honours and emoluments of the profeſſion within his graſp. His maſtery of the anatomy of the nervous ſyſtem, as evinced by his admirable plates and his Commentaries, was undiſputed ſave by the phrenologiſts. His clear and comprehenſive 'Phyſiology' was in every ſtudent's hand; his 'Pathology' ſhowed that his inſight into diſeaſed ſtructure was as profound as his knowledge of the healthy. He was an admirable ſurgeon and held a poſition at Middleſex Hoſpital which enabled him to ſhow his ſkill to the world. He was an admirable operator, and if he was conſidered to have a fault it was that he was rather too fond of exhibiting his operative ſkill when milder meaſures would have ſufficed. For example he amputated the thigh of a girl at the hip joint for neuralgia. As a teacher he was admirable, bringing forward the leading facts or doctrines without ſuperfluous detail, and illuſtrating them with impromptu drawings on the black-board in which he ſhowed great power as a draughtſman. He was an accompliſhed ſcholar, profoundly verſed in the beſt Engliſh literature and hiſtory, of a peculiarly quaint and pithy ſtyle of converſa-tion, and he had a great power of attaching the ſtudents to him, which is one of the higheſt praiſes that can be accorded to any profeſſor.

His brilliant introductory lecture at King's College.

"The writer of this memorandum began his medical ſtudies at King's College in October, 1834, in which year Mayo gave the introductory lecture to the Seſſion, a brilliant diſcourſe in which the orator unfolded to his delighted hearers the myſteries of the then little known facts which ſhow that all living things are linked together in a kind of unity and continuity, and that the higheſt animals in their embryonic period paſs through ſtages and transformations reſembling thoſe ſtructures which are permanent in the lower animals. During that portion of his lecture which related to the nervous ſyſtem the front bench of the theatre contained many veteran practitioners, amongſt whom his brother, Dr. Thomas Mayo, ſince Preſident of the Royal College of Phyſicians, was a conſtant attendant. If ever a man ſeemed to have his foot firmly planted on the ladder, that man was Herbert Mayo, and it is ſad to have to relate how his poſition was loſt, his health ſhattered, his practice failed, till he retired to the banks of the Rhine, and died in exile.

Rivalry between King's and Univerſity Colleges.

"Firſt amongſt his misfortunes was a certain inſtability of mind; he could not make up his mind to take his ſide and ſtick to it. King's College, London, as is well known, was founded by Church people in order to counterbalance the ſuppoſed influence of the lately eſtabliſhed London Univerſity, whoſe principles did not include religious teaching. King's College on the contrary took for its motto, 'Sancte et ſapienter,' and aimed at training its alumni in the paths of faith and diſcipline. But like many other new and very large inſtitutions King's College was not at firſt ſucceſsful, ſo far as its medical ſchool was concerned. The College ſyſtem was denounced, and its Profeſſors held up to ſpecial ridicule by the Lancet, a journal which at that time was ſuppoſed to take a radical view of medical affairs, and which employed all its battery of ſcurrility againſt the Profeſſors of the College. The character of the oppoſition may be gathered from the fact that nicknames formed one of the moſt important weapons againſt the profeſſors, and that Mayo was perſiſtently called the 'Middleſex Owl.' Meanwhile the medical ſchool at the Univerſity of London, under its free-thinking ſyſtem as it was then thought, was more popular and lucrative, and we muſt record with a bluſh the fact that Mayo, tempted by the proſpect of a riſe in the profeſſion, had the incredible want of wiſdom and good taſte to apply for a vacant profeſſorſhip at Univerſity College. This falſe ſtep naturally exaſperated his colleagues at King's College, who unanimouſly called on him to reſign. I need hardly ſay that the Univerſity College people only laughed at him. After this he ſucceeded in founding a ſmall medical ſchool at the Middleſex Hoſpital, which from ſmall beginnings has become a highly reſpectable ſchool of great practical reputation. Soon after this he became affected by gradually increaſing rheumatic gout, which reduced him to a ſtate of the utmoſt helpleſſneſs, and he left his large houſe at 19 George St., Hanover Square, for a lodging in St. James Place.

Herbert Mayo retires from King's College.

His health fails,

"It is painful to have to relate as part of the caſe that Mayo threw himſelf into the hands of the meſmeriſts. His Philoſophy of Living is a little gem of a book, witty, quaint, and ſhowing great knowledge of what may be called the philoſophy of common life and all that miniſters to its enjoyment. His ſubſequent works ſeem written with painful effort."[1]

The memoir of Herbert Mayo in the "Imperial Dictionary of Univerſal Biography" tells us that "About the time when public attention was firſt directed to hydropathy Mayo was debarred from profeſſional exertion by ſevere chronic rheumatiſm. Having tried without benefit the uſual methods of treatment, he went to Germany, and placed himſelf under the care of a hydropathic practitioner. From him he ſtates he obtained relief, although during the reſt of his life he continued crippled by anchyloſis of the joints. He ſubſequently became part proprietor and phyſician in a hydropathic eſtabliſhment at Boppart, and afterwards at Bad-Weilbach near Mayence." It is added in a notice in the "Medical Times," vol. xxvi., page 226, that "Although he practiſed hydropathy he only uſed it as one means of cure, and not as the ſole remedy for the diſeaſe." Sir Charles Scudamore, in his work entitled, "A Medical Viſit to Gräfenſberg in 1843, for the purpoſe of inveſtigating the merits of the Water-cure Treatment," ſays, "I was happy in the opportunity of meeting with my friend Mr. Mayo, whom I had attended occaſionally in London, when ſuffering moſt ſeverely from chronic rheumatiſm. I was extremely gratified to find him in a ſatisfactory ſtate of improvement."

and he retires to Germany,

Herbert Mayo died at Bad-Weilbach, 15th Auguſt, 1852, from mortification of the arm conſequent upon paralyſis. His portrait has been painted by J. Lonſdale, from which a mezzotinto engraving has been made by David Lucas, and a copy may be ſeen in the Hope Collection, in the Camera Bodleiana, Oxford.

June, 1742, aged 16, as "generosi filius," from Brasenose College, and two days after was admitted Somerset Scholar, and was subsequently Fellow on that Foundation. He proceeded B.A. 11th October, 1746, and M.A. 19th June, 1749; was ordained Deacon 20th May, 1749, and Priest 10th June, 1750, by Thomas Bishop of Oxford in Christ Church Cathedral; and was presented by the College to the Rectory of Wootton Rivers, Wilts, and instituted 11th May, 1768, and constantly resided on his living from the year 1770. He died 15th May, 1800, without issue, and was buried in the church of his parish on the 19th of the same month. By his will, dated 14th April, 1797, and proved 27th May, 1800, in the Prerogative Court (Adderley 388), he left all his real and personal estate to Dorothy, his wife and executrix. He married Dorothy, daughter of Simon Whorwood Adeane of Chalgrove, Oxfordshire. Mrs. Mayo in her will, dated 3rd January, 1803, and proved 20th November, 1807, in the Prerogative Court (Lushington 908), mentions her brothers Whorwood and John Adeane, and directs a monument to be placed over their grave at Chalgrove, and another over her husband's grave in Wootton Rivers Church. She leaves £200 to the Rev. Joseph Mayo, Curate of Seend, and appoints as her executors the Rev. Joseph Phillimore and his son William Phillimore the Councillor. She was buried at Chalgrove, 1st May, 1807. An account of the family of Adeane of Chalgrove, subsequently of Babraham, will be found in the concluding chapter.

CHAPTER VIII.

Joseph Mayo, son of Charles Mayo of S. Peter's in Hereford, and his descendants in England, the United States, and South Australia.

JOSEPH MAYO was the thirteenth child and eighth ſon of Charles Mayo and Anne (née Prichard). He was baptiſed in the pariſh of S. Peter in Hereford 10th Auguſt, 1728, and reſided in Craven Street in the pariſh of S. Martin in the Fields, Weſtminſter, and afterwards at Old Windſor, Berks. He is reported to have been a man of engaging manners, and his ſociety was greatly prized by the circle of his friends. At the time of his death he was living at Ramſgate, and he was buried at S. Lawrence, in Thanet, Kent, 27th October, 1789. His will, dated 13th October, 1789, and proved 11th January, 1790, is in the Prerogative Court (Biſhop 31).

Joſeph Mayo, born at Hereford,

dies at Ramſgate.

His will.

The will of Joſeph Mayo of Ramſgate in the County of Kent, Eſquire. To my ſon the Revd. Mr. Cooke's bonds and all intereſt due thereon, and alſo what may be obtained from the eſtate of Thomas Wynter Eſq. in conſequence of my claims delivered in to him in his life-time. To my wife all houſehold goods, plate, etc. The reſt of my property I give to my nephew Charles Mayo of New Inn, in truſt to inveſt the ſame as ſoon as may be in the public funds, and to pay the intereſt and dividends thereof to my ſaid wife for her life, and after her deceaſe to aſſign pay or transfer the ſame to my ſaid ſon or his executors, etc. Mary Mayo my wife, and Charles Mayo my nephew, executors.

On 7th January, 1790, Herbert Mayo, D.D., Rector of S. George's, Middleſex, appeared and teſtified to the hand-writing of the deceaſed Joſeph Mayo.

Joſeph Mayo married 14th April, 1763, at S. Martin's in the Fields, Mary, relict of John Davies of S. Dunſtan's in the Weſt, London, and daughter of John Hutchinſon, Clerk in Holy Orders, of Aldgate, London, and Mary his wife. The marriage is regiſtered in the R. College of Arms. John Hutchinſon had matriculated at Oxford 5th July, 1715, aged 17, from Trinity College, as ſon of John Hutchinſon, gent., of Biſhopſgate, London, and graduated B.A. 17th April, 1719. In Sey-

Mary Hutchinſon was married to her firſt huſband at the age of ſixteen, by whom ſhe had one ſon who died in youth. At her ſecond marriage ſhe was ſtyled of S. Mary, Lambeth. She died 1804-6, and was buried in London.

and has an only ſon, Joſeph Mayo, M.A.,

Joſeph Mayo and Mary (née Hutchinſon) had iſſue one only child Joſeph Mayo, born 15th June and baptiſed 28th June, 1764, at S. Martin's in the Fields. He was ſent at the early age of five years to Marlborough Grammar School in Wiltſhire, and ſpent his Sundays with his Uncle, the Rector of the neighbouring pariſh of Wootton Rivers. Two years afterwards he was transferred to Eton College, where his entrance was ſignalized by a battle with another new boy, Frederick Eden (afterwards Sir F. M. Eden, Bart., who died 14th November, 1809), with whom he contracted a laſting friendſhip. On leaving Eton he matriculated at Oxford 16th January, 1783, aged 18, as "armigeri filius," from Univerſity College, and occupied rooms over the gateway looking into the High Street. He graduated B.A. 21ſt November, 1786, and M.A. 10th July, 1789. On leaving Oxford, and after a Continental tour, during which he viſited Paris and Bruſſels, he was ordained Deacon 3rd June, 1787, in the church of Mungewell, Oxfordſhire, by Shute Barrington, Biſhop of Sarum, and licenſed to the Curacy of Huiſh, Wilts, where his ſecond couſin Charles Mayo was then Rector; and on 19th October, 1788, was admitted to the Prieſthood, in the chapel of the Palace, Saliſbury, and licenſed to the Curacy of Seend, Wilts, at which place he reſided for about eighteen years. He was alſo Curate of the neighbouring pariſh of Poulſhot during a great portion of this period. In 1806 he removed to North Nibley in Glouceſterſhire, and lived at Nibley Houſe, where he kept a large and ſucceſsful ſchool of ſome forty pupils.[1]

On 11th June, 1819, he was licenſed to the Curacy of Ozleworth, and on 20th January, 1821, was inſtituted to the Rectory of the ſame place on the preſentation of Lewis Clutterbuck of Newark Park. In 1821 he was chaplain to William Miller of Ozleworth, High Sheriff of Glouceſterſhire in that year. Joſeph Mayo was ſhort in ſtature, and of an extremely active frame, and in his early days was a ſkilful fencer and ſkater. He had a remarkable ſenſe of parental authority which he ſucceeded in impreſſing upon his children and pupils, who looked up to him with the greateſt reverence. He enjoyed uninterrupted health during a life prolonged beyond the common average. He reſided at Ozleworth in the Rectory houſe, which he had enlarged, until his death, 30th December, 1851, and was buried in the churchyard to the eaſt of the chancel. His will was proved in London in 1852 (No. 577). A painted window over the altar, repreſenting the four Evangeliſts, was erected to his memory in the church of Folke, Dorſet, in December, 1875. He publiſhed "A Sermon preached at the Triennial Viſitation of the Hon. and Right Rev. Lord Biſhop of Glouceſter, held at Durſley on the xxiſt of June MDCCCXXII. By the Rev. Joſeph Mayo A.M. Rector of Ozleworth. Printed at the joint requeſt of his Lordſhip and the Clergy then preſent. London. Printed by R. Gilbert, St. John's Square, Clerkenwell, 1822." 8vo. pp. 19.

OZLEWORTH CHURCH, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

His religious views were thoſe of a High Churchman of the old ſchool, and in this reſpect he much reſembled his uncle Dr. Herbert Mayo, in whoſe church he had preached his firſt ſermon. A letter to his ſon William, dated 23rd February, 1843, of which an extract is given below, written ſoon after the publication of the celebrated charge of Biſhop Blomfield, will ſerve to indicate his eccleſiaſtical poſition.

"Ozleworth, 23rd February, 1843.

"Conſidering a late charge of the Biſhop of London, which muſt certainly have attracted the notice of the clergy, I have much wondered that you have not taken notice of it in your letters, particularly as you now live at the head quarters of one diviſion of the church. In my little way I have taken the hint of having the Sacrament once a month, and following the directions of the Rubric as far as the ſmall number in my pariſh require it, and even old as I am, was I in a place ſo as to have a congregation, I would follow all his directions, as I am ſure it would be of eſſential ſervice. If you have not heard of the charge, I would recommend you to buy it. An old friend of mine, whom I have never ſeen, and who has been my inſtructor, is mentioned in it, 'Herbert's Country Parſon.' "

He marries Mary-Jane, d. of George Gibbes, D.D.,

GIBBES.

Joſeph Mayo married 2nd March, 1789, at Seend, by licence, Mary-Jane, only daughter of George Gibbes, D.D., Rector of Woodborough, Wilts, and ſiſter of Sir George-Smith Gibbes, Knt., M.D., F.R.S., of 14, Queen's Square, Bath. His uncle William Mayo, Rector of Wootton Rivers, was the officiating Prieſt. She was born 26th March, 1766, and died 17th February, 1816, and was buried at Woodborough.

A ſtone on her grave in the churchyard bears this inſcription :

"Here lieth the body of Mary Jane wife of the Rev. Joſeph Mayo, and only daughter of the Rev. George Gibbes D.D. many years Rector of this Pariſh. She ceived Holy Orders in the Dioceſe of Glouceſter, and was Curate of Leighterton-cum-Boxwell in that County, and afterwards of Poulſhot, Wilts, and for ſome years reſided at Devizes, where he held the Chaplaincy of the Priſon from 1823 to 1839. He publiſhed "A Sermon preached at the Chapel of the new Priſon, Devizes, on the ſecond Sunday after the execution of George Maſlen, who was tried at the Summer Aſſizes and found guilty of ſhooting at, with intent to murder, Mr. Rumbold of Lyneham, on Tueſday evening, the 6th of February, 1838, on his return from Calne Market." enters Holy Orders,

While living at Devizes he inherited by will the eſtate of Miſs Maynard, a deſcendant of John and Jane Maynard mentioned in the fourth chapter, and built the "Brow Cottage," on a portion of the property, in which he afterwards reſided.

In 1839 he left England with his family, and arrived in the United States 2nd June, 1839, and lived in Liverpool, Ohio, of which place he was "Rector" for ſeven years. He then removed to the neighbourhood of Jubilee, Peoria, Illinois, and died at Radnor in the County of Peoria, 3rd September, 1859. His will was and ſettles in America,

The following ſtatement is taken from "Hiſtorical Notes of the family of Kip of Kipſburg and Kip's Bay, New York. Privately Printed 1871," at pages 35-8. It is there narrated that the Ingraham family in the United States are deſcended from Arthur Ingram of Barrowby by a daughter of Sir John Mallory. He was ſecond ſon of Sir Arthur Ingram, a Cavalier, who married, firſt, Eleanor daughter of Sir Henry Slingſby of the Red Houſe, and ſecondly, Lady Catherine, daughter of Thomas Lord Viſcount Fairfax of Gilling; and his eldeſt ſon was created a Scotch Peer under the title of Viſcount Irvin, 23rd May, 1661. Portraits of Sir Arthur in Cavalier coſtume, of the firſt Viſcount Irvin in full armour, and of the ſecond Viſcount Irvin in half armour, are in the collection of the Biſhop of California. Duncan Ingraham, Eſq., the father of Mrs. Leonard Kip of New York (the mother of the Right Rev. William Ingraham Kip, Biſhop of California), was a Loyaliſt during the Revolution, and went to Europe in 1776, where he remained until the Peace of 1784. He is frequently mentioned by Preſident John Adams, then Miniſter to France, in his diary kept in Paris in 1779. His portrait, nearly full length, in the crimſon velvet court dreſs in which he was preſented to Louis XVI. is in the poſſeſſion of his grandſon the Biſhop of California. He returned in 1784, conformed to the Government, and died at his place called "Greenvale Farm," near Ploughkeepſie, New York State, in 1807.

John's Church, Portſmouth, New Hampſhire, U.S.A., Sarah-Mehetabel, daughter of Matthew Sheafe Marſh of Springfield, Illinois, formerly of Portſmouth, N. H., but has no children.

11. Charlotte-Suſan Mayo; 11. Charlotte-Suſan, born 22nd January, 1838, at Hillworth, Devizes, and baptiſed 24th July, 1838, at S. James', South Broom, Devizes. She was married 4th March, 1862, at Robin's Neſt, Peoria, to Henry-Robert Woodward, of Peoria, ſon and heir of Henry-Thomas Woodward of Drumbarrow, Meath, Ireland, and grandſon of Henry Woodward, alſo of Drumbarrow. The names of their children are given in the next chapter.

12. Elizabeth-Mercy, born 4th October, 1839, at Liverpool, Ohio, U.S.A. She was married 19th October, 1871, at S. Paul's Church, Peoria, to Charles-Finny Bacon of Peoria. 12. Elizabeth-Mercy Mayo.

IV. Charles Mayo, born 8th December, and baptiſed 17th December, 1794, at Seend, was ſecond ſon of Joſeph Mayo and Mary-Jane (née Gibbes). He was educated for the medical profeſſion at London, Edinburgh, and Paris, and was a ſtudent at the Bath Caſualty Hoſpital, and at S. Bartholomew's. His name is in the liſt of the members of the R. College of Surgeons, London, in 1820. He was appointed Surgeon in the H.E.I.C.S., and left England 1ſt October, 1820, croſſed the Line 9th November, touched at the Cape 8th December, and arrived at Madras 13th February, 1821, after a nearly five months voyage in the ſhip, Prince Blucher. In April he was poſted to the 2nd Battalion, 24th Regiment N.I., quartered at Wallajahbad, as Aſſiſtant Surgeon, and took charge of the corps on the 12th of May. In June the regiment removed to Bellary. In his diary, dated Bellary, 13th February, 1823, he ſays, "I have now been two years in the country, and not had a day's illneſs that has been cauſed by the climate." On June the 30th, 1823, he arrived at Jaulnah, having been poſted to the Rifle Corps ſtationed at that place. His commiſſion as Aſſiſtant Surgeon from Sir Thomas Monro, K.C.B., Governor and Commander in Chief, Fort St. George, is dated 9th January, 1824, with rank from 24th September, 1820. VIII. William Mayo, born 24th November, 1801, at Seend, where he was baptiſed 21ſt March, 1802. His early years were ſpent at home, and he received his education under his father's care, with a view to entering the H.E.I.C.S., in which he was promiſed a cavalry commiſſion. He however matriculated at Oxford 2nd July, 1824, from Magdalen Hall, and preferring to ſtudy for Holy Orders declined the offer of a commiſſion which he ſubſequently received. He graduated B.A. 8th May, 1828, and M.A. 25th May, 1831, and was ordained Deacon at Glouceſter by William Mayo, M.A., third ſon of Joſeph Mayo, M.A., and Mary-Jane, née Gibbes, graduates at Oxford, and enters Holy Orders;

Biſhop Bethel 15th June, 1828, and Prieſt 28th June the next year, and was licenſed to the Curacy of Oldbury-on-the-Hill and Didmarton, in Glouceſterſhire. As his next curacy he held the charge of Steeple Langford in Wiltſhire, from 1833 to 1841, ſettles at Saliſbury,

a living of which his wife's uncle was then Rector, and in the latter year removed to Saliſbury. Here he became chaplain of the ancient foundation of S. Nicholas in the Liberty of the Cloſe, founded by Ela, Counteſs of Saliſbury, in the 13th century, a pictureſque range of buildings containing an arcade of tranſition arches between the Norman and Early Engliſh ſtyles, with pointed windows and many other intereſting features, and with gardens running down to the river Avon. In this ſpot he reſided for nearly twenty-four years. But this did not afford a ſufficient ſphere of work for a man of his energy and conſcientious devotion to hard and unobtruſive work. The chaplaincy of the County Priſon ſoon after became vacant, and he was licenſed to this appointment by Biſhop Deniſon, 29th July, 1843. The improvement of the priſoners from henceforward became the great object of his care, and not content with diſcharging the routine of duty which his office required, he devoted himſelf with great earneſtneſs to the advancement of their education, before any idea of making a proviſion for anything of the kind had entered the thoughts of the viſiting juſtices. For this he received the thanks of the magiſtrates in Quarter Seſſions. The court in 1859 made the following order, "That the Court do put on record its opinion that the County is under great obligation to the Revd. Mr. Mayo for gratuitouſly undertaking and ably diſcharging the onerous duties in connection with the inſtruction of the priſoners confined in the County Gaol." To the priſoners on their diſcharge it was his cuſtom to give a copy of the New Teſtament, and on many occaſions pecuniary aſſiſtance. He often remarked that the happieſt days of his life were ſpent within the precincts of the priſon, and that he never experienced the ſlighteſt diſreſpect from any of the criminals, though he was daily alone in a room with a claſs of them around him. During all theſe years he never had a day's illneſs, and his upright figure, as he walked through the Cloſe from his houſe to Fiſherton, a diſtance of a mile-and-a-half, twice daily, with the utmoſt punctuality and regularity at eight o'clock in the morning, and again later in the day, was as true an indication of the hour as the ſound of the Cathedral Clock. In addition to theſe duties he gave his ſervices gratuitouſly for many years as chaplain to the Saliſbury Penitentiary, and when he reſigned that poſt the committee were compelled to provide a ſalary for his ſucceſſor.

and finally in Dorſet.

On 20th April, 1865, he was preſented to the Rectory of Folke, Dorſet, by the Hon. and Rev. Canon Gordon, it being his turn to preſent to this chapter living, and was inſtituted 6th June, inducted 23rd June, and went into reſidence 21ſt July. On 7th Auguſt the ſame year he was preſented to the perpetual curacy of North Wootton, an adjoining pariſh, by G. D. W. Digby, Eſq., of Sherborne Caſtle, and licenſed on 15th December following. But the hard work of previous years ſoon after began to tell upon his health, and for ſome time before his death he was afflicted with deafneſs and other ailments. In 1876 he went to reſide with his ſon at Long Burton, but continued to take part in the duties of his pariſhes, in which he was aſſiſted by a curate, until within ſix months of his deceaſe. He paſſed quietly away on the morning of the 29th of March, 1881, and was buried in the churchyard of Folke on the 2nd of April, in the ſouth-eaſt corner of the churchyard, where a monument marks his laſt reſting-place. During his incumbency the church of Folke received a careful and conſervative reſtoration.

He was a man of wonderful energy and determination, and worked without a thought of ſparing himſelf, or of ſeeking any reward for his labour. Self-denial was the characteriſtic principle of his life. His great recreation was found in his garden, of which he was a ſkilful cultivator, and he was an excellent practical carpenter and carver. In his earlier years, while living in the country, he produced many examples of curious and intricate carving, which have been ſhown in exhibitions at Saliſbury and elſewhere.[1] He was 5 ft. 11 ins. in height, and upright to the laſt, but his hair, at firſt of a rich brown colour, began to turn grey ſoon after he had reached his thirtieth year. A pedigree of the Mayo family, with eſpecial reference to his branch of it, may be ſeen in Hutchins' "Hiſtory of Dorſet," 3rd edition, vol. iv., page 186, under the account of the pariſh of Folke.

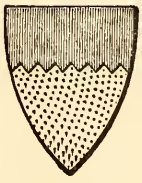
THE AUTOGRAPH OF WILLIAM MAYO, M.A., RECTOR OF FOLKE.

He marries Charlotte, daughter of Robert Dyer, M.D.,



DYER.

He married 29th January, 1835, at Oldbury-on-the-Hill, Glouceſterſhire, Charlotte, daughter of Robert Dyer, M.D., of Didmarton, and Mary his wife, daughter of Robert Coates, B.A., Rector of Little Sodbury, and ſiſter and heireſs of Robert-Trotman Coates, B.D., Fellow of Corpus Chriſti College, Oxford, and Rector of Sopworth and Steeple Langford, Wilts. In the regiſter of S. Mary's we meet with— Hayes of Wiltſhire.

John Maio and Joan Hayes married 25th April, 1671.
William Hays and Grace Thurman, 12th January, 1679-80.
Anthony Peirce of Calne and Katherine Hayes, 27th December, 1668.
Mr. William Hayes buried 8th February, 1683-4.
Mrs. Katherine Hayes buried 29th January, 1685-6.

John Mayo marries Joane Hayes.

In the regiſter of S. John's Church are the baptiſms of four children of "Mr. William Hayes and Grace his wife," viz. Grace 9th November, 1680, Sarah 19th March, 1681-2, Elizabeth 14th April, 1683, and William 27th June, 1685. The names of Watton and Hope are of frequent occurrence in this regiſter. A ſmall braſs on the floor of the north aiſle of S. John's Church has the inſcription,

"Here lyeth the Body of Edward Watton of this Borough gent. obt. 23 Oct. anno 1727, ætats 64;" and there is a monument in the ſouth aiſle to Thomas Thurman, gent., who died 18th March, 1777, aged 86.

The perſons mentioned below may poſſibly belong to another branch of the ſame family. Henry Hayes, Vicar of Great Sherſton, Wilts, 1641, died 13th July, 1678, and adminiſtration of his eſtate was granted at Sarum the 19th of the ſame month. His wife Katherine died 16th May, 1664. On a flat ſtone on the cloiſter green, "Here lyeth . . . . the body of Mary the wife of Thomas Alderne of this City ſenr. who departed this life on the 20 day of February 1699."

Francis Philpott of Hereford, gent., aſſigns the office of Dean's Regiſtrar to Thomas Alderne 13th April, 1616. Thomas Alderne was Mayor of Hereford 1624, and another of the ſame name in 1696. Biſhop Godwin leaſes houſes in Hereford to Thomas Alderne, gent., 23rd April, 5 Charles I. Thomas Alderne was Sheriff of Herefordſhire 15 Charles I., and was committed to the Gate Houſe touching the collection of Ship Money, May 8th in that year. (Domeſtic State Papers.)

Duncumb names Thomas Alderne, Eſq., among others, as a Commiſſioner in 1657 for collecting an aſſeſſment of £1000 a month from the City and County of Hereford. Captain Daniel Alderne was fined in the Civil War as a delinquent. Daniel Alderne of Nunnington (pariſh of Withington), gent., appoints Edward Alderne, D.C.L., Steward of the Manor of Nunnington, 31ſt March, 1656. (Ex evid : Decani et Cap : Heref :).

The following is partly derived from the title-deeds relating to the premiſes now the Bank, at Hereford. (Phillipps MSS.)

Thomas Alderne of the City of Hereford, Eſq., living 15th March, 1647, married Beatrix, living 21ſt Auguſt, 1635, and had iſſue three ſons, Thomas, Edward, and Daniel.

Edward Alderne was of Exeter College, and was created D.C.L. 13th June, 1638, and afterwards became Chancellor of Rocheſter, where he died 1671, ſ.p. He married Jane, daughter of James Rodd of Hereford (third ſon of Richard Rodd of Rodd), baptiſed 1ſt November, 1622, at S. Martin's, Hereford.

Daniel Alderne is deſcribed as of the city of Hereford, gent., in a deed dated 22nd July, 1646.

Thomas Alderne is ſtyled Citizen and Draper of Coleman Street, London, in a bond dated 15th March, 1647, and releaſes a moiety of the Manor of Orgarſwick, Kent, to Edward Alderne, D.C.L., of the City of Hereford, by deed-poll 19th April, 1656. The following entries probably refer to him :—

"Thomas Alderne and Dorothy Roe, maiden, both of St. Stephen's, Coleman Street, were married 11th April, 1648," at S. Helen's, Biſhopſgate, London.

"Captain Thomas Alderne, from Dalſton, buried 9th April, 1657 ; Mrs. Dorothy Alderne, from Dalſton, buried 7th September, 1658," at Hackney, Middleſex.

He had iſſue Thomas Alderne, deſcribed in a deed 14th January, 1687, "as of the city of Hereford gent. ſon and heir of Thomas Alderne late citizen and draper of London deceaſed." He is the perſon commemorated in the monument in Hereford Cathedral. He was admitted a freeman of Hereford 30th May, 1689, and was mayor of that city in 1696. He married at Weſtminſter Abbey, 12th June, 1673, his firſt wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Honywood, Knt., and firſt Baronet, of Evington, Kent. She is probably the perſon buried at S. Martin's-in-the-Fields, 2nd July, 1674, as "— alder, woman." In his licence (Vicar-General's Office), 11th Auguſt, 1675, to marry with Eleanor Guiſe, he is deſcribed as of S. Martin's-in-the-Fields, citizen and draper of London, widower, aged about 25. Her father, John Guiſe, was brother of Sir Chriſtopher Guiſe of Elmore, created a Baronet 10th July, 1661. Thomas Alderne's third wife, Mary, was married 20th January, 1669-70, at St. Bartholomew the Great, London, to Henry Dryden (a younger brother of the poet, John Dryden), who is ſaid to have died in Jamaica. She was buried 23rd February, 1698-9 (S. Peter's Regiſter, Hereford), having had iſſue by her laſt huſband, Penelope, baptiſed 29th January, 1682, at All Saints, Hereford, Thomas, baptiſed 18th December, 1684, in the ſame pariſh, and three others baptiſed at S. Peter's, viz., Edward, 15th May, 1686, Anne, 24th November, 1687, the wife of Charles Mayo, and Mary, 9th May, 1689.

Charles Mayo marries Anne Alderne.

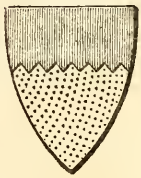
DYER.

Dyer of Somerſet.

This family was anciently of note in Somerſet, and pedigrees of it are contained in the Viſitations of that county. In addition to two baronetcies, one extinct, and the other now held by Sir Thomas-Swinnerton Dyer, it has produced many perſons of eminence, among whom ſtand forth more prominently than the reſt,—Sir James Dyer, Knt., Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, 1558, who died 24th March, 1581-2, his will being dated 13th March, 1581, and proved 28th June, 1582, P.C.C. (Tirwhite, 28); Sir Edward Dyer, Knt., Chancellor of the Garter, a poet of the reign of Elizabeth, who was buried at S. Saviour's, Southwark, 11th May, 1607; and Edward Dyer, of Sharpham Park (buried at Glaſtonbury, 26th Auguſt, 1661), who received a Commiſſion from Prince Charles, 27th January, 1644, to raiſe a regiment of Foot for the King, and to be Colonel thereof, which commiſſion is in the poſſeſſion of the widow of the late Robert Dyer, M.A., Clerk in Holy Orders, of Bournemouth, who will be hereafter mentioned. A portrait of Sir James Dyer is in the poſſeſſion of the writer of this volume, and another was deſtroyed by fire, 9th Auguſt, 1877, together with the Town-Hall, Wincanton, where it was depoſited.



DYER.

This family ſuffered for its devotion to Charles I., and from that period it has generally been difficult to trace its hiſtory. John Dyer, who in an old family paper is ſaid to have loſt his eſtates in the Civil War, was buried at Burrington in the County of Somerſet, 24th April, 1697, and left iſſue by his wife Mary, who was buried there 6th April, 1695, a ſon, William Dyer, who removed to Wootton-under-Edge, in Glouceſterſhire, and died there 13th Auguſt, 1740, aged 54 years (will dated 19th April, and proved 6th December, 1740, P.C.C., Browne, 318). William Dyer had iſſue by his wife Mary, who died 25th November, 1762, aged 68, nine children, baptiſed at Wootton, whoſe names are here given in order.

I. Mary, baptiſed 11th February, 1715-6, died 9th March, 1787, having been married at Wootton, 5th June, 1743, to Thomas Veyſie, whoſe ſon Daniel Veyſie, B.D., baptiſed 24th November, 1754, became Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, Whitehall Preacher, Bampton Lecturer, 1795, Rector of Plymtree, Devon, and Prebendary of Exeter, and died 7th July, 1832, having had iſſue by his wife Ann, ſiſter of Sir John Arnold, K.C.B., a General in the Bengal Army, two ſons, Daniel Veyſie, B.D., Student of Chriſt Church, Oxford, and Vicar of Daventry, and Colonel William Veyſie, H.E.I.C.S., and three daughters, Anne, Mary, the wife of her couſin Robert Dyer, M.A., and Penelope-Gertrude.

II. Elizabeth, baptiſed 14th April, 1718, and died 4th November, 1747, unmarried.

III. John, baptiſed 1ſt October, 1720, and died 1ſt May, 1768, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Webb of Cromhall Court, Glouceſterſhire, and ſiſter and co-heireſs of Thomas Webb of Stone in the ſame county (the other co-heireſs was married to Sir John Coxe-Hippiſley, Bart.), by whom he had iſſue, beſides other children, Samuel Dyer of Coombe, who married Anne, daughter of Lieut.-Col. William Adey of Uley, whoſe grandſon and repreſentative is Samuel-Webb Dyer, LL.B., of Caius College, Cambridge.

IV. William, baptiſed 27th December, 1722, who will be mentioned preſently.

V. Samuel, baptiſed 6th June, 1725, and died 18th July, 1749, unmarried.

VI. Thomas, baptiſed 4th September, 1727, and buried 22nd October, 1731.

VII. Charles, baptiſed 9th September, 1729, and died 13th July, 1789, having married Sarah, daughter of Henry Winchcombe, by whom he left a ſon, Harry-Winchcombe Dyer, J.P. and D.L. for Glouceſterſhire (baptiſed 7th March, 1765, and died 20th July, 1835), who married Mary, daughter of Charles Lee, M.A., Head Maſter of Briſtol Grammar School, by whom he had iſſue three daughters, Anne, Emma, the wife of William Leman, and Ellen, and one ſon, Charles Dyer of Woodend, Wootton, who died 3rd February, 1825, aged 28, and left iſſue by his wife, Anne-Gravenor, daughter of John Laviſcount of Antigua, an only daughter, Mary-Lee, married to Henry Graves, M.D. of Cookſtown, Ireland, and mother of Emma, Lady Cavagnari, widow of Sir Louis-Napoleon Cavagnari, killed at Cabul, 3rd September, 1879.

VIII. Thomas, buried 10th May, 1732.

IX. Ann, baptiſed 18th June, 1734, and died 22nd May, 1816, unmarried.

William Dyer (IV.) already mentioned, entered the medical profeſſion, and married 11th February, 1744-5, at S. Thomas', Briſtol, by licence, Bridget, daughter of Job Charleton,[1] and died 25th January, 1805, and was buried at the entrance of 5. Job-Charleton, born March, 1752, and died unmarried.

6. Bridget, born February, 1754, and married to John Selwyn, Rector of Luggarſhall and Coulſon, Wilts, and Succentor of Saliſbury Cathedral, and left iſſue. Their monument is in the South Tranſept of Saliſbury Cathedral.

7. Sarah, born October, 1755, and died unmarried.

8. Charles, born December, 1756, and died unmarried.

9. Robert, born 19th Auguſt, 1759.

10. Anne, born Auguſt, 1760, and married to Joſeph Eyre, M.A., Vicar of S. Giles, Reading, and Prebendary of Mapeſbury in S. Paul's Cathedral, whoſe fifth daughter, Bridget, was married, 28th July, 1812, to John-Fraunceis Fitz-Gerald, Knight of Glin, M.A., J.P., D.L., and High Sheriff of co. Limerick, 1830.

11. Richard, born February, 1765, and died unmarried.

12. Philip-Duval, born November, 1771, and died unmarried.

Robert Dyer, juſt mentioned, a Doctor of Medicine, was born in Briſtol, 19th Auguſt, 1759, and died 16th February, 1830, and was buried at Sopworth, Wilts. He married 9th October, 1787, at Chipping Sodbury, Mary, ſiſter and heireſs of Robert-Trotman Coates, B.D., Fellow of Corpus Chriſti College, Oxford, and Rector of Sopworth and Steeple Langford, Wilts,—and daughter of Robert Coates, B.A., Rector of Little Sodbury, by Sarah, his wife, daughter of Francis Gold, B.A., Vicar of Wapley, and Perpetual Curate of Rangeworth, by Mary, his wife, daughter of Joſeph Hardwicke, Lord of the Manor of Tytherington, Glouceſterſhire. She died 18th December, 1836, and was buried at Sopworth. Their children were—

Charleton, Sheriff of Briſtol in 1620, and Mayor in 1634, who was a ſcion of the Charleton family of Apley, Shropſhire, to which belonged Sir Job Charleton, Knt. and Bart., Chief Juſtice of Cheſter and Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, who died 27th May, 1697.
